ABSTRACT

Today more and more people use social networking sites for the purpose of communication. For example, in Malaysia, Facebook is the most popular website and it has become an inseparable part of people’s lives (Malaysian Website Rankings for March 2012). According to Malaysia Facebook Statistics (2012), there are 13,154,060 Facebook users in Malaysia, where 54% are males and 46% are females. In this virtual space, males and females can present themselves in a multitude of ways when they communicate with each other. This study on the one hand aims to examine the language used by both males and females in tandem with the kind of linguistic features. On the other hand, this study also attempts to examine how male and female Malaysian Chinese undergraduates present themselves through language use on Facebook. In concurrence with the research aims and research questions of this study, a qualitative approach has been employed. The finding in language use showed that female Facebook users used more linguistic features than males in the status updates and feedback of their Facebook homepages except for certain aspects such as hedges, initial adverbs and Malaysian Chinese English particles. With respect to self-presentation, the finding revealed that males and females presented themselves more similarly except in the aspect of the emoticon use. Communication is a highly important element in relationship establishment especially between males and females. Armed with the knowledge of language to be used and knowledge of online self-presentation, Malaysian Chinese male and female undergraduates can learn how to use appropriate language to typify their online respective gender identities and to further improve their online communication skills.
ABSTRAK

Penyelidikan ini bertujuan untuk mengkaji bahasa yang digunakan oleh lelaki dan perempuan seiring dengan analisis bilangan perkataan dan ciri-ciri bahasa. Di samping itu, penyelidikan ini juga bertujuan untuk mengkaji bagaimana mahasiswa dan mahasiswa yang terdiri daripada golongan Cina di Malaysia menampilkan diri mereka dengan menggunakan bahasa di Facebook. Selari dengan tujuan dan persoalan kajian, kaedah kualitatif telah diaplikasikan. Hasil penyelidikan ini telah menunjukkan bahawa pengguna Facebook perempuan menggunakan lebih banyak ciri-ciri linguistik dalam status dan balasmaklum dalam Laman Web Facebook mereka jika dibandingkan dengan lelaki, kecuali aspek-aspek tertentu seperti jawab tak langsung, permulaan kata keterangan serta penggunaan Bahasa Rojak. Selain itu, penyelidikan ini juga menunjukkan bahawa lelaki dan perempuan menampilkan diri dengan cara yang lebih kurang serupa kecuali dalam aspek penggunaan simbol smiley. Komunikasi adalah satu unsur yang sangat penting untuk membina hubungan terutamanya antara lelaki dan perempuan. Dengan menggunakan bahasa serta pengetahuan penampilan diri dalam laman rangkaian sosial, mahasiswa dan mahasiswa dalam golongan Cina di Malaysia boleh memahami cara untuk menggunakan ciri-ciri bahasa yang sesuai untuk menampilkan identiti jantina masing-masing dan meningkatkan kemahiran berkomunikasi dalam laman rangkaian sosial.
ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I wish to express my sincere gratitude to my supervisor, Associate Professor Dr. Hajjah Jarjah Mohd. Jan for her invaluable guidance, encouragement and her profound patience in the course of my dissertation. Her insightful comments and her thorough review from the beginning to the final version of this research were of great benefit, making it possible for me to carry out my dissertation on sociolinguistic research thoroughly. In addition, if it were not for her confidence that this work was not beyond me, I sincerely doubt it would have been completed.

My deepest appreciation and thanks to Dr. David Yoong Soon Chye, Associate Professor Dr. Kow Yip Cheng, Dr. Ng Lee Luan, Dr. Sridevi Srimiwas and Associate Professor Dr. Toshiko Yamagushi, for their excellent lectures on Research methodology, Second Language Acquisition and linguistic theory, which constituted the necessary knowledge for this research.

My sincere thanks are also extended to the staff of Institute of Postgraduate Studies (IPS), Faculty of Linguistics and Languages as well as the Main and Faculty Library University of Malaya for their service and timely assistance which I required throughout my studies.

My lifelong gratitude to my parents and my sisters for all their love and motivation during my dissertation. I am very blessed to have such a wonderful family. From the bottom of my heart, I wish to thank my loving family for all that they have done for me. They have given me a lot of love and motivation, which has made me a stronger person.
during this lonely journey. Without their consistent encouragement, supports and the ‘scholarship’, the completion of this Master would have been impossible.

My wholehearted thanks are also to my precious friends, Gao Yunxia and Wang Hongying who have been persistent in reminding me to complete my dissertation quickly. As for understanding and tolerating my mood swings, the credit definitely goes to my dear friend, Lu Huigang who is always there for me during my good and bad times.

Finally, my earnest thanks to my friend, Prabhalini Thevendiraraj, for all her help, valuable suggestions and great efficiency with my dissertation. I also wish to express my thanks to my dearest friends, Anisa Larassati, Cherish How, Dayangku Azriani Binti Awang Ismail, Guo Zhonglan, He Tengteng, Janice Lee Jin Zhuo, Wikan Isthika and other friends, who have kept me going with their encouragement and affection during the completion of this challenging task.

CHAPTER ONE

INTRODUCTION

1.0 Background of the Study

Sociolinguistic variation associated with a speaker’s gender is a widely researched topic with considerable research carried out over the last few decades. Men and women are classified in two distinct cultural groups as they are of different genders (Wood, 2005, p. 19). Men and women learn the values, beliefs, attitudes and expectations that society has prescribed within their respective cultural groups. In fact, it is found that “the cultural environment that people grow up in can have surprising effects on how people interpret the world around them” (O’Neil, 2006, para. 6). The significant aspects include the language men and women use and the way they perform their social roles that have been assigned to them culturally.

The variation between genders has been a noticeable feature in the on-going debate with regard to men and women’s roles as well as how they use language to communicate. Differences in language use between men and women are determined by the varying social roles that they perform in society (Bourdieu, 1991). In a study of preschool students, it is found that boys tend to use language that reflects dominance, competition and concern for individuals (Maltz & Broker, 1982), while girls’ language is cooperative, submissive and caring about other’s needs (Sheldon, 1990).

Even in the online environment, linguists have observed that gender differences are evident (Herring, 1993; Arnold & Miller, 1999). As Schaefer (2007, p. 136) puts forward “through the media we expand our understanding of people and events what we experience in person. The media inform us about different cultures and lifestyles about the latest forms of technology”.

The innovation of technology has created the various mass media currently available to us. Online communication has been and is possible today due to the various mass media. Social networking sites (henceforth SNSs) are being used all over the world these days. According to recent statistics, Facebook reaches the top rank worldwide with 901 million users compared with Weblog, Twitter, LinkedIn and YouTube (Social Media User Statistics, 2012).

Facebook was launched in 2004. Its initial purpose was to foster better relationships amongst friends, family, co-workers and so on (Facebook Factsheet, 2012). Gradually it has become a more public website where everyone can contact and communicate with the users. When a Facebook user builds a profile, s/he can put her/his basic information such as age, gender, education links and work, upload photos, videos or movies to share with other members who are given access to view her/his individual profile or update her/his status and provide comments on other Facebook users’ postings. The combination of these elements on Facebook allows its users to select various ways of presenting themselves when communicating with the greater online community. It also offers an avenue for males and females to present themselves in multiple ways.

1.1 Statement of the Problem

Society has built a conviction that the social behaviour of men and women are different from the aspects of masculinity and femininity. ‘Male’ and ‘masculinity’ are different: the former is a biological state while the latter refers to identity. However, Hearn and Kimmel (2006) state, femininity or masculinity is not judged by biology instead it is shaped by the surrounding environments we live in. Femininity and masculinity are conveyed in many ways such as physical appearance, voice and behaviour. Masculinity is also related to broad shoulders, a vigorous voice, height and a strong body; even in the pose and pace, it requires men to have bigger spaces compared to women (Amir et al., 2012, p. 106).

An identity is formed based on our life experiences in society and is considered as part of the self. Gearhart and Kang (2010, p. 5) state that Identity Theory is rooted in symbolic Interactionism, i.e., Identity Theory aims to recognise how the self affects the social system and how the social system influences the self. The self and society may affect each other mutually. In situated face-to-face interactions, the ‘self’ is normally presented by the presence of physicality such as voice, gender, race, appearance and the language used.

However, the Internet in recent years has exposed another world allowing exploration of ideas regarding self-presentation. Since SNSs have become an important aspect of people’s lives, more and more people are inclined to be in contact with each other via the Internet. Consequently, Computer-mediated communication (henceforth CMC) has become an essential tool in the global daily communication. Most researchers have a positive perspective of online chatting as they opine that it can reduce inequality and gender discrimination (Danet, 1998; Easthope, 2009). The virtual world offers a new context since the net speakers are free from physical constraints (Wang & Chen, 2004, p. 4). They can be anonymous when communicating with each other. This is in line with Jung’s (1976) concept of a public ‘mask’. When a person logs onto her/his blog, s/he can hide her/his ‘actual self’ and create an ‘ideal self”. For example, s/he may select a name that may be realistic or fictional; s/he might even create an image s/he desires which can be of any age, race or gender. Gender roles in the world today are changing rapidly. The stereotypes of men being masculine and women being feminine are no longer apparent. Generally, men and women use language in different ways, but at times men may inadvertently present being feminine or women may present a masculine voice feature when they interact (Amir et al., 2012, p. 106). It appears that more and more traditional criteria of language and gender are unsuitable generalizations for men and women today.

In an online environment, since the net speakers are behind the computer screen, this makes it more difficult to distinguish each other's ‘actual self’. Some linguists agree that men and women belong to two different worlds (Coates, 1993; Tannen, 1990). Gray (2001, pp. 13-40) states that within the Internet environment people cannot see each other’s true face. This often leads to miscommunication when males and females interact online. As such, studying how males and females present themselves online becomes indispensable.

Much recent research has focused on language use or self-presentation among male and female teenagers in Blogs (Huffaker, 2004; Vasalou & Joinson, 2009; Amir et al., 2012), Chat Room (Kapidzic & Herring, 2011) or emails (Linkins, 2008), but to date there has been rather limited research focusing on language use among undergraduates in Facebook. Although researchers have studied self-presentation on Facebook, most of them only focus on images where differences among people are highlighted. Previous research has drawn their findings using young adults as their sample, which may not be a true representation of undergraduates due to the different culture and location. Hence, the study of Facebook offers an avenue for the researcher to study the linguistic features and self-presentation among Malaysian Chinese undergraduates.
1.2 Objectives of the Study

This study is conducted primarily to look at the kind of language male and female Malaysian Chinese undergraduates use to express their experiences and feelings when they communicate with each other and to examine how they present themselves online when they interact on Facebook.

Like other computer mediated communication, Facebook can provide an insight on young adults’ language use and the manner in which the participants present themselves in a particular online community. Thus, the gendered language use and the way Malaysian Chinese young adults present themselves on Facebook are worthy of study.

This study sets out to explore gender differences and similarities between male and female Malaysian Chinese undergraduates. To date, there is limited study which has investigated language use and self-presentation on Facebook within the ethnic group of Malaysian Chinese young adults. Thus, this research analysis intends to enhance understanding of a peoples’ culture, social values, the function and meaning of language used in a particular online community.

This study also seeks to ascertain if findings from gender studies in relation to language use on Facebook and online behaviour by western researchers in western societies are applicable to the Malaysian Chinese undergraduate Facebookers. Apart from this, the researcher hopes to provide a spectrum of online communication skills to both men and women to establish a better relationship with others.
1.3 Research Questions

In order to gain answers to the investigation of language use and online self-presentation among Malaysian Chinese undergraduate Facebook users, some of the more specific research questions that guide the study include the following:

1. What linguistic features do male and female Malaysian Chinese undergraduates use to express their experiences and feelings when they communicate via the Facebook?
2. How do male and female Malaysian Chinese undergraduates present themselves through language use on Facebook?

The researcher hopes to investigate the language used to express feelings (see Section 3.1, Chapter 3) and the ways Malaysian Chinese young adult Facebook users present themselves (see Section 3.1, Chapter 3). Moreover, through these questions, the study aspires to examine the similarities and differences found in linguistic features and the way undergraduates of different genders present themselves.

1.4 Significance of the Study

Facebook as a popular website is an excellent CMC tool with which both linguistic features and self-presentation can be investigated. Thus, the study of online linguistic features and self-presentation on Facebook has important significance.

Since Facebook offers a complex environment, it allows users to use language that may not reflect their masculine or feminine roles and they are also able to present themselves in a manner that may or may not be the same as in face-to-face interactions. Therefore, the study of how Facebook users use language and present themselves online is important.
Additionally, having a good knowledge of online language among males and females will possibly have a significant impact on their verbal communication. It can help males and females to learn how to use appropriate language to typify their gender identities as well as to express their ideas. This in turn can improve their online communication skills. Also, by looking at the online self-presentation on Facebook, it is helpful to identify whether there are similarities and differences in the ways males and females present themselves. This could further provide males and females certain clues to detect the identities of other users and also to make communication smoother.

Finally, a Facebook profile provides a step to establish the user’s self-presentation. The information such as gender, age, personality traits, status and education level reflect identity that is obviously significant as it is helpful to establish better relationships with people.

1.5 Limitations of the Study

This research draws on sociolinguistic aspects that focus on the analyses of gendered language use and the way young adults present themselves on Facebook. The personal homepages on Facebook are analysed to identify the linguistic features are used to express feelings and experiences as well as how men and women project themselves. However, there are a few limitations in this study.

This study only focuses on Facebook users on the website http://www.facebook.com/. The participants in this study are limited to male (15) and female (15) Malaysian Chinese undergraduates aged 20-24 from the University of Malaya (henceforth UM). This study only analyses the linguistic features on their status and feedback that are written solely in English and their self-presentation from their personal homepages. The researcher is aware that the scope of this study is not extensive enough to validate the findings to be representative of the whole Malaysian Chinese community. Nevertheless, it is hoped that the research findings can provide impetus for further research in the area of CMC.

1.6 Definitions of Terms

This section explains and elaborates the various terminologies that are significant throughout the whole course of this study. Although these terms have various definitions, their explanations are as indicated in the following:

Computer-Mediated Communication (CMC) refers to “the way in which humans use computers to communicate through both synchronous and asynchronous methods to exchange text, images and multimedia” (Huffaker, 2004, p. 7).

Gender refers to “social symbolic construction that expresses the meanings a society confers on biological sex” (Wood, 2005, p. 301).

Sex refers to “a personal quality determined by biological and genetic characteristics” (Wood, 2005, p. 301).

Gender Role refers to “expectations regarding the proper behaviour, attitudes and activities of male and females” (Schaefer, 2007, p. 484).

Young adults refer to the age range from 15 to 29 years old (World Health Organization, 2012).
Linguistic Feature refers to the “different features of language in conversation that conversationalists employ” (Lakoff, 1975, p. 19).

Social Networking Site is a website where net speakers can use their created profiles to contact others so as to shape a clear personal network (Barker, 2009, pp. 209-213). In recent years, it has become a key communication means (Bobkowski, 2008) since they have become a place for net speakers to communicate with each other (Bryant, 2008).

Facebook is a “social utility that helps people communicate more efficiently with their friends, family and co-workers” (Facebook Factsheet, 2010, para. 1).

Self-Presentation is the process people use to control how others perceive them and to convey to others that what kind of person they are (Leary, 1996, p. 17; Smock, 2010, p. 6).

Facebook Wall “acts as a message board. The user’s wall includes information, pictures, and videos that either have been shared by the user himself or have been posted on the wall by other users. Any status updates that have been shared will also appear on the user’s wall” (Melcombe, 2011, p. 17).

Facebook Status is also referred to as a Facebook status update. It is defined as an update feature where users can update their status to express their opinions and their feelings, including happiness, sadness or frustration. Anyone shared by the user can see the updated status when signing into the network (Melcombe, 2011, p. 16).
CHAPTER TWO

LITERATURE REVIEW

2.0 Introduction

The literature that is relevant to this study is reviewed in this chapter. This chapter is divided into six sections. Section one begins with a review of the research on language and gender. The second section discusses research on self-presentation. Section three reviews past studies on CMC and gender. Section four studies research on gender, language use and self-presentation in CMC. The review of online name choices, image selections and emoticon use are also carried out in this section. Section five provides relevant studies on Facebook. Finally, section six gives a summary of this chapter.

2.1 Research on Language Use and Gender

Researchers such as Lakoff (1975), Coates (2004) and Holmes (2008) have researched on the different ways both genders express their respective feelings. There have also been many studies dedicated to gender and its influence on language. Through using language, both genders indicate that they are separate entities (Goddard & Patterson, 2000). According to the social interaction hypothesis, language is an important way to establish male and female roles (Harter, 1998).

Nevertheless, O’Barr and Atkins (1980) in their gender study of American courts, they conclude that language use should not be defined by gender, but whether the speaker’s position is powerful or not. Since O’Barr and Atkins’ (1980) sample is only among seven participants, their study is unclear whether the linguistic features used by both genders play a significant, but non-decisive role.
2.1.1 Differences in Communication between Men and Women

In our daily interactions, we communicate our thoughts and ideas with both men and women. Depending on whom we are in contact with, we revise our words and reshape our thoughts. Language as a tool for communication is definitely an effective, essential and a universal method of communication. Without language, it is almost impossible for us to communicate with each other, as language is like a mediator or a ‘bridge’ in bringing people together. However, the way men and women communicate is said to be different. When men and women communicate, they may use different kinds of communicative styles to indicate their emotions, cooperation, aggression and so on.

Many researchers assert that women and men use different speech styles in their conversational practice (Lakoff, 1975; O’Loughlin, 2000, p. 2; Coates 2004). Women’s language is described as being more cooperative, polite and emotional while men’s language is found to be agentive, to employ self-expansion, to be uncooperative and individualistic (Fishman, 1983; Lakoff, 1975; Coates, 2004).

Tannen (1990) studies men and women’s communicative styles in private and public scenes. She finds that male and female communication types are often different. Males often employ a direct and powerful style, whereas the style of females is more indirect and close. These linguistic styles are similar to the masculine rule of agency and the feminine rule of communion.

2.1.2 Approaches to Language and Gender

Generally, research on language and gender may be divided into two major categories. The first is relevant to sexism in language or the ways in which speakers show their different cultural attitudes toward men and women. The second category mainly refers to possible differences in social speeches of men and women. Since Lakoff’s (1975) work on Language and Women’s Place, linguists have developed approaches of language and gender from many different perspectives. Coates (2004) suggests that research on language and gender can be classified into four approaches: deficit approach, dominance approach, difference approach and social constructionist approach (p. 6).

The deficit approach is the earliest in the field of language and gender. This approach is clearly illustrated in Lakoff’s work (1975), Language and Women’s Place, where it intends to build woman’s language (WL) in linguistic features like hedges, empty adjectives and exaggerated intonation contours. In her work, WL is considered as uncertain when compared with the norms of male language. However, this approach is challenged because it is based on the premise that women’s language is inherently wrong. If women want to be treated seriously, they should learn to speak like men.

The dominance approach considers women as being oppressed and the linguistic differences in men and women’s speech are due to the men’s dominant role and women’s subordinate position. Researchers use this approach to show how linguistic practice develops male dominance. The dominance model is based on the idea of a male-dominated society. West and Zimmerman (1983) also point that ‘doing power’ is a way to ‘doing gender’. Therefore, members who use ‘powerful’ language may reflect their larger and more established social rule while the other gender (usually the female members) uses ‘powerless’ language which reflects a weakened role.

Researchers who support the dominance approach include West and Zimmerman (1983), Fishman (1978) and Spender (1980). They consider that men possess more economic power than women in society. This power permeates into language, which results in male domination in social interactions. The merit of this model is that it takes both genders into consideration. However, this model only studies gender differences from economic power in society but not provides room for people’s status to develop in the future.

The third approach is the difference model, which stresses that men and women belong to different subcultures (Coates, 2004). Tannen (1990) points out that men and women belong to linguistically distinct groups. Most researchers employing the difference model focus on the linguistic aspects from phonological, morphological and syntactical uses of language to conversation analysis. Montgomery (1995) also mentions that the differences in women and men’s speech may reflect and maintain gender specific subcultures (p. 168). Since boys and girls grow in different social cultures, thus their communication can be treated as different cultural values. This approach is criticised since it does not deny the existence of the dominance relations.

The fourth and new approach is the dynamic approach or social constructionist approach where gender identity is considered as a social construct instead of a ‘given’ social category, in which situations affect language choice (Hayslett, 2008, p. 6). West and Zimmerman (1987) indicate speakers should be thought as doing gender rather than statistically being a gender. Those using this approach argue that situational examinations are necessary for explaining gendered language acts and for considering any patterns of gendered language use in a particular community (Carmeron, 2003). Since this is a study on a particular community of Malaysian Chinese undergraduates, the dynamic approach is used.
2.1.3 Lakoff’s Theory on Female Speech and Other Relevant Research

Lakoff (1975) is one of the most famous authors in the area of language and gender. She investigates the language used by men and women using a conversational analysis, making interesting observation in her classic work, Language and Woman’s Place. She initially proposes that women’s language possesses nine types of linguistic features. A list of these linguistic features used by women can be seen below:

(a) More words related to their specific interests,

(b) Empty adjectives, e.g. divine, charming, cute.

(c) Tag questions (e.g. You want to go back, right?) and rising intonation on declaratives (e.g. He is a teacher?).

(d) Hedges, e.g. you know, sort of, well, you see.

(e) Intensive ‘so’, e.g. This cat is so cute.

(f) Hypercorrect grammar, e.g. consistent use of standard verb forms.

(g) Superpolite forms, e.g. indirect requests, euphemisms.

(h) Do not tell jokes.

(i) Speak in italics or strengthen, e.g. It was a BRILLIANT performance.”

(Lakoff, 1975, pp. 53-56)

This group of features show that women use more specific words relating to their interests to describe colours, ‘empty’ adjectives such as divine and adorable, and in areas regarding female activity, that women use more polite words than men. In addition, these features indicate that women tend to use more than one word of politeness in a request, e.g., I wonder if it would be possible. According to Lakoff’s theory, hedges also frequently appear in an apologetic way in women’s speech. To avoid vulgarity women are more likely to use accurate pronunciation in their speech than men. Women neither tell jokes, nor understand them, according to Lakoff’s theory.

In short, the ‘female language’ described here is a powerless style, portraying their uncertainty and their powerlessness can be reflected in their lack of confident speech. In the current research, several of these linguistic features are reviewed in detail as they are more typical and highlighted by Lakoff (1975). They are intensifiers, hedges, empty adjectives, tag questions and declarative questions as presented in the following sections.

