

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Firstly, I would like to say that this research report is indeed a labour of love. Its completion would not have been possible if not for the continuous support I received (either given to me freely, or forcibly, that is another story) from my family members, most notably my husband Bilal Lawlor and son, Iqbal Huszaidey, who were witnesses to my stressed-out episodes, of which there were many, throughout the duration of me working on this research report. I love you both with all my heart and soul, and thank you for loving me as much as you do, especially in those times when I am/was so undeserving of such shows of love.

To my mom Nafisah Ismail for my many absences from family gatherings, my sisters Rose, Rosmah and Sheila, for putting up with me not calling or returning your calls or text messages, I apologize for being less of a daughter and sister. Thank you for your understanding.

To all my friends who have given me words of encouragement when the going got tough, and urged me to keep moving until I could see the light at the end of the tunnel, I appreciate all your cheers. Thank you for believing in my capabilities, especially when I myself was in doubt and ready to throw the towel in.

To my supervisor Dr. Surinderpal Kaur, whose painstaking job of looking at the details - big and small – to make this research report a complete and comprehensive work, a big thank you.
