ABSTRACT

This study discusses the element of time in the linguistic style of denial aspect in Juz ‘Amma. It was conducted with the purpose of identifying the element of time in the linguistic style of denial in the Arabic language as well as analyzing the use of linguistic style of denial in the Al-Quran al-Karim and its correlation to the element of time in Juz ‘Amma. Three instruments were used in this study; scrutinizing (istiqrā’), descriptive and data analysis. Scrutinizing (istiqrā’) and descriptive instruments were used in identifying the element of time in the linguistic style of denial in Arabic language, and to analyze the use of linguistic style of denial in Juz ‘Amma and its correlation to the element of time, data analysis instrument were used instead. Results from the study shows that there are three element of time, which could be translated as a link to the nine particles of denials, and the three elements are the past, the present and the future. From the analysis, it was found that eight out of nine particles of denial in Juz ‘Amma is related with the three element of time mentioned earlier. In conclusion, selecting the particles of denial with precise structure and combining it with a suitable element of time will create a verse with perfect meaning thus providing a better understanding of the point or meaning the verse is conveying.