2.1.3.1 Intensifiers

Lakoff (1975, p. 55) defines an intensifier as a device which people use to show their strong emotions or to make strong assertions. For example, the cat is so cute; he works really hard. She also states that intensifier ‘so’ is used to soften the speakers’ utterances. Talbot (1998, p. 39) states that an intensifier can be used as a boosting device such as ‘very’. Olsson (2000) studies language and gender in one hundred introductory letters among eight persons aged 10 to 50. He proposes that women use more intensifiers than men such as ‘so’ and ‘really’ while men use ‘very’ more often than women. Nevertheless, in Leaper and Robnett’s (2011) study on tentative language among 39 independent samples’ speech by using a meta-analysis, they find that women use more intensifiers than men, but the differences are not significant. Their findings show that studies in different situations can have varied findings.

2.1.3.2 Hedges

The definition of hedges is first put forward by Lakoff (1975). Hedges are defined as “words that convey the sense that the speaker is uncertain about what he (or she) is saying, or cannot vouch for the accuracy of the statement. There is another justifiable use in which the hedge mitigates the possible unkindness of a statement—that is, where it’s used for the sake of politeness” such as should or a little bit (pp. 53-54). Holmes (2001) states that hedges are used to express speakers’ lack of confidence or to soften the speakers’ statements. Nikula (1997, p. 190) in his study of hedges by Finnish non-native speakers of English, points out that one word in one context is referred to as a hedge while in another context it would not be guaranteed to be a hedge. For example, the lexical phrase just mitigates the speaker’s opinion in She is just like that, but it is part of the proposition in She can stay here just for one year. Thus, hedges can be used differently depending on the context.

Riekkinen (2009, p. 7) lists the forms of hedges in his academic spoken interaction study, which are derived from Crompton (1997, p. 280) as below:

- Copulas other than be (e.g. It seems that the cat is hungry.)
- Lexical verbs (e.g. I guess you won it.)
- Modal verbs (e.g. He should come here early.)
- Probability adverbs (e.g. Maybe it will rain.)
- Probability adjectives (e.g. It is possible to finish this task on time.)

Riekkinen’s classification of hedges adds more details about hedges and offers certain convenient ways for further research of hedges.

2.1.3.3 Empty Adjectives

When referring to empty adjectives, Lakoff (1975) defines one group of adjectives as empty adjectives. These are affective adjectives which have loose meaning, such as ‘divine’, ‘cute’ and ‘nice’ They are usually used to express admiration (pp. 11-12). Lakoff (1975, 2004) also divides empty adjectives into two groups. One is empty neutral adjectives that both genders can use such as cool, good and great. The other is common empty adjectives, which according to her is often used by women such as adorable, sweet, charming, lovely and awesome (p. 43, p. 78). Lakoff’s clear division of empty adjectives offers a guideline for further research.
2.1.3.4 Tag Questions and Declarative Questions

Lakoff (1975, p. 16) defines a tag-question as “a declarative statement without the assumption that the statement is to be believed by the addressee: one has an out, as with questions. A tag gives the addressee leeway, not forcing him [sic] to go along with the views of the speaker”. A further study on tag questions is carried out by Liberman (2004). He states that a tag is a grammatical structure, which consists of a declarative and an attached interrogative clause followed. For example,

- Susan is coming to visit you, isn’t she?
- He seldom does his homework carefully, does he?

Mindell (2001) classifies tag questions into three forms which are verbal (… aren’t they?), vocal (He is an artist?) and gestural (raise one's shoulders). These types of tag questions are normally used in daily conversations but in informal situations, these are also used (Amir et al., 2012). Hale (2010), however, categories tag questions into three groups, positive declarative with positive tag (e.g. He is your brother, right?), positive declarative with negative tag (e.g. He called you, didn’t he?) and negative declarative with positive tag (e.g. He isn’t your brother, is he?) (pp. 47-48). Mondorf’s (2004, p. 46) findings that the positive declarative with positive tag is the most used tag by both women and men.

Lakoff (1975) also points out that by using tag questions women’s speech sounds more polite as it leaves a decision open, and these speeches do not force agreement on their interlocutor. Preisler’s (1986) research reveals that women’s language has more tag questions than men, which is due to women being more uncertain compared to men. Perhaps this is because of the gender expectations imposed by society that we either behave as a man or a woman in accepting forms in communication. On the contrary,
Harris (1984) proposes that the use of tag questions does not mean women are uncertain; instead, it reflects their strong requirements for getting the answer. Thornborrow (2002) in his paper on the talk between host and callers on radio phone-ins, states that more powerful participants use tag questions more frequently. From their statements, it is evident that researchers hold different points of view on the use of tag questions.

With respect to the use of declarative questions, Lakoff (1975, p. 17) points out that a declarative question is referred to as a rising intonation in statement contexts. It is often used to show indirect requests or to express uncertainty and indecisiveness. She also points out that women use more declarative questions than men in their conversation. Gunlogson (2008, p. 104) shows the form of a declarative question as a declarative + a question mark. For example, She wants to go out? Branson (2007, p. 61) in his research on gender and American boardroom tables states that females using the declarative questions are noted as being emotional while males tend to use declaratives to demonstrate their extreme emotions. From the above, we can observe that different findings are identified by researchers on the use of declarative questions.

2.1.4 Other Research Concurring with Lakoff

Lakoff’s (1975) theory gets consistent agreement from researchers such as Crawford (1995), Coates (2004) and Holmes (2008). Coates (2004) proves Lakoff’s findings by analysing the conversational dominance in both mixed talk and same sex talk. Coates outlines seven different linguistic ‘styles’ between men and women. They are minimal responses, hedging, tag questions, questions, commands and directives, taboo language as well as compliments (p. 86). Most of these conversational strategies are similar to Lakoff’s (1975) list of linguistic features. Coates also points out that women use more minimal responses, hedges, tag questions and compliments while males use more questions, commands and directives, swearing and taboo language.

Holmes (2008) supports Lakoff’s theory and states that Lakoff’s list is internally coherent. Holmes adds two types of women’s linguistic features, precise colour terms such as magenta, aquamarine and avoidance of strong swearing words, replacing them with ‘fudges’ and ‘my goodness’ (p. 298).

Lakoff is the pioneer on language and gender. Yet, Lakoff’s work is restricted by the fact that its assertions are based on her observation and introspection and there is a lack of supportive empirical evidence. Current study is based on the research area of Facebook website. Hence, Lakoff’s theory is considered as one of the theoretical frameworks in this study. Furthermore, other researchers’ theories such as Coates (2004) and Holmes (2008) are not used in this research since their theories are also rooted in Lakoff’s (1975) theory and based on face-to-face interactions.

2.1.5 Malaysian English Particles

Since Malaysia is a multicultural and multilingual country, people of different races, to some degree, speak English differently. The Malaysian Chinese can speak more than one language. They usually speak their mother tongue (Mandarin, Hokkien and/or Cantonese), English and Malay language (Platt et al., 1983, pp. 62-84). Tay et al. (2012), in their study of Chinese English discourse particles among 20 youth aged 20 to 30 on Facebook, state that Malaysian Chinese English may be influenced by Mandarin, Cantonese Hokkien and Teo Chew. When Malaysian Chinese speak English, they may add some Chinese particles at the end of their English language (p. 2). By analysing the youth’s Facebook wall posts and comments, they have found five Chinese English particles, lah, lor/lo, leh, la and d/dey. These particles are often used by Malaysian Chinese youth in their informal communication. Tay et al. (2012) conclude that females use more particles in their communicative English than males. Although Tay et al.’s (2012) study provides some insights for studying Malaysian Chinese English on Facebook, yet their research only focuses on English particles.

Wee (2004, p. 1068) studies Singapore English in the discussion of Colloquial Singapore English. These particles are used by Singapore Chinese in their spoken or informal written situations. She states that there are mainly eight types of Singapore English particles, namely, ‘lah’, ‘ma’, ‘meh’, ‘lor’, ‘leh’, ‘liao’, ‘wat’, ‘hor’ and ‘hah’. Among these particles, ‘lah’ is used most. ‘Wat’ derives from English ‘what’. She also indicates that more women use these particles more than men. A summary on the use of these particles by Wee (2004, p. 1068) can be seen in following table.

Wee (2004) also indicates that the use of these particles can make speakers’ utterances expressed in a more softening way. Since Malaysia has intimate contact with Singapore’s development in history and both of them are multicultural and multilingual countries, previous research demonstrates that Malaysian Chinese English and Singapore English have some similarities and differences in the use of these particles. Nevertheless, previous research only focuses on English particles. This makes the study of types of linguistic features among undergraduates necessary.

In general, from previous studies, it is evident that gender does influence how we speak. These differences have been cultivated since we were young, and as a result, men and women communicate in different styles. Many elements in communication styles could affect what we understand the speaker and how we view them, such as ways of responding, contribution in a conversation, turn taking and choice of words.

However, gender differences in one society may not be the same as that of in another society (Huffaker, 2004, p. 21). This is one of the reasons the researcher investigates how males and females perceive themselves in this corpus. Knowing that men and women speak differently, this study aims to examine whether this applies when both men and women interact on Facebook.

2.2 Research on Self-Presentation

Many linguists have identified the functions of language as representation and expression. Representation is the essential purpose of language, which is to represent the world in our minds by learning to sort things by using words our language offers us. However, expression usually refers to the feelings and emotions of an individual, an entire ethnicity, gender or other grouping (Joseph, 2004, pp. 15-16).
When referring to representation, terms of the ‘self(ves)’, identity(ies) and self-presentation are often involved. The self is defined as a person’s thoughts and feelings, which are relevant to oneself as an object (Rosenberg, 1986). It is “who I feel myself to be, emotionally and affectively” (Joseph, 2004, p. 9). The concept of identity is to examine the relationship between the physicality and moral beliefs, between the internal and external world, between society and the interpersonal characteristics (Huffaker, 2004). Identity can be divided into two kinds: gender identity and social identity. Gender identity refers to “one’s sense of oneself as male, female or transgender” (American Psychological Association, 2006). While social identity refers to the association of an individual and other human groups from a nuclear family to expanding outward, based on factors such as the individual’s capacities, experiences and location (Jannarone, 2006). Self-presentation refers to the process where people show who they are to others by selecting aspects of their selves (Leary, 1996).

As for the relationships of the self, identity, self-presentation, the ‘self’ drives the activity of the identity (Zhao et al., 2008), the identity drives the activity of self-presentation and self-presentation drives representation (Joseph, 2004, p. 16). Individuals have only one self, but they can have many different identities in different situations (Brinthaupt & Lipka, 2002) such as in school, family and in the workplace. Thus, the self and his/her identities can be reflected in social life through various self-presentations (Schouten, 2007, p. 22). The ‘self’, ‘identity’, ‘self-presentation’ and language are interactional and affect one another.

When people communicate with others, their identity tends to be presented spontaneously. Joseph (2004, p. 16) states that identity is deeply bound up with linguistic interaction and is a subtype of representation. Besides, Joseph also accounts for the relevance between representation and linguistic forms. Representation would definitely include the identity the speakers claim for themselves and the identity claimed by others; the speakers themselves are part of the meaning and are represented within the representation (p. 22). When people present themselves to others, they express their feelings and ideas with words. Thus, linguistic communication begins not only with a message but also with the speakers themselves and their reading of each other.

In our daily lives, everyone intends to present what they look like to other people. This is called self-(re)presentation. Leary (1996) states that self-presentation is “the process by which people convey to others that they are a certain kind of person or possess certain characteristics” (p. 17). For example, when a man chats with a woman, intending to give her a good impression he may say some sweet words to flatter her. It can be manifested through multiple verbal and nonverbal cues consciously or unconsciously in face-to-face settings (Jones & Pittman, 1982) such as words or emotions. The way people present them to others are selective, thus, it becomes necessary to see how people present themselves in online situation.

A detailed explanation of the perspective of self-presentation in face-to-face interactions is given by Goffman (1959). According to Goffman, in order to be self-presented, individuals give and give off expressions. The former refers to the verbal symbols that are used to convey information by the speakers; the latter refers to a wide range of action that is performed by the actor (p. 2). Goffman considers people’s daily self-presentation as a stage acting where “a performer engenders in his audience the belief that he is related to them in a more ideal way than is always the case” (Goffman, 1959, p. 56). In Goffman’s view, the performer is the self-presenter who communicates with the audience in the front-stage. Thus, in different situations, for avoiding embarrassment, the performer may control self-presentation and act differently towards different people. Nevertheless, the backstage is a “place where the performer can reliably expect that no member of the audience will intrude” (Goffman, 1959, p. 114).

The distinction between front-stage and back stage can explain why people behave differently in different situations. In the Facebook website, the Facebook homepages can be considered as the front-stage where messages are sent to users while the physical person who is typing words on the keyboard and editing his/her profile could be treated as back stage actions (Zarghooni, 2007, p. 9). Goffman limits his discussion of self-presentation to face-to-face interactions only. Thus, at this juncture, the pertinent question is whether net-speakers in face-to-face interactions and in online environment present themselves similarly or differently.

Since people can control self-presentation based on situations, it is necessary to know the categories of the ‘self’ that are expressed in different situations. According to Markus and Nurius (1986), the ‘self’ can be classified into three types: the ‘actual self’, the ‘ideal self’ and the ‘ought self’. The ‘actual self’ refers to the attributes an individual possesses; the ‘ideal self’ involves the attributes that an individual would like to possess in society; the ‘ought self’ involves the attributes an individual ought to possess, which is established given the right condition (Zhao et al., 2008). However, in face-to-face interactions, their ‘ideal self’ may be restricted due to their physical features such as unappealing appearance and physical disability or racial discrimination in real society. Online interactions are anonymous and flexible. This offers an opportunity for individuals to choose aspects of their self-presentation which they do not want to reveal in real society.
In face-to-face interactions, childhood and adolescents are self-presented through their family names, reputation and physicality such as body, biological sex, race and appearance (Collins & Kuczaj, 1991; Freud, 1989). Nonetheless, the presence of physicality in social encounters restricts people from performing certain aspects of self-presentation that are different from their social background, personality attributes and their visible physical characteristics such as sex, race, and looks (Goffman, 1959). For this reason, it is usually difficult for people to mask their gender, which in turn may affect their social communication. For example, in bars where face-to-face communication between strangers always happens, people may attempt to mask their real background and character to create a new one, but their ‘self’ statements are unable to go beyond the limited setting.

The Internet provides a new environment where people can present themselves freely and anonymously. Therefore, they expect to be free from the social constraints and present an ‘ideal self’ they want. In this study, Facebook will become the users’ platform and their homepages will be the vehicle for self-presentation and interactions.

2.2.1 Strategies for Self-Presentation

Since people can control their self-presentation, they may employ many strategies to present themselves. Leary (1996) in his research of self-presentation in face-to-face communication proposes a number of self-presentation strategies. Among them four types of self-presentation strategies are normally considered, which include self-descriptions, attitude statement, nonverbal behaviour and social association.

Self-description is the way that people present ‘self’ by using words. These words tell something about one’s values, political or religious points, occupations and so forth in life (Leary, 1996). When people intend to present ‘self’ more specifically, they care more about their self-description since this is a primary source of self-presentation. According to Leary, people do not show so much false information when self-describing, but it is probable that they select the information to give (p. 18). Thus, self-description can be a way for them to choose the information that makes their ideal self.

The second strategy put forward by Leary is attitude statement. People’s attitudes express their values and the kind of persons they are. Leary (1996) mentions that the attitudes people express influence the impressions other people have of them (p. 19). Hence, attitudes can be seen in the topics and the emotions they choose. For example, when a girl talks about a particular singer, it shows that she is fond of this singer or she does not like this person at all. What she says can make others confirm or change their impressions of her.

Leary’s third strategy for self-presentation is nonverbal behaviour that can be divided into three categories, namely, emotional expressions, physical appearance as well as gestures and movement. Among them, the most obvious nonverbal behaviour is the physical appearance that has a significant effect on others’ impressions. Leary (1966) points out that the appearance is self-presentational. This is because the physically attractive person may get more positive evaluations due to his/her attractiveness. Besides, emotional expressions also have great influence on others’ impressions of what they are. For instance, when people are happy, their expressions can show that clearly. Consequently, emotional expressions can serve as self-presentations (Leary, 1996, p. 24). He also proposes that emotions are not something internal, which can be found when people communicate with others. Certain behaviours like raising one’s voice or making facial expressions are not considered as unconscious but can be controlled by the speaker. Gestures and movement are considered as purposive body language where people “use gestures and bodily movements to convey impressions of themselves” (p. 26). For example, when people show the victory sign to the hearer, they are expressing their encouragement to the hearer. Another example, when the librarian puts one figure on his mouth, he signals silence. Thus, gestures and movement are also important ways to represent the ‘self’.

Leary’s fourth self-presentation strategy is social associations, which are more indirect. For example, people may show their connections with famous or successful social units to boost the glory of some positive aspects of themselves or when people refer to famous people, they show that they are familiar with them.

The four strategies mentioned above show that people in face-to-face interactions can present themselves by using words (self-description), appearance, emotions, gestures (nonverbal behaviour) and the social circles they are connecting with. Thus, it would be interesting to see whether these strategies can be used in online environments and whether people present themselves in a similar or different way.

2.3 Computer-Mediated Communication (CMC) and Gender

Computer-mediated communication (CMC) is “the way in which humans use computers to communicate through both synchronous and asynchronous methods to exchange text, images and multimedia” (Huffaker, 2004, p. 7). It comprises interactive social-technical modes such as email, discussion lists, and newsgroups, Instant messaging (IM) and Multi-User Dungeons (MUDs, referring to a role-playing games where players interact with each other in a virtual world by typing commands that resemble a natural language http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/MUD). All these modes are textual and they involve words that can be read on computer screens. Since net speakers are behind computer screens, they can hide their ‘actual self’ and present the ‘ideal self’ to people online whom they are interacting with. Therefore, the Internet is a highly acclaimed democratic force that has laid the foundation of gender and power (Herring, 2003). However, early studies in gender and CMC have shown that the power fighting and gender prejudice existing in the real world also can happen in the online environment (Herring, 1993, 2003). Since the Internet is rooted in the same situation (i.e., people in the internet environment are from real society) as that of the offline world, it seems that some copies of cultures are unavoidable. However, there still exist possibilities on gender differences in CMC, based on the numerous studies on this controversy.

Gender topics do exist in an online environment and its analysis is important. Jaffe et al., (1995) points out that when given a chance, females tend to hide their own gender more often in CMC environments. On the one hand, perhaps this is because of the fear of being tracked by males or due to sexual harassment (Gilbert, 1995). On the other hand, it is due to the dominant position of the male participants (Herring, 1993).

Tidwell and Walther (2002), however, have a different point of view. They opine that the CMC provides another perspective to understand human behaviour and social networks. Therefore, it is not necessary to constrict CMC to language alone. Personal information online, emotional expression and the design of a virtual environment communication can also be interpreted as forms of interaction. Facebook, one of the various social website services, offers a new platform for the current research.
2.4 Gender, Language and Self-Presentation in CMC

Language and gender-related issues in CMC have become an important and interesting research topic (Herring, 2000; Rodino, 1997; Savicki, 1996). It includes the dynamic social communication (Herring, 2001), the emotional manifestation (Wolf, 2000) as well as self-presentation (Kapidzic & Herring, 2011).

2.4.1 Gender and Language Use in CMC

The online context allows net speakers to present themselves more freely and flexibly, thus people can express their feelings and opinions anonymously (Rodino, 1997). This flexibility can also be displayed in online language which has unique characteristics. Language in CMC is a combination of the traditional linguistic forms and adopted ones that are created by the online community (Crystal, 2001). For example, online users may use a variety of graphical icons or text based smileys to express different feelings such as :) /^^= happy or acronyms such as lol = laugh out loud. These emoticons or acronyms are still being developed with the application of new websites (Huffaker, 2004, p. 3).

The language in CMC is constantly growing as the community is constantly involved in the discourse. Chomsky (1999) points out that the knowledge of language like the use of language, pronunciation and interpretation grows in its speech community (pp. 33-54). A new technology may form a new way in which language is interpreted. Thus, studying the unique language in CMC such as Facebook becomes an integral research area on language and gender, especially when considering how Facebook users communicate with each other. It may also offer some insights for parents, educators, technology experts and scholars who are interested in the influence of technology on young adults.
Researchers hold controversial points of view about the language used by men and women in CMC. Herring (1993) has analysed the discourse communicative style among male and female participation in two academic electronic discussion lists in one year. She characterises women’s language as being uncertain, emotive and cooperative while men's language as being strong assertions, filled with aggression and humour (p. 8). These findings are similar to Huffaker and Calvert’s (2005) study of language and gender among teenage bloggers using content analysis in the USA. They find the females’ language to be more cooperative as females take on subordinate roles compared with males.

Savicki (1996) has studied 2692 messages by randomly selecting 27 online discussion groups from both the Internet and from commercial information services. By analysing the language contents, he has found that male groups are inclined to use objective language and that they care less about courtesy. Moreover, their online behaviours sometimes violate expectations. While the groups dominated by females on the other hand use more neutral or cooperative language to reduce tension. Rosseti (1998) has conducted a gender study of language use in electronic mail discussion groups in Canada. Her findings show that men present themselves more ‘authoritatively’ in a discussion group while women show more cooperation. Specifically, women tend to show their support and express a close relationship with their peers. Besides, women express their appreciation and thank more frequently while men tend to express their points of view in a tighter and more indirect manner.

Herring (2000) in her research of gender differences in CMC states that language and gender in CMC environments are similar to face-to-face interactions. Although physical clues cannot be provided to signal men and women’s physiology in CMC, “gender is often visible on the Internet on the basis of features of a participant’s discourse style feature which the individual may not be consciously aware and able to change easily. That is, users ‘give off’ information about their gender unconsciously in interaction” (Herring, 2001). Thomason and Murachver (2001) have conducted a gender study of electronic discourse among forty two undergraduates in a New Zealand university. They point out that the readers of emails can recognise the sender’s gender based on the frequency of linguistics and the content features.

Nonetheless, in CMC, different mediums may use natural linguistic devices differently. For example, network chat is different from the utterance exchanges in face-to-face interactions. Instant Messaging (IM) as another medium may in fact promote closeness among users, as it enhances social communication (Hu et al., 2003). Internet-Relay Chat (IRC) enables users to connect to an IRC server by using a web service to broadcast and receive synchronous messages (http://www.computerhope.com/jargon/i/irc.htm). Rodino (1997) has analysed a forty-minute conversation on an IRC channel by using recording and observation. He points out participants in IRC build gender in various ways and they use language flexibly and dynamically.

Recently, based on theories of Lakoff (1975) and Crawford (1995), Amir et al. (2012) conducted a gender study over a period of three months on four Malaysian teenage bloggers (2 males and 2 females) using the method of content analysis on their blogs to investigate five types of linguistic features, intensifiers, hedges, empty adjectives, tag questions and adverbs. They conclude that male and female teen bloggers use language differently and women use more types of linguistic features than men.
Apart from that, Amir et al. (2012) in their research, investigate a new type of linguistic feature, initial adverb not found in Lakoff’s (1975) theory. Crawford (1995, p. 30) defines an initial adverb as a word or a phrase being used at the beginning of a sentence with an adverb. The word or the phrase is used to modify a phrase or a clause. It shows manner, time, place, cause, or degree and answering questions like "how," "when," "where," "how much", "Firstly", "Actually" (Amir, et al., 2012). Amir et al. (2012) conclude that no significant differences are found in the use of initial adverbs by teenage boys and girls. Mulac, Studley and Blau (1990) have conducted a study of language use in essays among children of nine years old in the USA. They find that girls write more initial adverbs compared to boys. Thus, we can notice that initial adverbs can vary with different ages and different situations.

Generally, Amir et al.’s (2012) findings are consistent with the statements of Lakoff (1975) and Crawford (1995) that women employ more linguistic features than men in their conversations. This further illustrates Herring’s (2000) view that there are no clear differences in language use and gender between the online world and the real world interactions. Amir et al.’s (2012) research focuses on four teenagers in blogs. Since the sample is very small, it is necessary to see whether their findings are similar or different with a larger sample in Facebook website.

The literature reviewed shows clearly that little research focuses on linguistic features among men and women in online environment. Although Amir at al. (2012) carry out a language and gender study focusing on linguistics, the sample is very small (four teenage bloggers) and the duration is only over three months. In different CMC areas, gender differences may be dissimilar. Thus, it is necessary to see whether the language used on Facebook websites by male and female Malaysian Chinese undergraduates would be similar or dissimilar. Moreover, as they are undergraduates, supposedly more mature than teenagers, it would be interesting to examine if they employ specific type of linguistic features in their online communication.

2.4.2 Gender and Self-Presentation in CMC

The self-presentation in face-to-face interactions can be controlled by the people in different situations (Goffman, 1959). Nevertheless, with regard to certain aspects, such as gender, race and appearance, which have a deep impact on self-concept they cannot be hidden (Collins & Kuczaj, 1991), as these are physically formed when people were born.

With the advent of the Internet era, the traditional conditions of self-presentation have been changed. In early research, researchers claim that the online environment such as MUDs (Multi-User Dungeons), Chat Rooms (Subrahmanyam et al., 2004) and Bulletin Boards (Turkle, 1995) are anonymous. Since the Internet offers a flexible and anonymous environment for individuals, net speakers can move from their rooted identities based on place and form a complex and flexible ‘self’ (Easthope, 2009). The pertinent question at this point is how people self-present in this new environment.

Smock (2010) defines online self-presentation as a “theoretical construct that refers to the processes individuals use in attempting to control how other users perceive them” (p. 6). He reports that different personalities can affect the way Facebook users present themselves. However, he does not include the gender aspect in his research, thus, it is necessary to see whether male and female Facebook users present themselves similarly or differently.
Walther and Parks (2002) state that in text-based CMC, net speakers of SNSs can almost fully control their informational disclosure and the self-presentation can be in language, typographic (text based smileys like ^_^ or graphics like ☻), and chronemic information (time-related messages). Unlike face-to-face self-presentation, the online environment is anonymous and flexible, thus, net speakers can modify the ‘self’ and select the image of them to present multiple types of the self (Gonzales & Hancock, 2011, p. 169). Calvert (2002) also points out that people can form their online self in many ways, such as through role playing, language use and by imitating a person they want to be. Net speakers then are strategic in operating self-presentation compared with traditional face-to-face interactions (Krämer & Winter, 2008).

Zarghooni (2007) points out that four of Leary’s (1996) theory of self-presentation strategies can be applied to Facebook website, namely, self-descriptions, attitude statements, nonverbal behaviours and social associations (e.g. showing the connections with a famous sports team). Nonverbal behaviours include physical appearance, such as pictures, emotion expression like emoticons as well as gesture and movement (application of Computer-Mediated Tactility on Facebook showing gestures ‘Henry decides to hug Lucy’ in Lucy’s profile). Zarghooni (2007) also states that on the Facebook website, personal information can be described using words, which is considered as self-description. Net speakers can select which aspects of the personal information they want to present and which they would like to hide. Besides, the usernames can also be an alternative for net speakers to describe themselves. Both the topics the net speakers discuss and the emoticons (like the graphical emoticons ☻ and the text smileys :) they use as symbolic/sign language are important as it is an attitude statement strategy to present their values.
People’s pictures can also be used to present themselves in an online environment. Physical appearance can be classified as a nonverbal behaviour strategy (Zarghooni, 2007, pp. 10-13). Thus, people pay more attention to creating an impression through their pictures. Zarghooni’s (2007) three self-presentation strategies are considered in the current study, which may occur and can be observed on Facebook homepages, namely, self-description, attitude statement and nonverbal behaviour (physical appearance and emotion expression). However, Zarghooni (2007) only indicates his view of self-presentation on Facebook, but he does not conduct an actual study of self-presentation on Facebook. Thus, in the current study it is necessary to conduct an actual study on the way self-presentation is formed through language use on Facebook, prior to drawing conclusions.

This being the scenario, the question thus is how males and females self-present and whether they present similarly or differently to the typical identity portrayed of themselves in society. Ellison et al. (2006) have conducted a study of self-presentation in online dating sites among male and female participants of Los Angeles and California (aged 25 to 70). They conclude that in writing self-presentations, women have a higher tendency to present their ‘ideal self’. Whitty (2008) has conducted a study in Australian online dating sites by interviewing 30 men and 30 women (aged 23-60). She finds that users wish to present an ideal self through ‘glamour shots’. Women present themselves more than men with images.

Huffaker (2004) has carried out a gender study on identity construction and language use among American teen bloggers by looking at the main categories: a) Personal information disclosure; b) Name choice; c) Avatar selections; d) Emoticons; e) Semantic characteristics; f) The frequency of blog abandonment and use; g) Blog features; h) Common blog themes. The findings reveal that male and female teen bloggers present themselves similarly while several differences are noticed in aspects of emoticons, various aspects of personal information and language use. Huffaker (2004) states that identity relates to bloggers in terms of behaviour, mannerism and the way they talk. He also mentions that gender differences are significant within different CMC arenas for users to present themselves (p. 21). Therefore, it is necessary to consider whether gender differences exist when Malaysian young adults present themselves on other websites of Facebook.

More recently, many researchers have found that the online world is not completely anonymous such as Ellison et al. (2006) and Huffaker (2004). For example, on the internet, net speakers can communicate with their family, friends, co-workers and some offline acquaintances. This kind of online relationships based on the offline is referred to as a non-anonymous (i.e. opposite to anonymous) relationship (Zhao, 2006). They point out that people in different online settings act differently. This vital finding suggests that net speakers can be anonymous or non-anonymous depending on the nature of the online self-disclosure set.

A multitude of research has been carried out on online self-presentation and the studies have become more extensive up to present time (Gearhart & Kang, 2010, p. 2). Recent studies include self-presentation in profile images in teen chat rooms (Kapidzic & Herring, 2011), images among young men and women in the website Rate (Siibak, 2007) and religious identity among undergraduate students (Bobkowski, 2008). However, little research has been carried out on the self-presentation of young adults on Facebook. Different social settings may make the individual present differently. Therefore, the current study intends to extend the research of gendered self-presentation on Facebook, another online social networking site, which requires the real names to be filled when Facebook users register. Moreover, it has become the most widely used social networking site among young adults in Malaysia.

In addition, Facebook may provide a platform where the ‘ideal self’ may be created. Various aspects of online self-presentation are explored which include online names, image selections and emotive features in the following sections.

2.4.2.1 Online Names

Names are vital aspects for people to present themselves. They can aid people to ascertain their own identities and recognise themselves (Calvert et al., 2003). This may affect their social interactions. In general, people’s names not only assist them to differentiate and describe their internal and external worlds, but also to make themselves recognised by others.

A nickname is considered as a type of name, which is often used by family and friends. In fact, research shows that nicknames are more important than we assume them to be. Bruess and Pearson (2002) have studied the use of nicknames in relationship in adult friendship and marriage and state that nicknames are commonly developed from someone’s personality, facial or physical characteristics and sometimes are nominated by the people around us. The use of nicknames may reflect the intimacy of relationships and can influence social interactions. When someone has a positive nickname, it may provide ways to fit in among peer groups while a negative nickname may affect his/her personal image or the view of peers towards him/her (Calvert et al., 2003). Nevertheless, if his/her nickname is chosen by himself/herself, it may increase his/her feeling of pride in himself or herself (Bechar-Israeli, 1995). When nicknames are related to gender, it is stated that it is actually easier to employ nicknames for men than for women. Nicknames given to men tend to reflect their social status and achievements such as ‘chairman’ or boss’ while female nicknames tend to reflect physical and emotional characteristics such as ‘pretty’ (Hanks, 2006; Frank & Anshen, 1983, pp. 10-23). It is obvious a nickname is very important in face-to-face interactions. In this case, it is necessary to see whether people in online environments use their nickname to present themselves.

Nicknames are also very popular in an online environment. It has become a common practice for an individual to have a nickname for the purpose of anonymity, or simply because the natural name or the original name would be too long to type (Calvert, 2002). Calvert (2002) also points out that when users use real names or nicknames as their user names, their online roles are created simultaneously. A username is not only used to register on the Internet, but also used in online communication such as in emails, chatting or websites. Therefore, names provide the basic types of online self-presentation.

Bechar-Israeli (1995) in his study of Internet Relay Chat (IRC) rooms illustrates six types of online names, (1) real names; 2) nicknames; 3) occupation related names such as an engineer; 4) names related to objects such as a river; 5) names relevant to words and sounds; and 6) names relevant to movies, literature or well-known people.

Calvert et al. (2003) in their study of Multi User Dungeons (MUDs), divide names into seven categories: 1) real names; 2) informal names for someone; 3) popular cultural names; 4) mythological names; 5) names related to objects such as a tree; 6) names related to sports; and 7) nonsense names.
In Bechar-Israeli (1995) and Calvert et al.’s (2003) studies, it is found that users tend to use their real names and nicknames instead of other types of names. Calvert et al. (2003) indicate that some children may choose their real or nicknames when creating their online images or avatars while some boys are more likely to use fictional names, names related to objects, names associated with sports and ridiculous names, whereas girls prefer to take their names from popular culture and music. Online names can be used in many different ways for online interactions, for example, in emailing, online chats and logging on websites. Therefore, names offer the basic procedure of online self-presentation. Huffaker (2004) in his gender study finds that more than half of the teen bloggers use their real names while others use their online nicknames. This indicates that both male and female teen bloggers intend to present their ‘actual self’ in their blogs. Thus, it is interesting to see whether males and females in the Facebook website will present themselves similarly or differently.

2.4.2.2 Image Selections

Pictures are considered as symbolic or sign language (Yule, 2000, p. 202). They are thought to be a form of picture-writing or pictograms (p. 10) and is the visual representation of the subjects or actions (p. 206). Huffaker (2004, p. 16) in his gender study states that avatars which signify a particular person in a virtual context are constructed as graphical icons. They can be in the form of a sign, a character role, a picture, or in other symbolic forms. Kapidzic and Herring (2011) in their gender study of self-presentation in teen chat rooms point out that physical appearance may influence the society we live in. For instance, when a girl looks more attractive, she can be more confident and finds it easier to capture people’s attention. It can be one way of self-representation.
Since in the online environment, people’s physiology and appearances cannot be identified, this allows males and females to choose their online images flexibly. However, users’ profile pictures may reflect their actual genders. Images are like a bridge connecting the individual and the community where they stay (Taylor, 2003). They not only symbolise the user’s self-presentation but also influence others’ impressions of users (Leary, 1996). Hence, the types of pictures that users choose are very important since they are like a mirror reflecting the individual’s online self meanwhile they are a part of the virtual society.

The study of self-presentation in images or avatars can be found in much research. Kapidzic and Herring (2011) have studied the self-presentation in profile pictures in teen Chat rooms. They point out that girls present themselves seductively in posture, gaze and clothing while boys displayed a variety of behaviourism such as looking away in the distance in their profile photos. Their findings are similar to Siibak’s (2007) gender study in the dating site. However, Raacke and Bonds-Raacke (2008) carried out a gender study on the most popular uses and gratifications for social networking sites (i.e. keeping in touch with friends) among college students. They find that no gender differences in the social website use but they state that female college students change the appearance of their websites more often than male college students. Although their findings are based on the whole website, not focusing on images only, it makes us to consider whether women’s presentation is more dynamic than men when it comes to their profile images.

Graphical avatars used by men and women in chat environments show a similar tendency when users present themselves with photos of famous people or cartoons. Vasalou and Joinson (2009) have carried out a self-presentation research through avatars among male and female college students of UK in blogs. They find that the participants make their avatars look more intellectual and attractive for the purposes of gaming or dating. They also point out that the characteristics of the chosen avatars are highly similar to the participants. Calvert et al. (2003) in their study of Multi User Dungeons also state that the majority of the MUD participants choose avatars that are consistent with their own gender. Huffaker (2004) in his gender study has analysed the avatar selections in blogs from six aspects, namely, the actual photos of someone, a cartoon drawing, graphical text (e.g. 😊), an artistic picture of the person, a picture of a popular person (e.g. a musician), a picture of an animal (p. 55). The results show that almost 40% bloggers use the picture of a person while other types of avatar are also found. The above studies indicate that images are one way to present users online. These has actually prompted the question of whether Malaysian Chinese males and females young adults present themselves similarly or differently and whether women create the ‘actual self’ more often through profile images than males in their Facebook homepages.

2.4.2.3 Emotive Features

The term ‘emoticon’ is derived from the combination of “emotion” and “icon”. There are two types of emoticons or emotive features, namely, text-based smileys and graphical emoticons (Huffaker, 2004, p. 43; Dresner & Herring, 2010, p. 59). The text-based smileys are formed by various combinations of keyboard characters and indicate the meaning of a message (Miller, 2011, p. 62). For example, :) represents happiness and :p is used when one tends to make jokes or a simple way of being cute. The graphical emoticons are formed by graphic pictures such as the happy graphical emoticon😊. Since graphical emoticons are shown by pictures, they may show the meaning more vividly compared with the text based smileys. These graphical emoticons may be found more often in emails, messages on telephone and chatting tools and message boards. The following are some examples of graphical emoticons in emails (https://accounts.google.com).

Both text based smileys and graphical emoticons have an influence on the understanding of a message. Walther & D’ Addario (2001) indicate that although verbal interpersonal communication is better than emoticons in conveying the speaker’s meaning, the influence of emoticons and smileys is also significant. These emoticons and smileys not only convey the message but also aid in forming impressions of the author’s personality traits or points of view.

Since in the online context, it is difficult for net speakers to display their facial expressions and body language to express their points of view and feelings, thus these emoticons can help net speakers to understand each other better. Crystal (2001) also indicates that in online interactions, emoticons and smileys can reveal net speakers’ feelings. This is consistent with Huffaker’s (2004) statement that emoticons are employed not only to express the meaning of the emotion itself but also to enrich the meaning of a message. The examples of the text-based smileys in messages can be seen as below:

- Congratulations

  A) We believe you can do very well. Come on.

  B) We believe you can do very well. Come on. :)
Sad
A) You study really hard.
B) You study really hard. :(

Shock
A) Is it true?
B) Is it true? =O

Flirting
A) I’m waiting for you.
B) I’m waiting for you. :p

(Huffaker, 2004, p. 18)

Constantin et al. (2002a) have conducted a study on chat room presenters (who supervise chat rooms and can prevent inappropriate information or delete inappropriate users). Their findings show that the presenters who use emoticons are considered to be more active, respected and sociable than those who do not use emoticons. When comparing the emoticon use among male and female presenters, it is found that female presenters who use emoticons show deeper impressions (Constantin et al., 2002b).

Witmer and Katzman (1997) have carried out a study of 3000 online messages. They indicate that females use more emoticons to express their feelings in their discourse than males. Witmer and Katzman’s findings are supported by a study of instant messages used in conversations by Lee (2003). The results show that males seldom use emoticons with males, but employ them with females while females use emoticons with males, same as they use emoticons with females. Wolf (2000) investigates the online newsgroups and points out that women use emotions most of the time, while males use emoticons only in mixed-gendered newsgroups. Herring (2003) in her study on gendered discourse patterns in the pseudonymous Internet Relay Chat teen channels states that females smile and laugh more, while males are more aggressive.

2.4.2.4 Topics

The topic as one way of attitude statement is one of the ways for speakers to present themselves (Leary, 1996). From their topics, speakers show their values and what kind of person they are (Zarghooni, 2007). Deakins et al. (1987) study the topics discussed by the working class and middle class men and women. They categorise the topics into seven classes, business and money, sports, amusements, family concerns, weather, food and other people. In Deakins et al.’s (1987) research, it is found that more women talk about family, other people, amusements and weather than men. When women talk more about home and family they tend to be more emotional and positively evaluative (pp. 97-98). Deakins et al.’s (1987) also find that more men talk about money, business and sports than women. They make more hostile judgments, argue and focus more on perceptual attributes (pp. 97-98).

Recently, Huffaker (2004) analyses topics discussed by male and female teen bloggers. In his study, it is revealed that male and female bloggers discuss school, music and relationship equally.

In general, emoticons provide another way for online users to present themselves. Emoticons not only can be used to enrich the meaning of the messages, but also make it easier to understand the users’ views and feelings.

Current research in CMC has exposed interesting trends in language use, self-presentation and interactions. However, with the creation and embracement of new Internet applications, it is necessary for CMC studies to understand the language use and online self-presentation on the Facebook website.

2.5 Studies on Facebook and CMC

Facebook has become an everyday presence with the development and accessibility of the Internet when comparing contemporary SNSs and personal websites. The original release of the Facebook website was only open to college students at certain universities. Recently, it has become available to everyone. Current statistics provided by Facebook indicates that 50 percent of active users log in their Facebook accounts every day, meanwhile around 35 million users update their status daily (Hepburn, 2010). It is no wonder that Facebook was the most visited website in 2010 (Lenhart et al., 2010, p. 3).

In Malaysia, Facebook is the most popular website and it has become an inseparable part of people’s lives (Malaysian Website Rankings, 2012). Parr (2011) states “Facebook has become an integral part of our life. It’s where we learn what our friends are doing, who they’re dating, and even what music they’re listening to” (p. 1).

From the Facebook statistics, the importance of Facebook is obvious. Facebook signifies a new tool for CMC and provides an avenue where young adults can portray themselves online. Thus, it is an important research area, especially when looking at the type of language Facebook users use to express and present their feelings and ideas. With the growth of the Facebook community, understanding the roles of male and female Facebook users, especially young adults, becomes more important.

In general, this gender-based study on language use will represent an important means of examining how undergraduates present themselves on Facebook. Apart from that, this CMC study can also provide various insights on how male and female young adults portray themselves and interact with other members in online environments.

2.5.1 Personal Information and Online Names on Facebook

When using the Chat Rooms, MUDs, Bulletin Boards and blogs, users can actually be anonymous. However, Facebook does not permit this. Facebook is a non-anonymous online environment (Zhao et al., 2008, pp. 1811-1820). Facebook has a template for users to fill their personal information and names. When registering with Facebook, users are required to use their real names and provide their other personal information such as age, gender and occupation. Since users’ personal information and names are not verified authentically, they can still present themselves untruthfully despite being required to provide their real name or authentic information (Ellis, 2010). For example, a girl’s name is Lin Xiao Ting, however, she may use any female’s name that may not necessarily be her real name and the Facebook will not be able to authenticate it. In this case, Facebook users still can use any human names, real or fictional.

2.5.2 Profile Image Selections on Facebook

The Facebook profile image is located at the top, left corner of the Facebook profile. Images, however, are more selective compared to names in the Facebook profiles. Thus, it is important to identify how often Facebook users employ authentic pictures of their own and how often they choose other types of photos from animated films or cartoons and pop culture. This might reveal the importance of the images when users present their identities in this specific online environment.

For profile pictures, Facebook users can only choose one single profile image to represent them. Ellis (2010, p. 39) states that the profile picture is one of the first steps to present the individual to their audience. However, the profile pictures are quite flexible, because users can change or keep their profile pictures indefinitely. Some examples are below:

!Profile Pictures Examples

Strano (2008) has conducted a gender study on self-presentation among people of different ages through Facebook profile images in the U.S. The results show that women tend to change their profile images more often than men. The data also show that older users change their profile images less frequently and prefer to put their own pictures. Reichart and Cooley (2008) have carried out a gender study on 584 Facebook profiles pictures among users aged 22 to 44 years old. They deduce that males focus more on their face and head while females’ bodies are central. Hum et al. (2011) in their study of Facebook profile images among 18-23 ages in a college or university demonstrate that in the virtual context where users build visual images, female users who wish to meet new people are found to change their image appearance more often compared to males (p. 1830). In this case, investigating how Malaysian Chinese male and female undergraduates present themselves in their Facebook homepages becomes necessary.
2.5.3 Emotive Features on Facebook

Generally, emotive features help online users indicate their feelings and emotions. Apart from that, it provides an understanding of the attitudes of the user (Leary, 1996) therefore the emoticons can be considered as another way of self-presentation (Zarghooni, 2007; Huffaker, 2004).

The use of emoticons or emotive features in blogs can indicate the blogger’s feelings (Huffaker, 2004). Similarly, in Facebook homepages, emoticons can also express Facebook users’ feelings and experiences. The emoticon template list is located at the bottom of the right hand in the Facebook homepages. When users click on the emoticon they want, it will appear in the conversation text such as the graphic 😞 presenting sadness. Facebook users can also create emoticon by themselves through using text based smileys such as :-) / ^-^ standing for happiness. The list of emoticons in Facebook (http://facebookemoticons.com/emoticons/) can be observed as below.

Emoticons can also suggest users’ feelings (Huffaker, 2004, p. 29). If a profile includes many sad emoticons this may carry an obvious impression of both the text and the user. For example, a happy emoticon manifests ‘I’m happy now’ while a sad emoticon reflects ‘I’m depressed or sad now’. The following is an example of emoticons on Facebook:

!Emoticon Example

Farquhar (2009, p. 30) has conducted a study of Facebook identity presentation among 346 college students. He states that from the emoticons, the users’ mood or feelings can also be identified. To date, there is not much research on studying emotive features on Facebook and this study intends to do so.

2.5.4 Characteristics of Facebook

Current research on language use and gender is related to the Chat Rooms (Subrahmanyam et al., 2004), blogs (Huffaker, 2004; Amir et al., 2012), emails (Rosseti, 1998) among teenagers or children. Although there is some research on Facebook, most of them only focus on one or a few aspects, such as avatars in the profile (Jin, 2012) and personality (Chen & Marcus, 2012). However, there has been limited research about gendered language use and self-presentation on Facebook. It would be interesting to see whether in different CMC vehicles, net speakers may self-present differently. For example, images are dominant in MUDs while news groups might focus more on language use. Facebook has several unique technical features, but the question is whether the language used and the way male and female Facebook users present themselves is similar or different. It is hoped that this research can fill this void and it also intends to offer sociolinguistic researchers various new perceptions in the area of gendered language use and self-presentation on Facebook.

Facebook allows users to upload images in their Facebook homepages. Users can show their hobbies and interests or communicate with each other by commenting and sending messages. This is similar to Myspace and Blog. Besides, Facebook still has its own unique characteristics when compared with Myspace, MUDs and Chat room: it is restricted systematically and almost non-anonymous (Zhao et al., 2008). Although people on Facebook can also hide their real names, yet, Facebook requires users to use their real names when registering their Facebook account. This makes Facebook almost non-anonymous. Therefore, the relationships of the users should be fixed in offline communities. The non-anonymity of Facebook offers an ideal online environment for investigating online identity. The essential features of the Facebook website are further discussed below.

2.5.4.1 Facebook Profile

The Facebook profile is a personal web space for users to describing themselves. Bobkowski, (2008, p. 6) states that Facebook profiles are principal means for users to present themselves. When a user signs up to become a Facebook member, s/he must build a personal profile. The profile includes categories of personal information, sex, birthday, relationship status, language, hometown, current city, work and education, religious views, political views, relationship or family pictures, interests, contact information and profile picture. Users have option to post the information in an ‘about me’ section to share with their network. When the users have built their profile, they can modify it any time. In addition, the Facebook profile also includes status update which can be edited by the user any time. Since the Facebook profile can show the user’s detailed information, the elements of the profile are significant.

2.5.4.2 Facebook Wall

A Facebook wall is considered a “public message board” where users can share and leave messages to others (Smock, 2010, p. 6). It “acts as a message board. The user’s wall includes information, pictures and videos that have either been shared by the user himself/herself or have been posted on the wall by other users. Any status updates that have been shared will also appear on the user’s wall” (Melcombe, 2011, p. 17). On Facebook wall, Facebook users can disclose their information, but they can control their Facebook wall by hiding some information which they do not wish to disclose to all of their Facebook friends or strangers.

2.5.4.3 Facebook Status

Facebook status is called a Facebook status update, which is defined as an update feature. These posts are normally short. It can be one sentence or one paragraph, but all these posts receive a time label to signify the specific time of the post. In the personal homepage of Facebook, users can update their status to express their opinions and their feelings, including happiness, sadness or frustration. People shared by the users can see the updated status when signing into the network (Melcombe, 2011, p. 16). Therefore, the user’s identity is shown clearly in this status with the language use and the users’ experiences and feelings. Below is one example.
Facebook users’ posts can be clearly seen, since this part cannot be hidden by the users. When people view the users’ Facebook homepages, all status can be identified. Therefore, their presentations are obvious to the viewers.

2.5.4.4 Feedback and Comments

On Facebook, viewers can respond to a status or an event posted by Facebook users through the link to the comments. These comments or feedback is added to the personal web page automatically with a timeline that is visible to other Facebook users (Awl, 2009, p. 89). When viewers visit Facebook users’ homepages, they can see all the comments and the feedback of Facebook users themselves from users’ timeline. Hence, this is also a way for users to present themselves.

2.6 Summary

In short, the related literature shows that the linguistic features and self-presentation are largely based on gender. The review of literature has explained the basis of the theoretical frameworks which can assist the data analysis for this study. The linguistic features can be easily found in online environment as they are portrayed similarly by men and women in reality (Amir et al., 2012). At the same time, people present themselves online in multiple ways (Zarghooni, 2007). In this study, Lakoff’s (1975) and Amir et al.’s (2012) linguistic features framework and Wee’s (2004) Singapore English particles are deemed to be relevant in the analysis of types of linguistic features on Facebook. Leary’s (1996), Huffaker’s (2004) and Zarghooni’s (2007) self-presentation theories are deemed to be related for analysing how people present themselves on Facebook. Besides, studies on Facebook and Facebook characteristics have also been discussed since they are related to the research area in this study. To date, there has been limited research studying both linguistic features and self-presentation in area of Facebook. Thus, the researcher has attempted to be analytical and critical with the review of literature in the area of linguistic features and self-presentation in face-to-face interaction and online. Hence, the procedure of data collection and analysis will be discussed in the next chapter.
CHAPTER THREE

METHODOLOGY

3.0 Introduction

This chapter includes the methodology employed in this study in seeking valid and reliable data to answer the research questions. With the review of previous research in Chapter 2, suitable theoretical frameworks for this study are provided. The participants’ profiles are introduced and the research instruments are discussed. Further, ethical consideration, the description of the procedures of data collection, methodology and the approach to analysing the data are also presented. To ensure the methods are sound and the instrument is feasible, a pilot study is carried out and findings are provided.

3.1 Theoretical Frameworks

The rise of SNSs has offered a new area for studying communication behaviour. Since Facebook has become more complex with the rapid growth of the user numbers, it has become an ideal networking venue to study how users communicate. Users present the self to their online audience through a variety of means that may or may not be the same as in face-to-face interactions. This has been mentioned in the preceding literature review.

Young adults aged 18 to 24 are the biggest group of Facebook users in Malaysia (Malaysia Facebook Statistics, 2012), thus studying a sample of this age group can help the researcher understand how young adults present themselves. Looking at the details of the Facebook profile may show what kind of linguistic features are used and how they present themselves.
In order to answer both research questions in tandem to the linguistic features young adults use when expressing their experiences and feelings on Facebook as well as how young adults use Facebook to present themselves through language (see Section 1.3, Chapter 1), this study follows two perspectives to form the theoretical frameworks.

With reference to the first research question, the frameworks from Lakoff (1975), Amir et al. (2012) and Wee (2004) are used to analyse the linguistic features in the data of this study (see Table 3.1) (see Sections 2.1.3, 2.4.1 and 2.1.5, Chapter 2 for details).

Table 3.1: Theoretical Frameworks on Language Use and Gender

In Lakoff’s (1975) study, nine types of linguistic features are used for analysing women’s language. Only five linguistic features are used in Amir et al.’s study (2012), namely empty adjectives, tag questions, hedges, intensifiers and initial adverbs since only these five types of linguistic features emerged in their data. Both these frameworks can be applied in face-to-face and online interaction through the transcribed data. Besides, Malaysian Chinese English particles are also found in this study. Wee (2004), has analysed the Chinese English particles in Singapore. There are mainly eight types of Singapore English particles used by Singapore Chinese in their spoken or informal written situations in her data, namely, ‘la/lah’, ‘ma’, ‘meh’, ‘liao’, ‘lor’, ‘leh’, ‘wat’, ‘hor’ and ‘hah’ (p. 1068). Tay et al. (2012) analysed English particles among Malaysian youth aged 20-30 on Facebook. Both Wee (2004) and Tay et al. (2012) in their research found that women use these particles more than men (see Section 2.1.5, Chapter 2 for details). Since Malaysia has intimate contact with Singapore’s development in history and both of them are multicultural and multilingual countries, they have some similarities in the use of these particles.

Theoretical frameworks of Lakoff (1975), Amir et al. (2012) and Wee (2004) can be used in this study to identify the linguistic features that the participants use as well as for easy classification into categories. Thus, the researcher asserts it is suitable for this study to use their frameworks to analyse Facebook homepages. In this study, Lakoff’s (1975) nine types of linguistic features and Amir et al.’s (2012) five types of linguistic features and Wee’s (2004) Singapore Chinese English particles are used to analyse the data.

To answer the second research question of self-presentation through language use, the theoretical frameworks from theories of Leary (1996), Huffaker (2004) and Zarghooni (2007) are adapted. A moderate modification is undertaken to conform to the cultural nuances of the Malaysian Chinese community. Previous research on self-presentation can be observed in Table 3.2 (see Sections 2.2.1 and 2.4.2, Chapter 2 for details).

Leary (1996) states that people in face-to-face interactions present themselves mainly in four ways, self-descriptions, nonverbal behaviour (such as physical appearance, emotion expression as well as gestures and movements), attitude statements and social association. Zarghooni (2007), based on Leary’s theory, points out that in the Facebook website, users present themselves using personal information, images, emoticons and topics. Huffaker (2004) in his study of online identity and language use among teen bloggers proposes that bloggers present themselves by disclosing personal information, online name choices, avatar selections, emotive features and common topics. Aspects of ‘gesture and movement’ and social association’ proposed by Leary (1996) are not available in this online study. Thus, this study limits to only five aspects of self-presentation namely, personal information, online name choices, topics, images as well as emotive features to analyse the data.

In sum, since SNSs are becoming more popular, researchers need to develop their findings in the online environment. Although many studies have been carried out on SNSs, a rich study of the kind of language used by male and female young adults and the way they present themselves on Facebook has not been conducted thoroughly. This study aims to explore that understanding and give insights into the kind of language male and female Malaysian Chinese undergraduates may use to express their opinions and feelings on Facebook and how they present themselves through language use on Facebook.

3.2 Participants

According to the Malaysia Facebook Statistics (2012), there are 13,154,060 Facebook users. Among them 54% are males and 46% are females. The largest age group is currently 18 to 24. Thus, young adults in Malaysia are a significant portion of Facebook users.

For the purpose of this study, the method of stratified sampling is used in order to gain insights representative of a particular sub-grouping within a specific stratum. A stratified sampling is a probability sampling method in which the entire target population is divided into different subgroups and then the final subjects are selected proportionally from the different subgroups (http://sociology.about.com/od/Types-of-Samples/a/Stratified-Sample.htm). Since the topic under investigation is relevant to the Malaysian Chinese community and gender, a purposive sampling procedure is essential.
Hence, particular attention is dedicated to the selection of the participants in order to get the most appropriate subjects for the study.

This study focuses on young adults. Specifically, the participants of this research are those from the age of 20 extending through 24 years. Since all of them are undergraduates, it can be considered to be a homogenous sample.
For this study, 30 Malaysian Chinese undergraduates (15 males and 15 females) aged 20-24 from UM are selected as the participants. All of them had ever been educated in Chinese school for one or more years. A convenient sampling is used in selecting the participants. Because all of them are acquaintances or friends of the researcher, their actual identities are valid and known to the researcher. Their age range can be observed in Table 3.3.

The selected participants fulfilled the following criteria:

1. They are undergraduates from UM.
2. They have posted more than 30 status updates written in English only, ever since they started having Facebook accounts.
3. The participants have used Facebook accounts for at least one year.

3.3 Instrument: Facebook Personal Homepages

In this study, the instrument used for the collection of linguistic features and self-presentation is the Facebook personal homepages posted by thirty Malaysian Chinese undergraduates who use their Facebook accounts in their daily lives. They also use Facebook to express their feelings and opinions about their daily lives, studies and interesting happenings.
The participants’ Facebook homepages are selected from the researcher’s acquaintances or friends (see Section 3.2) from the website of facebook.com and the URL is https://www.facebook.com/ (see Figure 3.1). Participants’ Facebook homepages, status updates and comments are collected over a span of six months from January to June of 2012 to analyse linguistic features and to identify how they present themselves.

Source: https://www.facebook.com/nancy.yun.1?ref=tn_tnmn

The main emphasis in this study is contrastive in nature, focusing on the similarities and differences in linguistic features and self-presentation employed by Malaysian Chinese male and female undergraduates.

3.4 Methodology
A qualitative study is rooted in the hypothesis that human behaviour varies from natural phenomena (Jariah Mohd. Jan, 1999). Human behaviour differs due to every individual’s understanding, experience and insights (ibid., pp. 228-229). Neuman (2006) also points out that utilising a qualitative research design enables the researcher to be open to unexpected results and it can further change the research trend during the data collection process. Thus, qualitative research is an exploratory research of new areas to shape new theories.

Creswell (1994, p. 145) proposes that the qualitative researchers begin their studies with vaguely formulated research questions and develop insights from the pattern of data. Based on Creswell’s (1994) statement, this research uses a qualitative approach which begins with research questions established at the beginning of this study and followed by analysis of data and discussion of the findings. This research uses a qualitative approach where the data are presented in a descriptive manner with the aim of providing detailed analyses and justify interpretation of the linguistic features and self-presentation proffered by both genders. To highlight significant findings, data is qualified in tables and figures.

3.5 Ethical Consideration

According to the Association of Internet Researchers (AoIR) (2012), there are different contexts for online research. It can be in an interactive form such as a text and an audio recording or in an online community. The researcher is also required to make a decision on how to interact with participants. Since all digital information to some degree involves personal information, thus even people online may have certain perceptions of privacy as their personal information can be identified. Thus, permission, anonymity and confidentiality are necessary.

At the initial stage, messages are sent to each participant to gain her/his permission to use her/his Facebook homepage for the researcher’s current study (see Appendix A).
The researcher informs the users that their information will be kept confidential. Participants’ actual names and their profile pictures will not be displayed (see Appendix B), thus retaining anonymity when coding their homepages. Labels such as F1, F2, and so on are used to indicate female students while M1, M2 and so on represented the male students. Hence, there is no violation of confidentiality with these labelling.

3.6 Data Collection Procedure

This section explains the procedures in gathering the data through the Facebook personal homepages. A purposive sampling is employed to collect thirty male and female Facebook homepages from January to June of 2012. The status and feedback in their personal Facebook homepages are then sorted out into groups based on gender. During the data collecting period, the researcher is merely an observer and not an involved participant.

3.6.1 Data Collection Procedure of Linguistic Features

Student postings are the key to the investigation of language use. The selected Facebook homepages contain a relatively high number of postings, providing rich data for analysis. These postings not only include the initial postings of male and female Facebook users but also the responses from those who visit their homepages.

Data collection for linguistic features is divided into three steps namely; first, once permissions from the 30 participants are obtained, the researcher copies their status and feedback from their Facebook homepages. The collected data are then sorted into two groups by gender. Finally, the data of the male and female participants are analysed separately using a word counting tool and my checklist (see Sections 3.7.3 and 3.7.4, Chapter 3).
3.6.2 Data Collection Procedure of Self-presentation

In order to collect the data of participants’ self-presentation through language use in their Facebook homepages, two steps are employed. First of all, the researcher takes the screen shot of 30 participants’ Facebook homepages. The screen shots are then divided by gender before they are ready to be analysed.

3.7 Data Analysis Procedure

Content analysis is a generic name for a variety of textual analyses that typically include comparing, contrasting, and categorising a set of data (Schwandt, 1997). It is also described as a research method utilised to analyse web content, identify text by using a set of procedures to make the information sources valid from the text, especially appropriate for Web content analysis (Neuendorf, 2002; Steinfield et al., 2005). In this study, the linguistic features are analysed in terms of occurrence number and average numbers comparing with the total numbers in the postings of the male and female participants’ Facebook homepages. Nevertheless, aspects of self-presentation are analysed by gender in percentages.

3.7.1 Data Analysis Procedure of Linguistic features

Since this research attempts to analyse the content of participants’ Facebook homepages, therefore, content analysis is used. In the first phase, Computer Support Group’s (CSG) word counting tool (see Section 3.7.3) and My checklist (see Section 3.7.4) programmes are used to examine participants’ linguistic features by analysing their Facebook status and feedback data. More specifically, first of all, the researcher puts the collected male and female Facebook users’ status and feedback data into the first column of the work counting tool. Next, when the researcher clicks the button ‘word count’, the number of occurrences of each word is displayed automatically in the second column (see Figure 3.2). Then, based on the definition of each linguistic feature proposed by Lakoff (1975), Amir et al. (2012) and Wee (2004) as well as from the results in the second column, the researcher divides the words into different categories such as intensifiers, hedges. Since each word has multi-functions, the researcher needs to check on the number of occurrences of the words used as a particular linguistic feature. Thus, my checklist is used to verify this.

To further check words appearing in the word counting tool, first, the researcher opens the male and female Facebook status and feedback data in the checklist software. Next, the researcher enters the word found in the word counting tool into the ‘find tasks’ of the checklist. Then, sentences including the input word would appear (see Figure 3.3). From the sentences, the researcher can identify whether the input word matches the kind of linguistic feature put forward by Lakoff (1975) and Amir et al. (2012), and at the same time, the occurrence number of the input words are also counted by the researcher.

In addition, the researcher also observes and categorises the male and female status and feedback data to identify linguistic features which cannot be found by using the word counting tool and my checklist.

3.7.2 Data Analysis Procedure of Self-presentation

In the second phase, the analysis of the self-presentation addresses answers to the second research question. The self-presentation from the thirty Facebook homepages is analysed by applying the theories of Leary (1996), Huffaker (2004) and Zarghooni (2007) (see Section 3.1). Huffaker’s (2004) code booklet is adapted to analyse data (see Appendix D). First of all, the researcher lists the five aspects of self-presentation in Huffaker’s (2004) code booklet. Secondly, the participants are divided into two groups
Thirdly, the researcher categorises participants’ self-presentation into different aspects proposed by Leary (1996), Huffaker (2004) and Zarghooni (2007). Apart from that, with respect to topics and emoticons which cannot be found in the Facebook homepages, the researcher observes and categorises topics and emoticons from the status and feedback data by gender.

3.7.3 Word Counting Tool

A word counting tool, created by Computer Support Group (CSG), is usually used to count the word frequency and characters in website postings. This tool is suitable for designers to improve websites and for students and others to enhance their writing skills. However, this tool is served only for online users since they have internet links (Amir et al., 2012).

In this study, the word counting tool is applied to check the word frequency and to identify the linguistic features used by the participants in their Facebook postings. The interface of the word counting tool can be seen below.
Two columns are shown in Figure 3.2. The first column is for the input of the data while the other column is to display the results of the word count, frequency or the alpha order of words. Besides, total number of the characters can also be checked at the bottom of the tool. In this study, this tool is used to count the word frequency. The data are from the male and female Facebook users’ status and feedback.

3.7.4 My Checklist

My Checklist is a simple tool to help users keep track their daily to-do list. (http://my-checklist.en.softonic.com/). It allows users to add relatively lengthy notes to each task due to the program's larger interface. It also allows users to remove a task from the list once it's been completed and simply checking it off to indicate it's been done.
In Amir et al.’s (2012) research, my checklist is adopted in identifying the categories of linguistic features. According to Amir et al. (2012), my checklist can be used to observe the linguistic features based on the word counting tool. Using the checklist, the researcher can identify the occurrence of each linguistic feature in the postings.

In this study, my checklist is employed to observe specific words emerging in each category of linguistic features which appear in the Facebook wall status and feedback over six months. The interface of my checklist is shown in Figure 3.3.

My checklist comprises specific words for every linguistic feature with additional columns for new findings. For example, ‘good’ can be used not only after copulas as a predicative but also before nouns as an attribute. Only those put before nouns are viewed as empty adjectives. When word ‘good’ is put in the find task, all the sentences... in the data will appear. Then the researcher can identify the use of ‘good’ as empty adjectives.

3.8 Data coding reliability and validity

In this section, data coding reliability and validity are presented in order to obtain the reliable and valid data for analysis.

3.8.1 Linguistic Features

For checking the reliability of linguistic features, this study uses internal reliability to check for the consistency of the results obtained from the study. The reliability is evaluated by two members of the academic staff who are specialists in sociolinguistics in Faculty of Languages and Linguistics, University of Malaya. Only six types of linguistic features are found in the data. The reliability is assessed by each academic staff using percentage: 1) intensifiers: 100% and 100%; 2) hedges: 90% and 95%; 3) empty adjectives, 95% and 100%; 4) tag questions: 80% and 100%; 5) initial adverbs: 80% and 90%; 6) Malaysian Chinese English particles: 87% and 85%. Furthermore, the analysis is then refined based on the feedback received from the discussion with these specialists.

3.8.2 Self-Presentation

The reliability of self-presentation is also evaluated by the same members of the academic staff evaluating linguistic features. The reliability is assessed by percentage by each staff. This includes: 1) personal information, 85% and 90%; 2) online name choices, 89% and 93%; 3) profile image selections, 80% and 88%; 4) emotive features, 81% and 97%; 5) topics, 86% and 90%. In addition, the analysis is later refined in accordance to the specialists’ feedback.
3.9 Pilot Study

A pilot study is considered as a feasibility study and it can test a research instrument such as a new data collection method before the collected data is used for the actual study. A pilot study can also be utilised to examine various ideas to ensure that the ideas and the methods are sound before conducting the main study (Thabane et al., 2010, pp. 4-10). Thus, the overall purpose of this pilot study is to check whether the instrument of the Facebook personal homepage can be adopted to achieve the objectives of the actual study. If the results of the pilot study can achieve the planned research aims, it then shows that the instrument is feasible to be carried out in the main study.

Based on the research design, six undergraduates (3 females and 3 males) are selected for the purpose of the pilot study to evaluate the reliability of the study. The reliability is evaluated by ratio and mean. The instrument used in the pilot study is the personal homepages of the Facebook. Linguistic features are examined in their Facebook homepages and their one-week status and feedback from 25 to 31 of October in 2012 (see Appendix C for details).

Table 3.4 indicates the number of posts over seven days by males and females respectively. It is found that females post more status (40) compared with males (25).
from 25 to 31 of October of 2012. The female participants tend to be more active in sharing their status and providing their feedback to responses from others regarding the said posts.

The results of the pilot study also reveal that male and female undergraduates differ in the use of linguistic features. The differences in the frequency of these six types of linguistic features can be due to the significant difference in the number of postings namely; male (25) and female (40) (see Table 3.5).

As can be seen in Table 3.5, females use more empty adjectives than males (F:M=21:3).

Examples that depict their use of empty adjectives are as follows:

26 F1: Jie Wei’s computer is this song ... This is a nice song ... training camp last year (F1 describes the song she heard last year to her friend)

54 F1: come to me .." read, read, ... lah ... This should is a beautiful love slightly ... (F1 talks about the poem of love with her friends)

The females participants also use more initial adverbs (F:M=14:6) for example, He choose math... Actually, this is a hard task (line 75, F1) and tag questions (F:M=14:5) such as humid... it will rain, isn’t it? (line 41, F1).
As for the linguistic features used by the female participants, the most used linguistic feature is empty adjectives (N=21) and the least used is intensifiers (N=10).

Among the linguistic features used by the male participants, the initial adverb is used most (N=6). For example, finally, find this pure demo version of this nice movie ~ (line 8, M3).

Analysis of data indicates the existence of gender variations in self-presentation of the participants. Table 3.6 shows that the female participants reveal more personal information (F:M=2.4:1.9) and use more emoticons (F:M=2.1:0.5) compared to males. For example, all the female participants reveal their age while only one male participant shows his age.

With regard to the self-presentation revealed by the female participants, the personal information is the most revealed aspect (Mean score=2.4). Male participants however use more full names and profile images compared to the other aspects of self – presentation they reveal.

In general, the pilot study results indicate that the personal homepages of Facebook as a primary instrument are feasible for the actual study and thus, no items are required to be omitted.
CHAPTER FOUR

DATA ANALYSIS AND DISCUSSION

4.0 Introduction

This study seeks to explore the various types of linguistic features used by male and female Malaysian Chinese undergraduates on their Facebook homepages as well as the way they present themselves on their Facebook websites. The findings are compiled by means of investigating and analysing the data from personal homepages of the Facebook.

The data analysis and discussion are carried out in two phases. In the first phase, different types of linguistic features emerging from the data are analysed based on Lakoff’s (1975) and Amir et al.’s (2012) language and gender frameworks. The analysis includes the status and feedback of the participants in their Facebook homepages. In the second phase, the researcher analyses the way male and female participants present themselves in line with Leary (1996), Huffaker (2004) and Zarghooni’s (2007) self-presentation frameworks. An overview and gender comparison for each distribution is then presented.

4.1 Number of Postings, Number of Words and Gender

This section presents the number of posts in their Facebook homepages by the male and female participants from January to June 2012. The researcher analyses the status and feedback on the Facebook wall which are only written in English since this is a study of English language. Apart from that, the number of words on the Facebook wall status and feedback used by the male (n=15) and female (n=15) Facebook users is explained.
The total number of their status updates and feedback is counted and tabulated. The details can be observed in Table 4.1.

Table 4.1: Number of Posts, Number of Words and Gender

| Month   | Males (n=15) | | Females (n=15) | |
|---------|--------------| |----------------|------------------|
|         | Number of Posts | Number of Words | Number of Posts | Number of Words |
| June    | 195           | 3666            | 201            | 4819            |
| May     | 206           | 3782            | 215            | 4457            |
| April   | 184           | 4154            | 262            | 5855            |
| March   | 164           | 3369            | 256            | 5248            |
| February| 151           | 3372            | 205            | 3956            |
| January | 137           | 3150            | 162            | 3933            |
| Total   | 1037          | 21,493          | 1301           | 28,268          |

From Table 4.1, it is evident that both male and female participants post a number of status updates in their Facebook homepages. However, the females post more status updates compared to the males (F:M=1301:1037). The males post the most status updates in May and the least status updates in January while the females post the most status updates in April and the least status updates in January. This may be due to the fact that students are not very busy with their studies in April and May while in January they are preparing for their examination and thus there is limited time as they need to focus more on their studies. Nevertheless, during April and May, the females post more status updates and feedback than the males. Even in the least posted status update month of January, the females still post more status than that of the males. The number of postings by males and females indicates that the females are more active in their Facebook homepages compared to the males.

As seen in Table 4.1, the females use more words than males (F:M=28268: 21493) in their status updates and feedbacks in the duration of six months. Perhaps this is because women are good at expressing their feelings and ideas (Lakoff, 1975). However, the results of this study are different from Huffaker’s (2004) findings. In his gender study of American teen bloggers in 2004, he reports that no gender differences are found in word counts. This is a study on Facebook, thus, the different results can be attributed to different age groups of people with different cultural backgrounds and different online context as Huffaker (1002, p. 21) states that there are notable differences between genders within different CMC arenas.

4.2 Linguistic Features Used by Male and Female Facebook Users

This section presents an analysis of the linguistic features used by male and female Facebook users on their status and comments on their Facebook walls over a period of six months from January to June in 2012. Based on the analysis, Six categories of linguistic features by participants, namely, intensifiers, empty adjectives, lexical hedges, initial adverbs, tag questions and Malaysian Chinese English particles are found in the data compared to the ten types of linguistic features by Lakoff (1975) (see Chapter 2, Section 2.1.3), five types of linguistic features by Amir et al. (2012) (see Chapter 2, Section 2.4.1) and one type of Malaysian Chinese English particles by Wee (see Chapter 2, 2.1.5).

These linguistic features are analysed by using a comparative analysis between male and female participants. The male participants (N=15) are identified as M1, M2 and so on while female participants (N=15) are labelled as F1, F2 and so on. In each subsection, the types and functions of each type of linguistic feature are analysed and discussed. The types of linguistic features are organised by number of occurrences and average number by both genders. The number of occurrences refers to the frequency of words in each gender while the average number means that the number of occurrences in each type of linguistic feature is divided by the total number of words by each gender.
Examples of the most used types of linguistic features are randomly selected by using SPSS software since the simple random sampling can be used to obtain a representative sample in the total population (Creswell, 1994). Line numbers and sentences are also provided in each example (more details can be seen in Appendix G). The details for each type of linguistic features can be seen in the following subsections.

4.2.1 Intensifiers

An intensifier is considered as a device which people use to show their strong emotions or to make strong assertions (Lakoff, 1975, p. 55). For example, “It's mean that I'm still very very young!!! (line 97, F8)”.

4.2.1.1 Types of Intensifiers Used by Males and Females

The analysis of the data shows that both male and female Facebook users use several types of intensifiers in the status updates and feedback. In order to provide more information on the use of intensifiers, a more detailed analysis of the type of intensifiers used by the participants in this study is presented. Based on Lakoff’s (1975) intensifier definition, eight intensifiers found by the researcher in the data are investigated for this study, ‘very’, ‘so’, ‘too’, ‘really’, ‘such’, ‘super’, ‘totally’ and ‘absolutely’. The number of occurrences and the average number of intensifiers compared with the total number of words used by male and female participants respectively can be seen in Table 4.2.

It is apparent from Table 4.2 that both male and female participants use intensifiers (F, N=610; M, N=372). The most used type in intensifiers by both genders is ‘so’ (N=398).

This supports Lakoff’s (1975) statement that the most commonly used intensifier is ‘so’.

Table 4.2 shows that the total number of occurrences for the use of ‘very’ and ‘really’ are almost equal (‘very’ N=182, ‘really’ N=180).

The results also show that the total average number of intensifiers used by the females are higher than the males (F:M=0.0216:0.0173). This seems to support Lakoff’s (1975) and Amir el al.’s (2012) views that women use intensifiers more than men. Lakoff (1975, p. 55) mentions that when people use intensifiers, they tend to show their strong emotions or to make strong assertions. The use of this type of linguistic feature also shows that the users are expressive when describing something (Amir et al., 2012).

For the use of ‘so’, the differences of the average number of ‘so’ used by the males and the females are slight (F:M=0.00803:0.00795). Besides, the females average higher number of ‘very’ and ‘really’ than the males (F:M=0.00399:0.00321, F:M=0.00467:0.00223). The results are consistent with Bradac et al. (1995) and Sharp’s (2012) views that women use ‘very’ and ‘really’ more than men in conversation. When ‘very’ and ‘really’ are used as intensifiers they are to add little content to a statement (Leaper & Robnett, 2011, p. 130). Hence, in this study the higher average numbers for the use of ‘very’ and ‘really’ by the females than the males show that the females have higher tendency to use ‘very’ and ‘really’ to exaggerate the degree of their statements than the males. Apart from that, the females also use ‘super’ (N=34) which cannot be found in any males’ posts (N=0).

However, for the use of ‘such’ (M:F=0.00074:0.00024), the males average higher numbers than the females. For the use of ‘too’ by the males and the females, the results reveal that the males and the females use the number of “too” almost equally ‘too’ (M:F=0.00279:0.00276). This is different from Amir et al.’s (2012) findings that women use higher number of ‘too’ than men. When ‘too’ and “quite” are used as an intensifier, it is a boosting device to increase the degree of the statement (Quirk et al., 1985, p. 589; Amir et al., 2012, p. 112).

As for the intensifiers used by the female participants, the most used intensifier is ‘so’ (N=227), followed by ‘really’ (N=132), ‘very’ (N=113), ‘too’ (N=78) and ‘super’ (N=34). The least used intensifier by females is ‘absolutely’ (N=9). With respect to males, the most used intensifier is ‘so’ (N=171), followed by ‘very’ (N=69), ‘too’ (N=60) and ‘really’ (N=48) while the least used intensifier by males is ‘super’ (N=0).

4.2.1.2 Functions of Intensifiers Used by Males and Females

In comparing the use of ‘so’ by the male and the female participants, Table 4.2 shows that the difference for the average number of ‘so’ used by both genders are slight (F:M=0.00803:0.00795). ‘So’ is used as an intensifier modifies an adjective or an adverb and to increase the emphasis on the degree of the statement (Kuha, 2005, p. 217).

In this study, both male and female participants use ‘so’ to stress the degree of their feelings in their utterances. The data analysis also reveals that the females sometimes are more likely to repeat ‘so’ to stress their feelings while this is not reflected in the males’ utterances. Some examples for the use of ‘so’ in the data are listed below:

Example 1:
4 F7 : hee sun is so so so pretty n humorous XD (F1 and her friends talk about the video of 'Running man raw')
199 F11 : Leehom is soooooo~ happy. (F11 shows her opinion about Lee hom’s new picture)
14 M2 : Don't sleep does not know that I was so tired and fell unconscious for four hour (M2 tells his friends he cannot sleep)
112 M10 : Action Research!! troll face..why u so difficult?? :'( (M10 expresses his feeling about the action research)

In Example 1, F7 (line 4) uses ‘so’ three times to strengthen her feelings towards the video she has watched. F11 (line 199) expresses her opinion about Lee hom’s new picture, by repeating the letter ‘o’ six times to exaggerate her strong feeling. M2 (line 14) tells his friend that he cannot sleep, by using ‘so’ to exaggerate the degree of his sad feeling. M10 (line 112) uses the word ‘so’ to emphasises his frustrated feeling.

In this study, the higher average number of intensifiers by the female participants than the males (F:M= 0.0216:0.0173) support Lakoff’s (1975, 2004) and Amir et al.’s (2012) view that women use more intensifiers than men. The female participants in this study average higher number of intensifiers than the male participants. This also shows that the females have a higher tendency in using intensifiers to strengthen their feelings or enhance the degree of their utterances than the males. Nevertheless, sometimes this type of linguistic feature creates the impression that the users are expressive and exaggerating in describing something. This can be seen in Example 1.
4.2.2 Empty Adjectives

An empty adjective is actually difficult to define because it is abstract and expresses someone’s emotions and feelings. Lakoff (1975) states that an ‘empty’ adjective is a group of adjective which is used not only to express the literal meaning but also to express an emotional reaction from the speaker or the writer such as ‘divine’, ‘cute’ and ‘nice’ (pp. 11-12).

4.2.2.1 Types of Empty Adjectives Used by Males and Females

Lakoff (1975, p. 12; 2004, p. 43, p. 78) divides empty adjectives into two groups. One is neutral empty adjectives which both genders use such as cool, good, terrific, neat and great. The other is common empty adjectives used by women such as adorable, sweet, charming, lovely and awesome.

Lakoff’s (1975) empty adjective categories selections have been drawn on and investigated in this study. Seventeen empty adjectives are found in the data for the purpose of investigating in this study. The types of empty adjectives, the number of occurrences and the average number used by male and female Facebook users respectively can be observed in Table 4.3.

As Table 4.3 shows, the most used empty adjective by both genders is ‘nice’ (N=109), followed by ‘good’ (N=106), happy’ (N=83), ‘cute’ (N=43) and ‘sweet’ (N=36). The females use higher average number of empty adjectives than the males (F:M=0.0124:0.0079). The results in this study supports Lakoff (1975) and Amir et al.’s (2012) statements that women use more empty adjectives that men. Comparing the average number of the empty adjectives categories used by the males and the females, the results reveal that the females average more number of neutral empty adjectives (F:M=0.0091:0.0051) and common empty adjectives (F:M=0.0033:0.0028) than the males.
With respect to the females, the most used empty adjective by is ‘nice’ (N=74), followed by ‘good’ (N=67) and ‘happy’ (N=65), ‘cute’ (N=29), ‘beautiful’ (N=26) and ‘sweet’ (N=24). For all of these types of empty adjectives, the females have higher average number than the males. With respect to the males, the most used empty adjective is ‘good’ (N=39), followed by ‘nice’ (N=35). Apart from that, the males also use higher average number of ‘wonderful’, ‘awesome’, ‘funny’ ‘adorable’ and ‘bad’ than the females (See Table 4.3). The results in this study reveal that the males have the tendency for using common empty adjectives. Empty adjectives can be used to express emotional reactions from a speaker or writer to show their admiration (Lakoff, 1975). This means that not only the females like to express their emotional reactions to describe things, but the males also like to use empty adjectives to show their admiration.

4.2.2.2 Functions of Empty Adjectives Used by Males and Females

As for the most used neutral empty adjective ‘nice’ (N=109) by both genders, the results reveal that the females use higher average number of ‘nice’ (F:M=0.00262:0.00163) than the males. ‘Nice’ as a neutral empty adjective is used to enhance the degree of the speaker’s emotions (Lakoff, 1975). The higher number of “nice” used by the females shows that female participants have higher tendency to use “nice” to increase the degree of their emotions. Examples of ‘nice’ taken from the data are below.

Example 2:

68  F1   : come find me la-tis Mercedes is so nice to play~ (F1 talks about the ‘mercedes’ she cooked)
135 F6   : happily ever after super nice ending ♥ ♥ cry from beginning til end~ (F6 talks about the movie she watched)
46  M4  : Here is a nice example of why you should keep these lovely little things ;) (M4 talks about the picture of a little pencil)
217 M15 : tis 1 nice listen....(M5 talks about the song he has listened)
In Example 2, F1 (line 68) describes the ‘mercedes’ she cooked by using ‘so nice’ to show her excitement. F6 (line 135) uses ‘super nice’ to express her excitement about the movie’s happy ending. M4 (line 46) uses ‘nice’ to show his positive opinion to the picture of a little pencil. M15 (line 217) uses ‘nice’ to show that the song is good to listen to. The females are more likely to use intensifiers such as ‘super’ and ‘so’ to enhance the degree of their utterances (see Example 2), which are seldom found in the males’ utterances. This demonstrates that when the females talk about something, they are more likely to incorporate their feelings and emotions into their expressions than the males. Besides, the females tend to use different types of intensifiers to modify the empty adjectives. This shows that they have fewer inhibitions about revealing their emotions and they are more expressive than the males.

In addition, the most used common empty adjective by both the males and the females is ‘cute’. The results show that the females use higher average number of ‘cute’ (F:M=0.00103:0.00065) than the males. This is consistent with Amir, et al.’s (2012) and Lakoff’s (1975) statements that women use more common empty adjectives to describe and exaggerate the degree of a particular thing than men. Some examples for the use of ‘cute’ are illustrated below.

Example 3:

338  F1  : oh my~~~ recently got so many tis kind of mv v such cute song~!!!
       (F1 uses ‘such cute’ to show her excitement of the movie song)

146  F14 : thx dear for the super cute Daisy ^^ n special thx to all my friends.
        (F14 uses ‘super cute’ to show her opinion of her friend)

132  M6  : 2 little cute brother~~ (M6 uses ‘cute’ to show his opinion of the two brother)

145  M4  : The most cute 1 is The Hulk ... LOL! in love wth kolej ^^ (M4 uses ‘the most cute’ to show his opinion of the hulk)

In this study, males use higher average number of common empty adjectives in ‘wonderful (M:F=0.00028:0.00014)’, ‘awesome (0.00033:0.00011)’, ‘funny
(0.00033:0.00011), ‘adorable (0.00019:0)’ and ‘bad (0.00009:0)’ than the females, though neither gender utilises a high number of empty adjectives (see Table 4.3). This indicates that males do not think using ‘women’s language’ (i.e. common empty adjective) damages their face as asserted by Lakoff (2004, p. 43, p. 78). On the contrary, by using common empty adjective, the male participants show their admiration or emotional reactions in their postings to describe something that is familiar to them.

4.2.3 Lexical Hedges

The definition of hedges was first put forward by Lakoff (1975, pp. 53-54), in which hedges are defined as “words that convey the sense that the speakers are uncertain about what they are saying, or cannot vouch for the accuracy of the statement. For example, “I think it’s better to massage them, after all they are god... haha (line 172, F2)”. There is another justifiable use in which the hedge is used to decrease the possible unfriendly or unkindness of a statement. It is used for the sake of politeness” such as should and a little bit. Crompton (1997, p. 280) lists the forms of hedges in his academic spoken interaction study.

- Copulas other than be (e.g. It seems that the cat is hungry.)
- Lexical verbs (e.g. I guess you won it.)
- Modal verbs (e.g. He should come here early.)
- Probability adverbs (e.g. Maybe it will rain.)
- Probability adjectives (e.g. It is possible to finish this task on time.)

4.2.3.1 Types of Lexical Hedges Used by Males and Females

The lexical hedges can be one word or multi-word and they carry the meaning in lexical content, prosodies or syntax. In this study, only lexical hedges which are used to express lexical content are investigated. Based on the definition of lexical hedges by Lakoff (1975) and Crompton (1997, p. 280) lists of the lexical hedges, twenty lexical hedges found by the researcher in the data (see Table 4.4).

The forms of lexical hedges, the occurrence number and the average number of lexical hedges compared with the total number of words used by male and female Facebook users are displayed in Table 4.5.
According to Table 4.5, the males use higher average number of lexical hedges than the females (M:F=0.0107:0.0093). Among the forms of lexical hedges, the most used form is lexical verbs and the results show that the average numbers of ‘lexical verbs’ used by the males is higher than the females (M:F=0.0065:0.0059).
As for the forms of lexical hedges used by the males, the most used form is ‘lexical verbs’ (N=140), followed by probability verbs (N=58), modal verbs (N=20), copulas other than be (N=13). On the other hand, the most used form by the females is ‘lexical verbs’ (N=165), followed by probability adverbs (N=38), modal verbs (N=22), copulas other than be, (N=5). Thus, the results show that both the males and the females use lexical verbs more in comparison with other forms of lexical hedges.

The most used lexical hedges is ‘think’ (N=112), followed by ‘I feel’ (N=60), ‘should’ (N=56), ‘well’ (N=48), ‘I mean’ (N=44). For the males, the most used lexical hedge is ‘think’ (N=51), followed by ‘I feel’ (N=31), ‘well’ (N=25), ‘should’ (N=21) and ‘I mean’ (N=19). With respect to the females, the most used lexical hedge is ‘think’ (N=61), followed by ‘should’ (N=35), ‘I feel’ (N=29), ‘I mean (N=25) and ‘well’ (N=23).

4.2.3.2 Functions of Lexical Hedges Used by Males and Females

Table 4.5 shows that the most used form of lexical hedge by both genders is lexical verbs such as ‘think’. Comparing the use of ‘think’ by the males and the females, the average numbers show that the males use higher average number of ‘think’ (M:F=0.00237:0.00216) than the females. Lexical verbs such as ‘think’ show the speaker’s personal evaluation or make the utterance less threatening (Riekkinen, 2009, pp. 47-48). Some examples taken from the data are listed below.

Example 4:

66 M3 : I think u look stress la when i BARELY meet u....haih.... (M3 and his friend talk about stress in studying)
105 M13 : thanks for u all opinion...in short, i think this is the priority issue. (M13 talks about feeling guilty about not reading books the whole day to his friend)
149 F3 : i think we better focus on sth else la, cos the staff oso need to back home. (F3 and her friend talk about faculty library's opening hour) 165 F15 : It's ok, I think I can still survive with this. God bless me. (F15 expresses her feeling for staying in the shop at midnight)

As seen from example 4, M3 (line 66) makes a joke on his friend by using ‘I think’ to stress his personal opinion that his friend ‘look stress’ is because of few meetings with him. M13 (line 105) uses ‘I think’ to show his regretful feeling that he should have read books. F3 (line 149) uses I think’ to express her personal opinion and make her utterance more acceptable. F15 (line 165) expresses her negative feelings when staying in the shop at midnight, by using 'I think’ to show her personal opinion that she can survive because of God’s blessing.

For the use of probability adverbs by both genders in the forms of lexical hedges, Table 4.5 shows that the most used probability adverb is ‘well’ (N=48). As for the use of ‘well’ by the males and the females, the results show that the males average higher number of ‘well’ than the females (M:F= M:F=0.00116:0.00081). When ‘well’ is used as a hedge, it normally appears at the beginning of the sentence to show speaker’s hesitations or to soften their utterances or to avoid critical comments from others (Riekkinen, 2009, p. 47). In this study, the males using higher number of “well” than the females indicates that the males also have higher tendency to use ‘well’ to soften their utterances or to avoid critical comments from others. Examples used by the males and the females are below.

Example 5:

4 M2 : Zowin Wong haha, well, it was going to ask her ~ haha ~ (M2 and his friend talk about his trip to Guilain) 146 M7 : well, study time (M7 expresses that it is time to study) 187 F3 : Well, next year Lang Bolan poetess Xinbo Szymborska's masterpieces “love at first sight” and “Turn Left Turn Right” translated version of it! (F3 and her friend talk about poetry) 76 F5 : well, kinda actually... haha!! =p (F5 and her friend talk about the man they met)
Example 5 shows that both the males and the females in this example use ‘well’ to soften their utterances.

In general, in this study both male and female participants use lexical hedges to soften their utterances or to express their hesitation in an indirect way. This supports Lakoff’s (1975) and Riekkinen’s (2009, p. 62) views that hedges can be used to make things fuzzier for the sake of politeness.

Furthermore, Table 4.5 also shows that the males reveal higher average number of lexical hedges than the females (M:F=0.0107:0.0093). This is different from the points by Lakoff (1975) and Amir et al. (2012) that women use more hedges than men.

4.2.4 Initial Adverbs

Crawford (1995, p. 30) defines an initial adverb as a word or a phrase being used at the beginning of a sentence with an adverb. It can be a word or a phrase, which is used to modify a phrase or a clause. It shows manner, time, place, cause, or degree and answers questions like "how," "when," "where," "how much", "firstly", "actually" (Amir, et al., 2012). For example, “wow, actually i wish to convert to biology XD. but i m weak in memorizing things..mayb even worse..haha. (line 232, F2).”

4.2.4.1 Types of Initial Adverbs Used by Males and Females

In this study, only the words as initial adverbs are investigated, and not phrases which are used as initial adverbs. Based on Crawford (1995) and Amir et al.’s (2012) definition of initial adverbs, in this study, twenty four initial adverbs found by the researcher are investigated. The number of occurrences and the average number of types of initial adverbs used by male and female Facebook users are illustrated in Table 4.6.

In Table 4.6, it shows that the males average higher number of initial adverbs than the females (M:F=0.0042:0.0024) The initial adverb most used by both genders is ‘actually’ (N=35), followed by ‘finally’ (N=19) and ‘seriously’ (N=17).

Table 4.6 shows that the initial adverb most used by the males is ‘actually’ (N=17), followed by ‘seriously’ (N=13) and ‘finally’ (N=8). With respect to the use of initial adverbs by the females, the results show that the most used initial adverb is ‘actually’ (N=18), followed by ‘finally’ (N=11).

The results of this study are consistent with Crawford’s (1995) statement that men use more initial adverbs than women. However, they are different from Amir et al. (2012)’s findings that no significant differences are found among male and female teen bloggers. The findings in this study also differ from Mulac et al.’s (1990) study of gender differences in writing language among children of nine years old. They conclude that girls write more initial adverbs compared to boys. Swan (1991, p. 409) states that an initial adverb does not process meaning for its own but to modify the whole verb phrase. It is an additional specification of the sentence when expressing opinions. The higher average number of initial adverbs by the males shows that the males have higher tendency to use initial adverbs to modify their utterances than the females.

4.2.4.2 Functions of Initial Adverbs Used by Males and Females

Table 4.6 demonstrates that the most used type of initial adverbs used by both genders is ‘actually’ (N=35). For the use of ‘actually’ by the male and the female participants, the males use higher average number of ‘actually’ (M:F=0.00079:0.00064) than the females. The results for the use of ‘actually’ in this study are different from Crawford’s (1995) findings. In his gendered study of letter collections, he concludes that women use higher number of ‘actually’ than men. When ‘actually’ is used as an initial adverb, it is considered as a speech act adverb to express opinions of the utterance and to describe the manner of speaking (Swan, 1991, p. 410). In this study, the males have higher tendency to express opinions by using ‘actually’ than the females. Some examples for the use of ‘actually’ are displayed in Example 6.
Example 6:

91 M7 : actually is raining, god, u hear me!!! (M7 tells his friend the weather is hot)

80 M8 : actually a bit lol (M8 and his friend talk about whether the rock party is crowded)

119 F1 : Actually now im having midsem break... but might not back pb... (F1’s friend asks if F1 is busy)

28 F14 : actually can apply on both parties~~ (F14’s friend asks if the eight forbidden rules for love can be used for girls)

In Example 6, M7 (line 91) uses ‘actually’ to modify his utterance that god hears his statement about the hot weather and it begins to rain. M8 (line 80) expresses his view that the rock party is crowded by using ‘actually’ to imply his statement is true. F1 (line 119) conveys the information that she plans to return during the mid-semester break, but she cannot because of other unexpected things by using ‘actually’ to modify her utterance. F14 (line 28) expresses her opinion that the eight forbidden rules for love also suits girls by adding ‘actually’ before her utterance to show her statement is true.

4.2.5 Tag Questions

Lakoff (1975, p. 16) defines a tag question as “a declarative statement without the assumption that the statement is to be believed by the addressee: one has an out, as with questions.” A tag is a grammatical structure, which consists of a declarative and an attached interrogative clause followed (Liberman, 2004). Lakoff also points out that tag questions are used when the speaker is not confident enough to make a statement. Besides, by using tag questions women’s speech sounds more polite as it leaves a decision open, and they do not force an agreement upon them.

4.2.5.1 Types of Tag Questions Used by Males and Females

Mindell (2001) classifies tag questions into three forms which are verbal (… aren’t they?), vocal (He is an artist?) and gestural (raise one's shoulders). The vocal tag is reflected through a falling tone or rising tone. However, the different tones cannot be seen in written language. Hence, in this study the verbal tag questions are analysed. Hale (2010) categorises tag questions into three groups, positive declarative with positive tag (e.g. He is your brother, right?), positive declarative with negative tag (e.g. He called you, didn’t he?) and negative declarative with positive tag (e.g. He isn’t your brother, is he?) (pp. 47-48).

In this study, based on Lakoff’s (1975) definition of tag questions and Hale’s (2010) types of tag questions, three types of tag questions are investigated. The number of occurrences and the average number of each type of tag questions used by the male and female Facebook users respectively are demonstrated in Table 4.7.

As Table 4.7 reveals, the females average higher number of tag questions than the males (F:M=0.0017:0.0012). The results support Lakoff’s (1975) findings that women use more tag questions than men.
The most used type of tag questions by the females is positive declarative with positive tag (N=29), followed by negative declarative with positive tag (N=12). The positive declarative with negative tag is used least (N=8). With respect to the types of tag questions used by the males, the most used is positive declarative with positive tag (N=18). The results are inconsistent with Mondorf’s (2004, p. 46) findings that the positive declarative with positive tag is the most used tag by both women and men.

4.2.5.2 Functions of Tag Questions Used by Males and Females

Table 4.7 illustrates the types of tag questions used by the males and the females. For the most used positive declarative with positive tag, the females average higher number than the males (F:M=0.00103:0.00084). The positive declarative with positive tag is one of the ways to seek confirmation (Hale, 2010, p. 47). In this study, the females average higher number of this type of tag, which demonstrates that the females have a higher tendency in seeking confirmation. The results echo Lakoff’s (1975) statement that by using tag questions, women’s speech sounds more polite as it leaves a decision open, and they do not force an agreement. Some examples taken from the data are below.

Example 7:

192 F5 : wan employ u 2 b my advertisement model, can i?? (F5 and her friend talk about the recruitment of the advertisement model)

108 F15 : I'm a Nini ma. you know what a Nini is, right? I don't wanna study, I just wanna party!" (F15 and her friend talk about her nickname)

19 M6 : reali~~more pictures will be update soon~tis picture got feel, rite?? (M6 and his friend talk about the picture his friend posted)

59 M7 : make it end of august can?? (M7 and his friend talk about the Scuba Diving Courses in Malaysia)

Example 7 shows that both F5 (line 192) and F15 (line 108) use positive statement with positive tags to seek confirmations from their friends, which is a way to express their politeness. M6 (line 19) uses positive statement with positive tags to show his uncertainty to their friends. While M7 (line 59) uses positive statement with positive tags to seek confirmation. These examples support Lakoff’s (1975, p. 16) statement that tags can be used to leave some room for the hearer and not force the hearer to agree the speaker’s opinion.

4.2.6 Malaysian Chinese English Particles

Since the participants in this study are Malaysian Chinese undergraduates, their English language has certain specific characteristics which are typical of Malaysian Chinese English and different from other ethnic groups in Malaysia. They often use particles at the beginning or at the end of their utterances which cannot be found in the English language.

According to Wee (2004), there are mainly eight types of Singapore English particles used by Singapore Chinese in their spoken or informal written situations, namely, indicates that the use of these particles can make utterances being expressed in more softening ways in communication. Since Malaysia has intimate contact with Singapore’s development and both of them are multicultural and multilingual countries, the Malaysian Chinese and Singapore Chinese have some similarities in the use of these particles.

4.2.6.1 Types of Malaysian Chinese English Particles Used by Males and Females

In this study, based on Wee’s (2004, p. 1068) categories of Singapore English particles, six types of Malaysian Chinese English particles found by the researcher from the Facebook data are explored. Table 4.8 shows the number of occurrences and the average number of types of the Malaysian Chinese English particles used by male and female Facebook users.

In Table 4.8, the total occurrence number shows the most used Malaysian Chinese English particle by both genders is ‘la’ (N=500), followed by ‘lor/lo’ (N=286), ‘ma/mah’ (N=75), ‘liao’ (N=74), ‘le/leh’ (N=60) and ‘meh’ (N=31). These particles are used when the male and female participants chat through their Facebook. Since Malaysia is a multilingual country, the Malaysian Chinese can speak more than one language. They usually speak their mother tongue (Mandarin, Hokkien and/or Cantonese), English and Malay language (Platt et al., 1983, pp. 62-84).

Language has a cultural transmission function (Liu & Wen, 2006, p. 13) It means that language can be passed from one generation to another, thus Malaysian Chinese have retained certain Chinese linguistic features from their grandparents such as ‘la’, ‘meh’, ‘ma/mah’, ‘le/leh’, ‘liao’ and ‘lor/lo’. These particles in Chinese language have the same functions as when used in English. Besides, language can also be transferred from one language to the target language, i.e., when people speak one language, another language(s) can affect the language they are speaking (Yule, 2006, p. 194). Since all the participants have been educated in Chinese school for one or more years, thus when they speak English, their Chinese (Mandarin, Hokkien and/or Cantonese) may affect their English unconsciously. In this case, new types of characteristics appear in their conversations.

Comparing the average number of these particles used by the males and the females, the results show that the males average higher number of particles than the females (M:F=0.0219:0.0197). The results are different from findings of Wee (2004) and Tay et al. (2012) that women use these particles more than men. Using these particles can make the speakers’ utterances to be accepted easily by the hearer and also makes chatting more relaxed in the hope of fostering better communication among people (Wee, 2004; Ler, 2005). Besides, the use of these particles can also show people’s politeness (Wee, 2004). Life is not solely about trying to play down the seriousness of issues. Injecting humour can make the conversation between the speaker and the hearer more witty and relaxing. The males average higher number of these particles than the females in this study. This indicates that the males tend to make their utterances easier to be accepted as well as their chatting more relaxed than the females.

With respect to the males, Table 4.8 shows that the most used particle is ‘la’ (N=254), followed by ‘lo/lor’ (N=143), ‘le/leh’ (N=27), ‘ma/mah’ (N=17) and ‘liao’ (N=17). The least used particle by the males is ‘meh’ (N=12). As for the females, the most used particle is ‘la’ (N=246), followed by ‘lor/lo’ (N=143), ‘ma/mah’ (N=58), ‘liao’ (N=57), (N=33) and the least used particle is ‘meh’ (N=19).
4.2.6.2 Functions of Malaysian Chinese English Particles Used by Males and Females

For the types of particles used by both genders, Table 4.8 shows that the most used particle is ‘la’ (N=500). ‘La’ used most by both genders in this study is consistent with Preshous’ assertion (2001, p. 50). He states that ‘la’ is a typical characteristic in Malaysia since both the Malay language and Mandarin include the particle ‘la’. Since the participants in this study have been educated in Chinese school for one or two years. Hence, when participants speak English, the particle “la” can influence their English. Especially when they speak or write in informal situations, they use the particle ‘la’ consciously or unconsciously.

Using ‘la’ indicates that speakers are more easy-going and not so serious (Azirah & Tan, 2012) and indicates a speaker’s mood or attitude (Wee, 2004, p. 1068). Comparing the use of ‘la’ by the males and the females, the males average higher numbers of ‘la’ than the females (M:F=0.01180:0.00870). It shows that the males are more likely to use “la” to express their attitudes openly or make their utterances softer and more relaxing than the females. Some examples of ‘la’ are listed below.

Example 8:

114  M4 : please read books la you.... hek eleh ~~~~ this is hard core… (M4 and his friend talk about reading books)
122  M8 : don’t say like this la bro..come on..k la k la put this issue aside (M8’s friend tells him that the assignment is difficult and he cannot finish his assignment on time)
18   F1  : but i got date on sat d la… (F1’s friend asks her to meet up)
255  F8  : Come Sri petaling la, eat togather (F8 and her friend talk about getting together)

In example above, M4 (line 114) persuades his friend to study and M8 (line 122) shows his disapproval of his friend’s statement that he cannot finish the assignment on time. F1 (line 18) expresses her disagreement and F8 (line 255) persuades her friend to go to Sri Petaling to eat together. Both the males and the females in this example use ‘la’ to soften their utterances and to make their utterances accepted easily.

4.3 Self-Presentation of Male and Female Facebook Users

Self-presentation may influence the consequences of conversation. For example, someone intends to show the ‘ideal self’ but his/her information or words show his/her identity. Thus, self-presentation can be another way for people to show who they are.

This section deals with the analysis of self-presentation of male and female Facebook users on their personal Facebook homepages. The comparative analysis takes five variables into consideration as they are found from data by the researcher: personal information disclosure, online name choices, topics, profile image selections and emotive features. In each subsection, the overview and the comparison of each variable are analysed and discussed by gender.

4.3.1 Personal Information Disclosure

When a user registers a Facebook account, s/he must create a personal profile first. In order to help this creative process, Facebook provides a template for the proposed personal information (Smock, 2010, p. 3). The Facebook template of the ‘about me’ section in Facebook homepages includes work and education, place lived (including current city and hometown), relationship pictures (referring to pictures with their girlfriends or boyfriends), family pictures, history by year, basic information (including birth date, year of birth, sex, relationship status, languages, religion, contact information (including email, Facebook homepage website, mobile phone and address). Relationship status includes single, in a relationship or married. Facebook users can decide whether they wish to exhibit these aspects publicly or maintain privacy.
In this study, based on the Facebook homepage template, twelve categories of personal information are revealed by the male and female participants: age, gender, hometown, current city, university, family picture(s), relationship picture, relationship status, religion, emails, Facebook homepage website, and languages. The percentage distribution of personal information disclosure is presented and discussed. Figure 4.1 reveals the distribution of personal information used by both genders in their personal homepages.

As illustrated in Figure 4.1, Facebook users reveal a large number of personal information. The personal information most revealed by both genders include the university they have attended (100%), followed by gender (87%), family picture(s) (77%), email address (70%), their hometowns respective (70%) and the current city they reside in (70%). More than half of them disclose their age (63%) and relationship status (53%). Less than half of the users reveal their Facebook homepage website (43%) and the languages they speak (30%). A few of them reveal their religion (13%) and the relationship pictures (6%) with their girlfriend or boyfriend.
Most of the personal information cannot be seen in their Facebook homepages, especially their email addresses and the Facebook homepage websites, however, these can be seen when clicking ‘About me’ in their Facebook homepages. In this section, users give their personal details. Most of them disclose their emails, Facebook homepage websites, or the high schools which they have attended. The results in this study are similar to Huffaker’s (2004) findings that teen bloggers in the United States reveal a considerable amount of information including their emails, the link to personal websites and so on in their blogs.

Facebook is a multi-audience self-presentation site. It creates a platform for users to contact those they already know and those they do not know (Zhao et al., 2008). Facebook users are not completely reluctant to present themselves truly. One of the reasons is because Facebook allows the function where users can set their profiles for certain viewers (Gearhart & Kang, 2010), thus users can present themselves differently to different audiences. Since personal information is one of the ways for Facebook users to self-present, Malaysian Chinese undergraduates reveal their personal information with certain intentions. What kind of personal information they show to the audience depends on by whom they want their personal information to be seen. In this case, the Facebook users in this study present themselves to a particular audience to reveal their ‘ideal self’. For instance, the undergraduates mostly reveal the university they are attending, their respective hometowns, current city and gender in their Facebook homepages.

In short, Facebook users in this study reveal a lot of their personal information. Zhao et al. (2008) indicate there are different extent of non-anonymity in a given situation, thus the disclosure aspects varies accordingly (p. 1819). The results in this study are different from findings in previous research on computer-mediated communication (CMC) contexts. In Chat Rooms, MUDs and Bulletin Boards, anonymity and flexibility are common experiences (Rheingold, 1995; Surratt, 1998; Turkle, 1995). The full anonymity does not appear to be the case with the Malaysian Chinese undergraduate Facebook users. Facebook appears to be a space for self-expression with respect to their personal information.

In a virtual world, the context is quite complex and flexible, thus net speakers can choose whether they present themselves truly or anonymously. However, even though to some extent they can control their self-presentation by describing some of their personal information in written words, users still choose to present the ‘actual self’. This is perhaps on the one hand, because the Facebook website asks Facebook users to register with their real names. On the other hand, in their Facebook homepages, the profile viewers are their friends, family or someone they know each other, it is not necessary to hide the “actual self”.

4.3.1.1 Gender Comparison of Personal Information Disclosure

Figure 4.2 offers the personal information revealed by both male and female Facebook users in the study. The male and female Facebook users’ personal information disclosure is revealed in the form of percentage (%) of the total number of the males (n=15) and the females (n=15).
As depicted in Figure 4.2, in totality, more females describe personal information compared with males. When comparing the personal information disclosure between the males and the females, it is found that the males and the females present the university they attend (100% to 100%), their genders (87% to 87%) and their religion (13% to 13%) equally. However, more females reveal their personal information compared with males including their family picture(s) (80% vs. 73%), their hometowns (80% vs. 60%), the current city they reside in (87% vs. 60%), their age (80% vs. 47%), relationship status (67% vs. 40%) and the languages they speak (40% vs. 20%). With respect to the Facebook homepage website, more males provide information in comparison to females (53% vs. 33%). With regards to the relationship picture, males rather than females (13% vs. 0) reveal their relationship pictures in their personal information.

When describing themselves in their personal information, more females present the ‘actual self’ than males in Figure 4.2. Thus, it can be observed from the results above that the females are not reluctant to reveal their personal information especially the disclosed information of age. More females reveal their age than the males (80% vs. 47%). One reason is that Facebook users’ homepages are public to all of their friends or relatives who know them well so the females feel Facebook is a safer online environment. The other reason is that the females are more brave and confident in online environment and not like Lakoff (1975) mentioned women are more weak and powerless. This suggests that judging men’s and women’s power and social status only by their different behaviour in society is likely to be unsuitable because in different social context, they may behave differently. In different social contexts, people may present themselves differently. For example, someone who is a quiet person in the real world may be active in the online environment.

Besides, it is interesting to find that some males and females reveal their religion (see Figure 4.2). According to Karimnia (2012), a religious motivation has an important effect on language use (p. 160). When male and female Facebook users put their religions in their personal information, it reflects they are devout or that their faith is an integral aspect of their lives.

4.3.2 Online Name Choices and Gender

Online names are very popular in an online environment. It seems to be common for net speakers to have online nicknames in order to be anonymous, or just because their actual name is too long to type. Calvert (2002) also points out when users choose their online names and nicknames, their virtual roles actually are built simultaneously. For example, when a man writes a female’s online name, he will be considered as a woman by other viewers. Therefore, online names offer the basic way of self-presentation. Based on Calvert et al.’s (2003) categories of online names, two types of online names are found by the researcher, real names (including their first name and full name) and informal names for someone, i.e., online nicknames.

Table 4.9: Online Name Choices and Gender

Table 4.9 demonstrates that almost all of the participants use their real names as their Facebook user names while one female uses her online nickname as her Facebook user name. With respect to gender in online name choices among the males and the females, more males (100%) use their real names as the Facebook user names than females (93%).

The results show that almost all the males and most females choose to have their real names as Facebook usernames. Calvert (2002) points out that a name is very important for adolescents to define themselves in social interaction. In the online situations, a user name can be considered as a self-presentation such as user’s sex. Perhaps the participants realise that even in an online environment, using their real names is necessary because it can assist them to differentiate and describe themselves.

The analysis shows that almost all the participants opt to choose their real names rather than other online names as their Facebook user names. Bechar-Israeli (1995) and Calvert et al. (2003) in their studies of online usernames conclude that children and adolescents use their real names rather than online nicknames since the kind of names people choose can affect their social interactions. In this study, the results show that all the males and most females use their real names as Facebook user names. Thus, the male and female Facebook users intend to present the ‘actual self’.

When comparing the use of online names between males and females, it reveals that there is almost no difference in using real names between the males and the females. All the males (100%) and almost all the females (93%) use their real names except one female who chose her stage name. This is because she is a part-time singer, thus her typical identity can be presented through her stage name. This indicates that by choosing their real names in their Facebook homepages, both male and female Malaysian Chinese undergraduates intend to present the ‘actual self’ to others. Perhaps there are two reasons: first, since in Facebook users’ homepages, almost all of them are their friends or relatives or acquaintances, using real names makes it easy for friends to locate them; second, they consider Facebook safe and they believe in it (Zhao et al., 2008).

4.3.3 Topics

The Facebook website offers a communication platform for users to interact with each other. Users can talk about anything they are interested or something they have experienced in their daily lives. Leary (1996) mentions that topic, one way of attitude statement, is one of the ways for speakers to present themselves. From their topics, speakers show their values and what kind of person they are (Zarghooni, 2007). Therefore, it is important to examine the topics on the Facebook wall status and feedback where undergraduates express their experiences and feelings when discussing different topics.
Huffaker (2004) analyses topics discussed by male and female teen bloggers. It reveals that male and female bloggers discuss school, music and relationship equally. Deakins et al. (1987) study the topics discussed by the working class and middle class men and women. They categorise the topics into seven classes, business and money, sports, amusements, family concerns, weather, food and other people. Based on Huffaker’s (2004) and Deakins et al.’s (1987) studies in topic categories by men and women, the researcher investigates the categories in each topic domain. For example, the food domain includes six groups: fruits, vegetables, protein, dairy, grains and oils (http://www.choosemyplate.gov/food-groups/). The Facebook status and feedback by thirty participants are examined for any use of these topics within six months. Total topics are counted (A topic that occurs more than 30 times in six months will be included, otherwise, it will not be categorised) and divided into ten categories. Ten categories of topics are found by the research. They are school, food, other people (people except family and relationships with other girls or boys), holidays, family, money, music, sports, weather and relationships with other girls or boys (relationships with girls or boys they like). The percentage of the thirty Facebook users in terms of topics is as below.

The analysis in Figure 4.3 reveals that the most popular topic for the males and the females is school. Since all of them are undergraduates, this definitely is an important topic among Facebook users. 100% Facebook users discuss school in terms of their experience during a school day, completing assignment or exams, university activities and even lecturer(s). This reflects that Malaysian Chinese undergraduates focus on their studies and they persevere to complete their assignments. This is because of the fact that they are students of the University of Malaya where there are stringent requirements with their work assignments. Students talk about how to prepare for their exams or share their post-exam feeling or discuss what activities or information regarding their university such as activities, notices or discuss how to participate in these activities. Apart from these, students mention their lecturers such as giving comments on the lecturer’s class or expressing their like or dislike of their lecturers.

Apart from the topic of school, 93% of the total participants talk about food. Students discuss where they find delicious food, how to cook one type of food, the kind of food they like or their feelings about the food they have eaten.

The topic about other people is also a popular one. The topic of other people refers to people around them except their family and girls or boys they like. Among the total Facebook participants, 87% of them discuss their classmates or people around them.

With regard to the total participants, 73% of them talk about holidays. From the data, it shows that participants discuss when to have a holiday or where to go on a holiday or with whom to go on a holiday. They even share the experiences of their previous holidays.
As for family and relatives, 67% users talk about their family and relatives. Among these, the most discussed is their parents. This shows that parents play vital roles in these young adults’ lives.

Money is also discussed by the Facebook participants. 63% of the total Facebook users talk about money. They discuss saving money or the way to earn money when they graduate.

In the total number of thirty male and female participants, 60% participants in this study talk about music in their interactions. This comprises favourite bands, music downloaded from websites and lyrics from pop songs.

At the same time, the topic of sports is also popular. 60% participants discuss it. They discuss the results of a sports match within university or with other universities. They also talk about the necessity of exercising.

Moreover, the weather is also one of the main topics. More than half of the students (53%) talk about the weather. They refer to the weather being hot, cool or rainy.

While not so many users mention their relationship(s) with other girls or boys they like (37%) since the topic about their relationship(s) with other girl(s) or boy(s) is considered as a private affair.

Since the topics on the Facebook link to the types of self-presentation (Zarghooni, 2007), the content of the topics Facebook users emphasize the types of elements that influence the undergraduates in their real world. Therefore, the topics can reflect the real world of the Facebook users. Instead of presenting an online persona, undergraduates present their ‘actual self’ via their Facebook homepages. For example, since undergraduates spend plenty of time in university, it is obvious that the school has a significant influence on self-presentation.

4.3.3.1 Gender Comparison of Topics

Huffaker (2004) analyses topics discussed among teen bloggers by gender. Since each topic Facebook users discuss may include many different types of specific words, it is quite difficult to analyse each specific word in each topic. For example, with the topic of food, they may talk about many different kinds of food. This study follows Huffaker’s (2004) approach to analyse the topics by gender rather than by the occurrence of each topic. In this study, the topics are analysed by gender in terms of school, relationships with other girl(s) or boy(s), holiday, money, other people, sports, music, family, food and weather found in the data. The percentage distribution of topics by the males (n=15) and the females (n=15) is demonstrated in Figure 4.4.
Figure 4.4 reveals the topics discussed by both male and female Facebook users. The most popular topic is school (100%), followed by food (93%), which is discussed equally by all the males and all the females.

Based on Figure 4.4, more males discuss money (80% vs. 46%), sports (87% vs. 33%) and relationships with the opposite sex (47% vs. 27%) than the females. On the other hand, females are more interested in talking about other people (100% vs. 73%), holidays (87% vs. 60%), family (80% vs. 53%), music (87% vs. 33%) and weather (60% vs. 47%) than the males.

With respect to the males, the most popular topic is school (100%), followed by the topic of food (93%), sports (87%) and money (80%). Perhaps this is inherent in boys. Playing sports makes boys more competitive, aggressive and more like ‘real men’ (Prettyman & Lampman, 2011, pp. 54-55).

As for the females, the results show that the most popular topics are school (100%) and other people (100%), followed by food (93%), music (87%) and holiday (87%), family or relatives (80%).

In sum, the topics that the Facebook users discuss in their status and feedback include school, food, other people, holidays, family, money, music, sports, weather and relationships with other girls or boys. Since all of them are students, ‘school’ appears to be a popular topic. As for food, no gender differences are identified in this study. The topics discussed by the males and the females reflect their values, hobbies or identities. For example, from the topic of school, their identities as students are presented. The results are consistent with Deakins et al.’s (1987) more women talk about family, other people, amusements and weather than men. Deakins et al.’s (1987) also state that more men talk about money, business and sports than women show that they make more hostile judgments, argue and focus more on perceptual attributes (pp. 97-98). In this study, more men talking about money and sports reveals that the males have higher tendency to express their judgments and focus more on their perceptions.

4.3.4 Profile Image Selections

Pictures are considered as symbolic or sign language (Yule, 2000, p. 202). It is thought to be a form of picture-writing or pictograms (p. 10) The Facebook profile picture is located at the top, left corner of the Facebook profile. The user’s impression to others is initially built on the user’s profile picture, thus a profile picture is one of the first steps to self-presentation (Kapidzic & Herring, 2011).

When creating their online website accounts, users may choose many different types of profile pictures to present themselves. In this study, the analysis of the data reveals five types of profile pictures, namely, the actual photos of the person, a cartoon drawing, the artistic picture of the person (during shooting, costumes, props, lighting, plastics, foil and other artistic methods are comprehensively used), a picture from popular culture such as an actor or actress as well as an animal picture. Figure 4.7 shows the general distribution of different types of images.
The pie chart in Figure 4.5 features a summary of profile image selections by all the Facebook users. It shows that all the Facebook users employ a variety of images for their profile pictures when creating and maintaining their Facebook accounts. The most used profile pictures are the actual photos of users (74%). However, other types of images are also considered such as the artistic picture of the person (13%), cartoons, popular culture (7%), cartoon (3%) and animal (3%). Leary (1996) states that an image is symbolic of a person and can influence the views of others. In this study, 74% Facebook users use their real pictures as their profile images which demonstrates that Malaysian Chinese undergraduates consider Facebook as their ‘real world’, thus they care more about their communication with others. The results in this study are different from Huffaker’s (2004) study about teenage bloggers, where 39% bloggers choose the actual photo of the person in their blogs. Thus, in different CMC contexts, users may present differently in image usage.

Since photos can be used as an instrument for users to present themselves and peers’ comments on these photos can also affect online users’ confidence (Valkenburg et al., 2005), users must make a decision on what photos to project them vividly. Malaysian
Chinese undergraduates using the actual pictures of their own reflects that they are confident and do not mind showing the ‘actual self’ to their friends. Therefore, when these actual photos of the person are put on users’ profiles, it is considered to be a communication tool for self-presentation for Facebook users. The results of this study are similar to Calvert et al.’s (2003) study in MUDs that both males and females use pictures identical to their real lives in society.

4.3.4.1 Gender Comparison of Profile Image Selections

There are many different types of profile pictures for Facebook users to choose from. Based on the data analysis in this study, five types of profile pictures are observed and analysed to compare the profile pictures posted by the males and the females. These include the real photograph of the person, a cartoon drawing, the artistic picture of the person, a picture relevant to popular culture such as an actor or actress, a picture of a musician or an animal.

There were no significant differences in choosing images for the profile pictures by male and female Facebook users. Figure 4.6 provides the distributions of image selections by males and females.
From Figure 4.6, it is obvious that there is no significant difference between male and female profile pictures. It is evident that the males and the females in this study tend to use their own pictures rather than other types of images to present themselves. However, slight differences can still be seen in the figure above. More males select real photos of themselves (40%) and a cartoon picture (3%) as their profile pictures compared with females while none of the males chose animals as their profile pictures. This indicates that the females are more empathetic towards animals and they have stronger feelings of love for animals than the males (Taylor & Signal, 2005; Herzog, 2007). By contrast, more females than males select the artistic picture of the person (10%) and an animal picture (3%). However, none of the females choose cartoon caricatures as their profile pictures. With respect to the selection of the popular culture pictures, both males and females used them equally (3% to 3%).

In sum, there are no significant differences between the male and the female Facebook users in image selections. Nevertheless, slight differences are evident. More females choose the artistic pictures of the person, animal pictures than males while more males choose the cartoon caricatures compared with females. This indicates that both male and female Facebook users are inclined to represent their ‘actual self’ in their Facebook homepages.

4.3.5 Emotive Features

Emoticons play important roles in Facebook users’ language. They are considered as another kind of language which combines the traditional form and the adopted ones by the net speakers (Crystal, 2001). The use of emotive features can be another way for net speakers to present their feelings and attitudes (Zarghooni, 2007; Dresner & Herring, 2010). All Facebook status and feedback are examined for any use of emoticons or smileys. Total emoticons are counted and divided into six categories, namely, Happy, Sad, Angry, Flirty, Tired and other emoticons. Figure 4.7 shows the distribution of emoticons used by both genders.

Figure 4.7 portrays the percentage of emoticon types utilised by all of the Facebook users. In this study, emoticons are employed by all the participants, whether in the form of graphical icons like ☺, or they may use the text based smileys like :(. The most used emoticon is Happy (80%), followed by Sad (55%) and Flirty (47%) emoticons. By contrast, Angry and Tired emoticons are the least used emoticons by both genders. The frequency of these two types of emoticons by both genders is extremely low (2%) since both the Tired and the Angry graphical emoticons are not provided in the Facebook emoticon list. Apart from these, 23% participants in this study also use other emoticon. Some of them use love emoticon to express their love feeling especially when they chat with their girlfriends or boyfriends. Some girls also use it when chatting with other girls while this seldom happens among the males.

In online contexts, people’s communication cannot depend on their facial expressions and body signs to show their emotions or feelings, thus emoticons are used in the online environment for some reasons. Firstly, emoticons can be used to fill a null and void in interactions (Crystal, 2002) and emphasise the meaning of the messages to enhance the interpretations of the messages (Huffaker, 2004). Secondly, from the emoticons, the users’ mood or feelings can also be identified (Farquhar, 2009, p. 30). For example, when people are not satisfied with their work, they may use the emoticons like angry or sad. Emoticons in online communication are important and they can be a way for users to present themselves.

4.3.5.1 Gender Comparison of Emotive Features

The emoticons are normally divided into two types: graphical emoticons and text-based smileys (Huffaker, 2004, p. 18) such as 😊 or :) represents happiness, and 🙁 or :( stands for sadness. Thus the emotive features in this study comprise graphic icons and text-based smileys. Figures 4.8 and 4.9 demonstrate the distribution of graphical emoticons and text based smileys by the male and the female participants.
From Figures 4.8 and 4.9, it is evident that more female Facebook users use both graphical emoticons and text based smileys than the males. Figures 4.8 and 4.9 reveal that more females use happy, sad, flirty emoticons or other emoticons than the males. Graphical emoticons are displayed by icons which can show users’ feelings more vividly and truly. Text based smileys are used to show the participants’ expressions. More females use graphical icons and text based smileys than the males. This indicates that the females have a tendency to show their emotions vividly. This also indicates that the females reveal their emotions more than the males. The least used emoticons are tired and angry emoticons. This is because these two types of emoticons are not offered in the Facebook emoticon list. Examples taken from the data are below.

Example 9:

21 F2 : come n stick la, i dun mind 😊 (F2 and her friend talk about free electron)
22 F4 : deadline of submission due to heartless ppl, send me doc last minute 😊
      (F4 and her friend talk about her submission of her assignment)
4 M3 : snacks and chocolate back, thank you 😊 (M3 and his friend talk about his snacks)
226 M10 : hahaha..for girls it's 200% true, but for man, not true at all lo 😄
      (M10 and his friend talk about the meaning of crossing legs)

Example 10:

161 F5 : u meant 2 say hello kitty?? lol!! hello kitty very cute le~<3 ^^ (F5 uses love and happy text based smileys (<3 and ^^) to present her happiness and love for the hello kitty)
89 F7 : gv u two more days to finish it..then summaries for me=P XD (F7 uses flirty and happy text based smileys (=P and XD) to show that she is making a joke)
435 M7 : this is not my cup of tea but u r my cip of tea:-) (M7’s friend says he does not have mood to study. M7 says he is not interested in studying but interested in his friend. By using text based smileys :-) to show that is a joke)
214 M10 : already decide to love you forever and ever Irene Eng..I ♥ You~~~
      (M10 uses love text based smiley ♥ to present his love to Irene Eng)

In Examples 9 and 10, both the males and the females use emoticons to express their feelings vividly.

For the use of two types of emoticon by both genders, the results above show that Facebook users are interested in the use of the graphical emoticon and the text-based smileys.

Analysing the use of graphical emoticon and text based smileys by the males and the females reveals clearly that the females use more emoticons than the males. It indicates that the females tend to describe their emotions in a more vivid way when expressing their feelings and experiences during the online communication than the males.
Sometimes when they finish their utterances, they use emoticons to soften the threat to readers such as line 89, F7. This is similar to the behaviours in the real world. Leary (1996) and (Zarhoooni, 2007) also state that emoticons can be a way for people to present themselves since these emoticons can show people’s attitudes and values vividly. The results also show that women care more about others’ feelings compared to men (Lakoff, 1975; Amir et al., 2012). In contrast, the males have higher tendency to use words such as Malaysian English particles than use emoticons. The results in this study are similar to previous studies on emoticons that emoticons are used more by women than by men (Lee, 2003; Witmer & Katzman, 1997; Wolf, 2000).

4.4 Summary

This chapter has descriptively analysed status, feedback on the Facebook wall on participants’ Facebook homepages. This study finds some gender differences in linguistic features and some similarities in self-presentation between male and female Facebook users. Facebook is an available ground for young adults to present themselves.

In the process of identifying and classifying the linguistic features such as intensifiers, empty adjectives, lexical hedges, tag questions, initial adverbs and Malaysian Chinese English particles, the researcher has found that these linguistic features are relevant to gender and socialization. The findings of this study indicate that there are several differences in linguistic features between Malaysian Chinese male and female undergraduate Facebook users. More specifically, the females have higher average number of intensifiers, empty adjectives and tag questions than the males. This supports the statements of Lakoff (1975) and Amir et al. (2012). Nevertheless, the males average higher number of lexical hedges, initial adverbs and Malaysian Chinese English particles. This is different from the findings of Lakoff (1975) and Amir et al. (2012) that women use more lexical hedges and initial adverbs. This is also different from Wee’s (2004) findings in Malaysian English particles that women use more Singapore English particles than women. The results also show that the males also tend to use ‘women language’ in their utterances as these linguistic features can soften their utterances (Lakoff, 1975).

Self-presentation can be formed by disclosing personal information, online name choices, profile image selections, discussing more topics as well as using more emoticons. This suggests that the females treat Facebook as an inherent aspect of their daily lives and a way to communicate with other Facebook users. More females reveal their personal information, topics and the emoticon use than the males. However, with reference to the online name choices and profile image selections, more males present themselves than the females. However, the results show that there are more similarities than differences in the self-presentation of the males and the females. This again suggests that Facebook website is important and meets users’ needs. In short, Malaysian Chinese undergraduates show more differences in the use of language than in self-presentation.
CHAPTER FIVE

CONCLUSION AND RECOMMENDATIONS

5.0 Introduction

This chapter concludes with the summary of findings on gendered language use and self-presentation. It also provides the implications of the study and puts forth a few recommendations for further research. Not only do young adults use the Facebook websites as a platform to show their experiences and feelings but they also present themselves online. In some situations, these Facebook users’ homepages also link to larger online communities. This is similar to the peer relations observed in the real world.

5.1 Linguistic Features Used by Male and Female Malaysian Chinese

Crystal (2001) states that the language on the Internet signifies another type of speech that is created by its community. In this study, the analysis is viewed in the light of Lakoff (1975) and Amir et al.’s (2012) frameworks, set against the background of Malaysian Chinese undergraduates. Six types of linguistic features used by the participants in their status and feedback from January to June of 2012 are intensifiers, lexical hedges, empty adjective, initial adverbs, tag questions and Malaysian Chinese English particles.

One of the primary aims of this study is to investigate gendered language use by male and female Facebook participants. To recapitulate, the findings reveal that there are significant differences between the genders in the overall language use.
The findings reveal that on the whole, the male and female Malaysian Chinese Facebook users use language differently. The females use higher average numbers of intensifiers, empty adjectives and tag questions than the males. The males, on the other hand, average more number of lexical hedges, initial adverbs and Malaysian Chinese English particles than the females.

In viewing of number of words, the females in this study write more words in status updates and feedback than the males (F:M=28,268:21493) during six months. The findings are different from Huffaker’s (2004) report that there are no gender differences in terms of the number of words in his study. Considerable number of words posted by both genders reflects that both the male and the female Facebook users are very active with their status updates and comments but females are more active than the males on their Facebook posts.

In examining the use of intensifiers between both genders, the findings reveal that higher average number of intensifiers used by the females than the males (F:M=0.0254:0.0202). The findings of this study seem to support Lakoff’s (1975) theory that women use more intensifiers than men. The example of intensifiers also suggests that when the females in use intensifiers, they tend to boost things that they describe. This is consistent with Amir et al.’s that conclusion (2012) women are more expressive and tend to boost in the language.

The females in this study have higher average number of empty adjectives than the males (F:M=0.0124:0.0079). This suggests that female Facebook users tend to employ emotions in their status and feedback to express their feelings and experiences. The results show that the females may overstate something when they give explanations or descriptions of something. This difference is probably because women are more likely to verbalise their feelings and emotions. This suggestion is also put forward by Lakoff (1975) who states that when women use empty adjectives, they are perceived to be more sensitive and emotional compared with men.

With reference to gender and hedges, the Facebook homepages analysis shows that the males average higher number of lexical hedges (M:F=0.0117:0.0094) than the females. The results are different from Lakoff (1975) and Amir et al.’s (2012) theories that women use more hedges than men. In this study, the male Facebook users have higher tendency to use lexical hedges to show their uncertainty and to soften their utterances than the females. This is inconsistent with Lakoff’s (1975) statement that women use lexical hedges to express their uncertainty and to express their personal evaluation or soften their utterances.

The male Facebook users average higher number of initial adverbs than the females (M:F=0.0042:0.0024), although neither of them uses them excessively. The results demonstrate that the males have higher tendency to use initial adverbs to add specification of their utterances when expressing their opinions than the females. The results are different from Amir et al.’s (2012) findings among male and female teen bloggers, where initial adverbs are not gender-specific.

Neither the males nor the females use tag question a lot. However, the females use them more than the males (F:M=0.0017:0.0012). The results reveal that the female Facebook users have higher tendency to use tag questions to get confirmation or to soften their utterances than the males. The finding of this study are consistent with the statements by Lakoff (1975) and Olsson (2000) that tag questions are used by the speaker either to seek confirmation about the utterances or as a softening instrument to show the close relationship to the hearer.

Besides, some Malaysian Chinese English particles are also found in the analysis of the data. The results reveal that the males have higher average number of these particles in comparison to the females (M:F=0.0219:0.0197). Being Malaysian Chinese who can speak Malay, Mandarin and English, when they speak English, their mother tongue or Malay language has an influence on their English. The use of Malaysian Chinese particles shows people’s politeness or softens their statements (Wee, 2004). In this study, the males average higher number of these particles than the females show that they have higher tendency to show solidarity and conformity than the female Facebook users.

5.2 Self-Presentation by Male and Female Malaysian Chinese

The other aim of this study is to examine whether there exists gender similarities or differences in self-presentation among Malaysian Chinese male and female Facebook users. To summarise, the findings reveal that there are no significant differences between the genders in the overall ways of self-presentation except in the case of emoticons use.

The findings in this study show that on the whole, both males and females present themselves online as their ‘actual selves’ in their Facebook homepages. As put forward by Leary (1996) self-presentation is a kind of impression management. It can be manifested through multiple verbal and nonverbal cues consciously or unconsciously (Jones & Pittman, 1982). When people represent themselves, they need to learn how to sort things by using the words their language offers them to do the self-presentations (Joseph, 2004, p. 15). In this study, more females disclose information than the males in terms of their self-presentation.

An interesting feature worth noting from the analysis of the personal information is that although both the males and the females describe themselves using a lot of words in their personal information, more females in this study disclose their personal information about themselves than the males especially for their age. When the female Facebook users in this study reveal a considerable amount of personal information, it suggests that they treat Facebook as a safe and comfortable website.

The online name choices are another way both male and female Facebook users present themselves. From their online usernames, their genders are presented clearly. The most used usernames are their real names. It is found that both male and female Facebook users use their full names, first names, or last names (males vs. females=100% vs. 93%) in this study instead of online nicknames. Names are ways to show people’s identity and to present themselves (Huffaker, 2004; Zarghooni, 2007). Since Facebook allow users to choose whom they intend to show about their information, the researcher asserts that in this study both genders employ their real names in order to make it easier for others to identify them.

By discussing various topics, Facebook users reveal their attitudes and values as well as the kind of person they are (Zarghooni, 2007). This is another way for users to present themselves. The male and female Facebook users in this study discuss a wide range of topics. This indicates that both males and females tend to express their feelings and attitudes by talking about things or events revolving around their lives. The most popular topic for both genders is school (F:M=100%;100%), followed by food
(F:M=93%:93%). One reason is because they are students, thus, their studies definitely are a popular topic. Sports, money and relationship(s) with other girl(s) /boy(s) are popular with more males. However, family, holiday, weather, music and topics about other people are discussed by more females.

Images can be considered as a symbolic or sign language. The profile images in their Facebook homepages can be considered one of the strategies for users to present their physical appearances. The findings reveal that the most used profile image by both genders are the actual photos of themselves (74%), followed by artistic pictures of the person (13%). Even though the male and female Facebook users post their own abstract pictures, they do not really hide their identity. Using a lot of their actual pictures as their profile images indicates that both male and female Facebook users present the ‘actual self’ rather than the ‘ideal self’.

Emotive features are also one of the self-presentation strategies (Zarghooni, 2007). In this study, the results show that both male and female participants like to use emoticons which are mainly in the form of graphics and text based smileys. Moreover, text based smileys are used more by both genders compared to graphic icons. When comparing the emoticon use of males and females, the study found that more female participants use happy, sad and flirty emoticons than the males (see Figures 4.8). Emoticons can show people’s emotions and mood (Zarghooni, 2007). With regards to the use of emoticons by the males, the results show that happy emoticons are employed more compared to other types of emoticons by male participants. This indicates that the males also intend to show their happy mood as well as their friendliness.
The females are more inclined to using linguistic features such as intensifiers, empty adjectives and tag questions. This concurs with findings of previous studies such as Lakoff (1975) and Amir et al. (2012). However, with the use of lexical hedges, initial adverbs and Malaysian Chinese English particles by both genders, the results in this study show that the males average higher number of these linguistic features than the females. The results are different from previous studies such as Lakoff (1975), Amir et al. (2012) and Wee (2004).

Moreover, the higher average number of hedges, initial adverbs and Malaysian Chinese English particles used by the males in this study show that the Malaysian Chinese male undergraduates are also inclined to using language ‘politely’ when they interact with other Facebook users. Hence, the researcher asserts that using language in a polite manner is an important value.

In the case of self-presentation, more similarities than differences are found in this study. Both the male and the female Facebook users present themselves in multiple strategies such as personal information, online names, profile images, topics and emotive features (Zarghooni, 2007; Leary, 1996; Huffaker, 2004). Furthermore, it is noted that the females do not hide their real identity any longer on Facebook (Zhao et al., 2008) but in fact reveal their ‘actual self’ to others publicly.

5.3 Implications

5.3.1 Pedagogical Implications

Bucholtz (1999) states that the community of practice is an important point in the need for sociolinguistic descriptions of language in use. Thus, there is a crucial need for more empirical studies which describe and compare the language use and gender in different cultures to increase our understanding of the norms of language use as well as reduce miscommunication.

In this study, it is found that the males and the females write a large number of words in their postings. Moreover, Facebook is the most popular social website in Malaysia. Thus Facebook might be considered as a learning technology, particularly in the classroom. Moreover, Facebook can also be utilised as a platform for improving students’ learning skills such as reading and writing under the lecturer’s instruction. In addition, since the male and the female Facebook users tend to write short quips or anecdotes in their Facebook status and feedback, hence, it may become a tool for students to tell their personal stories in the classroom. Further, it can be employed as a simulative for language development.

5.3.2 Safety Awareness

From the analysis, Facebook users disclose not only the details of their personal information like their real names, age, their hometown and the current city they are residing, but also their relationships with other girls or boys. The findings in this study suggest that although Facebook is considered as safe website by the Facebook users, it is still necessary for Facebook users to be aware of the importance of privacy.

Nowadays, sexual harassment and cyber stalking are serious issues (Earley, 1999). It is important that Facebook users pay heed to safety awareness even though the Facebook website is considered safe (Zhao et al., 2008), especially when contacting with strangers or providing private information to other net speakers. It has also become essential for parents and teachers to remind young adults of negative consequences of disclosing information and online risks.
5.4 Recommendations for Further Research

This study makes a small contribution to the growing body of research on gender based online language use and self-presentation. In addition, it extends the work on the online environment by describing the differences and similarities in language use and self-presentation of the male and female Facebook users. Although there is some relevant research on language use and self-presentation, this has not been largely researched. In Malaysia, however, it is a new area of concern so it warrants further research endeavours.

Although the corpus in this study is too small to allow the formation of any definite conclusion, it does raise questions in further research. Therefore, the results should be understood as suggestive and not definitive.

The main limitation of this study is the restriction with respect to age, race and their educational background, which may possibly have an influence on the type of language used in the Facebook status and feedback as well as in the online self-presentation. In future studies, in order to put age and ethnicity into context to show language development as well as self-presentation, it is necessary to carry out investigation on a larger sample and employ subjects of different age groups and different races in a different educational background and cultural context.

Moreover, Malaysia, being multi-racial, multilingual and multi-cultural is a rich, fertile ground for research in cultural and language use of other races, including possible differences between male and female language use between inter and intra-ethnic groups. Consequently, it is hoped that this study can be a stepping stone to other studies to take further exploration on gender, language use and self-presentation.
5.5 Conclusion

In this study, the general findings of linguistic features show that the male and the female Malaysian Chinese undergraduates use linguistic features such as intensifiers, lexical hedges, empty adjectives, initial adverbs, tag questions and Malaysian English particles differently in their Facebook home pages. Specifically, females average higher number of intensifiers, empty adjectives and tag questions than the males, which is consistent with the findings of Lakoff (1975) and Amir et al. (2012). However, the males have higher average number of lexical hedges, initial adverbs and Malaysian Chinese English particles. This could be due to the differences that exist between genders. The results with these linguistic features are different from findings in previous studies on language use and gender. The researcher considers the differences in the use of language compared to other studies may be due to the different age range used in the studies. From the findings of this study, it can also be found that Malaysian Chinese undergraduates are also inclined to use language politely when they interact with other Facebook users. Hence, the researcher asserts that the language used by the males and the females in a polite way is important and ought to be valued as an inherent aspect of the Asian culture.

In addition, the general findings of self-presentation through language use show that the male and the female Malaysian Chinese undergraduates present themselves similarly in aspects of personal information disclosure, online name choices, topics, profile image selections and emotive features in their Facebook homepages. A considerable amount of real information is disclosed by the males and the females, which suggests that they treat the Facebook website as a safe and comfortable online environment. Since Facebook users can set their audiences (Zhao et al., 2008), they are not reluctant to present the ‘actual self’ in their Facebook personal homepages. The disclosure of their ‘actual self’ by both males and females indicate that Malaysian Chinese undergraduates treat Facebook as an integral aspect of their daily lives and a way to communicate with their families or friends.

Hi, [Redacted], thank you very much for filling the questionnaire so fast. Since my supervisor ask me to use qualitative method as well. She said only the questionnaire is not enough. May I ask would you mind I copy your status and comments from January to June of 2012 for analyse whether male or female use more hedging, intensifier, adjective like in the questionnaire. Your personal information, name and picture will not be disclosed. I only use F1, F2 to stand for male and female. sorry for causing you in trouble.

JUNE

M1: Me. Every single night!lol the birthday kid.
M1: Abraham Lincoln; Vampire Hunter. Not Bad. THE DARK KNIGHT
M1: RISES!!!!
M1: lol the mum is so excited.
M1: HAHAHAHAHAHA WTF?!!! any aspiring part time model should watch
M1: this Prometheus. not bad. One of my favourite childhood movies.
M1: Interesting portrait with even more interesting interpretation bace
M1: description gambar too.

MAY

M1: LOL EPIC FAIL by Paradigm Mall PR Department.. Magic Magic!
M1: The beats and bass is awesome! The singing not so much.. wtf this guard..
M1: CHARITY T-SHIRTS!
M1: Selling T-shirts to raise funds for an amputee who has lost both his legs.
M1: Currently, Mr Name is jobless. His wife who works as a laborer is the M1: sole breadwinner of his family and his children are still in school.
M1: The funds obtained from the sales will go to getting a pair of prosthetic
M1: legs for him so that he can walk again.
M1: Please help.
M1: Short sleeve RM15, Long sleeve RM22.
M1: Shirts can be claimed from me at UM.
M1: Poslaju to anywhere in West Malaysia add RM6. for more info: Thanks
M1: Be careful on the road.. parking, lanes. stores and wilderness
M1: Ridiculous MV but awesome song..
M1: S-XXL lol jz fb msg me.. yup
M1: HAHAHAHAHA epic! must watch! got one made me literally lol-ed. the M1: one with th hoodie. haha

APRIL

M1: HAHAHAHAHAHAHA
M1: The Avengers was AWESOME!!!!
M1: It started a little slow and draggy.. Was having doubts at first but it really M1: rebounde with the epic final showdown against Loki’s army..
M1: Lots of fantastic action scenes,
M1: cinematography and comedy thrown in here and there.
M1: Definitely worth watchin once, or twice. Storywise was meh.
M1 : AWESOME
M1 : lol.. A little token from this years Games.. =) lol hamisu?
M1 : hahaha stop mentionin that =/
M1 : ARE YOU CONFUSED??" GAME lol Ur stuff are with me...
M1 : 4 shirt, 1 jacket , 1, track
M1 : cap.. thats all We used to watch the sunset..
M1 : FML. Went to get a haircut today. As usual, I said "cut short, ka-tey ".
M1 : The bloody lady took out the automated shaver and went all out.
M1 : I am now bald.
M1 : by the time i realize what was happening on my head, only a small patch
M1 : was left a the middle. So I stopped her there and now I kinda have a
M1 : permanent miniature mohawk..
M1 : Eat again lol lol i got one more pic of u didn't upload.. dumber.

MARCH

M1 : umm next week, weekdays?
M1 : hahaha lol UM FESENI 2012 CHINESE TRADITIONAL DANCE BY
M1 : 4TH COLLEGE
M1 : japanese version with even more clips finally has a passport picture in M1 : which he doesn't look like a convict..
M1 : lol Pei are u cute?
M1 : lol cute auntie lol dude

FEBRUARY

M1 : Tutti Frutti Later u expense. haha there is another one?? = PE
M1 : actually you can jz use any video editing program
M1 : (even the basic windows movib maker, imovie) and M1 : set the duration of ur individual pictures (usually 0.01 -0.03s pe
M1 : frame) which gives u up to 10 frames per second (fps).
M1 : I use Frame By Frame (up to 30fps) which u can download free,
M1 : just google it.

JANUARY

M1 : Hi guys, need your input on what camera I should get.
M1 : As you guys know I'm into video graphy so VideoHD and external mic
M1 : jack is important.
M1 : Mostly into macro photography. But would like to take decent pics of M1 : people an scenery as well.
M1 : How does a compact like the Nikon V1 fare against a DSLR?
M1 : Budget : RM2.5K
M1 : Items in mind: Canon 600D vs Nikon V1 (or any other recommendations)
M1 : Thanks guys
M1 : u ka? i seeee... lol
M1 : for the moment I don't think I'll be getting the external mic just yet.
M1 : Just pointing out an external mic jack is a must (which my current point n M1 : shoot doesn't have).
M1 : sam goes to upgrade lenses. do you guys know how much a Canon 600D
M1 : with 18-13 mm lens would set me back in Penang.
M1 : As in the best "heng tai buddy-buddy" price possible (no
M1: standard retail price) as well as the Nikon D5100.
M1: and what lens should I go for. pu the macro thingie aside…
M1: first, i need a all-rounder entry lens that is not going to be a waste of money.
M1: Currently, I find myself leaning more towards the Canon after hearing
M1: inputs from everyone. But probably will visit a shop to pick up an actual M1: unit of both model before deciding.
M1: any reason for that? anyway don't look at it as a starting lens.
M1: cuz i'll probably be using this "starting" lens for a very.long time.
M1: before actually having th. means to upgrade
M1: any suggestion? haha recommended lens? and this is for Nikon right?
M1: cool..the wo
M1: says there's no all-rounder lens. but i was hoping for a lens that can pretty
M1: much cover all the basic stuff without costing an arm and a leg..
M1: when u free? tmrw kia.
M1: random but I like
M1: bokeh.. =/
M1: lol Friday i KL d.. but ur coming down right sure.. dimsum at pekaka?
M1: coming? u come to Pekaka no prob. u dun la. expect me to go Telor
M1: Kumbang and get u lema bring ur becky la. h
M1: aven't meet b4 pun morning. u follow ding to kl la
M1: then we go scouting 2nd round lol sunshine square… buy beras?
M1: hehe thanks =) don't panic k? i'm having exam not u. haha hugs!!!
M1: make an all-out effort, Fart a little more on it.

F3 : wow... so BIG!!!!!!
F3 : The Prefect Friend: ......
F3 : u hv me, dun worry
F3 : I’m reciting poems
F3 : mandarin^^
F3 : sure, see u again next time. when u r going to open a bookshop
F3 : in penang rmb to inform me oh :-)E
F3 : u curi-curi take my photo?
F3 : LOL...
F3 : Tomorrow have so many activities... huuu... i love it!!
F3 : Do not miss this tomorrow at Armenian Street ...
F3 : only the bottom...
F3 : the lowest one, thr gt my name ~~
F3 : dun laugh, ok?
F3 : when u come back is ald over lor... next time la^^
F3 : crazy man They are all dead
F3 : Read to succeed, Road to Success.
F3 : opss... sorry
F3 : plants’ recall
F3 : Visit the beautiful Armenian Street for a day of arts, food, crafts, F3 : performance ,culture, an evening of lights and many more at Khoo Kongsi
F3 : from 5-10pm.
F3 : Drive a red colour Vespa, go to an Italian Café,
F3 : Drink a cup of Espresso.
F3 : Mirrors George Town Street Art Walk map available. Get yours from George
F3 : Town Festival office or Piknik. Free
F3 : Ever wonder where u can find these little guitar, Ukulele? Found a shop
F3 : at Lorong Kinta that has a wall full of it.
F3 : lol, here is my Dear.
F3 : Many parents said to their own children: When you graduated back home,
F3 : we ask other person to help you find a job, buy a house,
F3 : then looking for a good man to marry, living at ease,
F3 : at that time we will not worried about you.
F3 : But each was born is not to have the knowledge of the world, what?
F3 : If we have become a little sheep like sheep and KFC chicken.
F3 : When we were born to wait for dying, I would rather never be born.
F3 : Be patient, be strong; someday, the pain you have to bear will help you.
F3 : you never know when is your speech will make someone angry, pls think F3 : through ur brain 1st before you want to talk. thank you.
F3 : I wonder how to capture this kind of photo......
F3 : why look so sad?
F3 : we can only reg extra credit hours for sem in the period of Naturalismus!!!!!!
F3 : i think worse than that ...
F3 : better now?
F3 : Hard Rock Hotel Penang's Summer fest 2012 features non-stop music on goole image -> Ohashi trio another version of Dancing from Ohashi Trio... nice must go relax relax right after exam.

we're waiting......to the end of the final exam
Have you pointed to "over there"?
Have you took pictures with pee youngster ? Evidence.
T ^ T pity......
Do you know that male pee children, there are also female pee youngster?
Like the bookcase next to him so romantic
One with a three-year eraser lost in the first test, then bought another new one.
When I don't hv an eraser in my pencil case, it seems I cannot study hard to write...
Small encore ... another one please...
Coffee...
What is the meaning of when your heart is in calmness, you will not feel hot?
Under the hot weather, but gloating! ! !
raisins as snack
penang now raining since monday, KL after rain oso hot... yum yum... come to my room lor ^^ what is the price usually?
Junior Milo Ice A203...
diff place diff price, i guess... the biggest package cost rm12.60 only ^^
i listen to u n Jinjing Teo ma... later will drink some honey time ^0^ F3: “I cannot forget my mother. She is my bridge. When I needed to get across, she steadied herself long enough for me to run across safely Small dogs, mermaids ... the silly you could not tell? ?? when will these kitties come to M'sia???
sos cute ler
He loves his books, his books might love him too.
I’m stubborn atma-graha
Books, movies and music are the most important element in my life!
Trance is a good way of decompression.
Recently, however, I found little or no go daze.
My mental state often is vigilant, it makes me so tired ...
i want this magazine!!!!
craving for coffee now ^^
U want to buy for me??
normally in bookstore or magazine shop like mynews.com sure got ar ^^ something special about animal when it become piano and cello version... still sounds very nice tomorrow on 11am meet at kendirci room to discuss critical thinking, in the same time i will distribute ur job scope. ok?
pls use the word font Arial 12 for our CT's assignment.
I decide that maybe we can do a topic abt "No Plastic Day".
Bcos it is a topic that we r able to find many online resources.
we will focus this issue in KL as over here only saturday is "no plastic day", and then we could refer penang policy on "no plastic day" (penang evyday oso no plastic) in order to suggest any way to solve this prob in KL. Do you all agree?
I din do any voting over here with u all cos it is quite time consuming.
hope u all dun mind T__T then wat prob u want to do?
or the polystyrene?
y dun hv prob ler??? used of plastic is not environment frenly...
it takes time to gradable... waste of resources... can also
then do u ok with this prob?
then only we suggest no plastics day as alternative solution, ok?
she looks so emo n evil... wahaha!!!
dun worry, i wont kill u, I only treat u with an apple... like the old saying:"an apple a day, keeps the doctor away" this doll is quite expensive de... rm200++ ler no la, with this price, i can buy a printer lor... not Blythe la, is make by an locak artist...
looks so evil la...
Think deeply before you want to say:"I HATE YOU."
i suggest each of us state one problem, and post it here, then we all decide or vote which problem that we shd work on our CT. ok? deal?
post ur prob here on before or on saturday. thx ~~ seriuous la sikit
i oso thinking of that....
my suggestion is abt polystyrene...
F3: u mean our fbl lib? or shall we focus on overall facility in FBL?
F3: like toilet (ada yg rosak, stupid design...), access room din open on fri...
F3: normally they won't open it la... bt maybe u can call the abang to open for u de
F3: i think we better focus on sth else la, cos the staff oso need to back home.
F3: close at 8pm, quite bad la us
F3: hmmn...ok.... we shall do a vote...
F3: b4 i forget to mention, it is better if we choose a prob that can find
F3: some references from internet or journal in case for the literature review
F3: oh ya, no need... hehe paiseh
F3: now my hope is to settle the presentation slide that going to present on F3: tomorrow.....
F3: i strongly recommend u to watch V for Vendetta...
F3: the soundtrack thr are so fantastic!!!
F3: ya, my comment oso went missing !?? u know wat,
F3: act thr 2 person acting V: James purefoy then the last 6 week
F3: of casting was replace by Hugo weavong...
F3: hugo act in the lord of the ring before...
F3: Haha... thx for ur request ^^
F3: seriously... ...
F3: headache... ...
F3: pls dun tell me : „, nimm doch drei Tabletten! "
F3: Google ist sehr süß
F3: sagt mir was meinst du~~~
F3: u used google translate ar?
F3: LOLz... it is a song title... u search on youtube la ^^

APRIL

F3: Original, my sickness is not recover yet…
F3: if let say u r not so clear of wat others ppl talking abt,
F3: pls dun make that sound:"HAH!!!" as it sounds so impolite actually.
F3: why do you do like this?
F3: tonight... we are young!!!
F3: Reading morphology is like listening to a lullaby......
F3: There is a lot to remember!! ><!
F3: Madness!
F3: Today is World Reading Day.
F3: Readily pick up a book in your hand, turn to page 56,
F3: the fifth sentence paste it into your graffiti wall,
F3: and tell people which book you are reading?
F3: Level TWO, EAT PRAY LOVE
F3: i like this song... it is the soundtrack from twilight ^^
F3: same same here, heart to heart la
F3: Today I had a really fun, really fun! ! !
F3: Well, next year Lang Bolan poetess Xinbo Szymborska's masterpieces
F3: "love at first sight" and "Turn Left Turn Right" translated version of it!
F3: just now there was a monkey listening to my reading of the poetry!!
F3: the longest word in German-
F3: today is Earth Day... google looks so green ler
F3: Association for subordinate officials of the head office management
F3: of the Danube steamboat electrical services lol
F3: haha ... It is a good word in Oral Testing ^ 0 ^
F3: This is totally insane
F3: madness. in Malay saying "Walau eh"!
F3: the voice of ur beloved family or friends sure will comfort ur bad mood ^0^
F3: Reading makes a full man, conference a agile, and writing an exact man ...
F3: Histories make men wise; poets witty; mathematics subtle;
F3: natural philosophy deep; ethics learning grave;
F3: logic and rhetoric people able to contend.
F3: sounds like I'm playing a piano to a ox.
F3: act, this is a chinese idiom that translated to manglish...
F3: to express my dissapointment ><!!
F3: later then i explain to u, treasure ^^
F3: ehemmm...... is thr any pragmatic in ur discourse???
F3: lol, we r so talented ma...
F3: hahaha...
F3: thx for ur compliment, treasure!!!
F3: y, jj???
F3: find my room 1st la u
F3: wat time wil u come? i gt class till 4pm
F3: can... sms or call me b4 u come
F3: France has Mona Lisa Smile, China has Mao Ze Dong’s bad Smile! ! !
F3: Quickly squeeze a little brains to come out! ! !
F3: unbeatable song ever from Black street boys!!!
F3: like the 1st part when they are in a group dance ^^b
F3: when we r going to eat ice-cream... this i want to save time trap ald ... hehe ^^
F3: Have to belong to their own connotations.
F3: Before you find the right person, the only thing you need to do is to allow F3: yourself enough outstanding
F3: now I have a good reason to get 4++ pillow... lolz
F3: At every turn, in every life, it holds forth a promise that can make F3: a lot of difference to your happiness. Smell it. Love it.
F3: sometimes, I also wish I could do whatever I want to do, but this is not easy.
F3: Doing what you like is freedom, liking what you do is happiness.
F3: Working slowly and really fine goods?
F3: Completed one I did not have the confidence to complete the task ^^
F3: I have once own a pink duckling.
F3: only the bottom...
F3: the lowest one, thr gt my name ~~
F3: dun laugh, ok?
F3: my mum told me before
F3: ones eat vanilla ice-cream will feel nostalgia ;
F3: ones eat lavendar ice-cream will misses his or her lover...
F3: yup^^

MARRCH

F3: One word to describe the status now - "Trouble"! ! !
F3: thanks mein schatz
F3: Fong Chui San hands like "this is the one who wrote it"
F3: haha...
F3: together with my Chinese calligraphy ^^
F3: I miss my home
F3: T__________T
F3: Friends, you are willing to give us confidence and support it?
F3: University of Malaya literary-cultural group to hosts an exhibition of student work. We look forward to you for coming!
F3: :-P me too... their songs are nice although the MV... old ald... lol
F3: Another day is badly hurt.
F3: the problem haven't been solved... how?
F3: Another Glorious moment, so happy
F3: the problem haven't been solved... how?
F3: we all hv a bad day
F3: little monster la
F3: Child, that every bus to sit down at home, child, that a foreign country is a country; childhood, that the sign of the Zodiac can change a year;
F3: kid that swallowed bubble gum will die; childhood,
F3: thought the actors in the movie is really dead; childhood,
F3: how can you really thought that 18-year-old with a loved one together ...
F3: grow up in tears, before we know the reality is not so readily
F3: take life pure heart to see a complex situation ..i still prefer the one that JJ sing..lol
F3: the one comments ... * Comments ...
F3: only 3 ppl looking at the camera
F3: LOL... is obvious
F3: to start a relationship is not that easy as well as to end an relationship.
F3: Ich bin total sprachlos!!!!!!!
F3: Beautiful song by Kenny G and his son Max ~ ~ G!
F3: When shall we meet up again?
F3: haiz... seriously bleeding...
F3: tc and my be Sandra: is my purse bleeding... nt myself lo...
F3: my college has dinner tonight, so has to be prepare for everything like dress
F3: or make up, that’s y it coursing my purse to bleeding, haiz.... ....
F3: haha... some sort like that la.haha. u know la cosmetics are very expensive ma..
F3: Typical male! you will save money and just like a woman...
F3: it is already a history.
F3: yup... hotel is tana
F3: dun want :PE
F3: near wifi pentas.
F3: thanks!
F3: one night stand????!!!
F3: yaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaa<
F3: today is International Women Day, but WHY no changes in google homepage??
F3: have google forgot abt it???
F3: nice video...
F3: my 1st
F3: wahaha
F3: i mean u la...
F3: bt is suppose to write SH
F3: good saying!!!
F3: would it be a happening without a ending!
F3: Pls la dun drag me to the mud ok?!?!
F3: there are always ANNOYING trend happening around !!!
F3: I'm quite wondering that these people are
F3: EXTREMELY UNEFFICIENTLY FREE.

FEBRUARY

F3: Remember you said: mowing the taste of it?
F3: just wan to make fun^^
F3: haha... cos me n poi kean always missing u...
F3: tats y we often say that sentence...
F3: haha... yalor...
F3: u decide the meeting place har.
F3: which sbux??
F3: no prob!!
F3: haha
F3: whole body feeling so pain >_<!!!
F3: how u know???
F3: then, is tat the end of month will effect on u guys also???
F3: tats mean feeling pain for everyday...
F3: PALE!!
F3: PALE!!
F3: this szohr is veil...
F3: Does anyone remember that post about one I do not know
F3: the road built in a certain place. the old trees of this will be F3: cut down to the train, but because of its historical value and F3: successfully retained it?
F3: Appear during defend Sudan Street, anyone remember this?
F3: thx for ur kindness ^^
F3: u will back pain after give me a massage
F3: no need la... let me suffer for pain....
F3: haha... i really tired, wan to sleep sleep sleep n sleep only^^
F3: going for tmr outing????
F3: can i get ang pow from u ^^
F3: whr got??? i din go to CC reunion le...
F3: how come i gt the ang ang pow ??
F3: You are killing me!!
F3: let us dicuss abt it face to face on monday, ok???
F3: then u must choose one, chillis, pasta zanmai, sushi zanmai, or garden?
F3: garden in mid valley...cost rm 22++ set meal. serve wit salad,
F3: soup + main meal
F3: kill me faster><!!!
F3: there the book musty is very heavy.
F3: never mind la, sharing is caring mah ^^V
F3: when we back to penang, we can go thr n explore ...
F3: Britain woman to ask natural problems or natural phenomena? ??
F3 : Is fighting a very natural thing to do?
F3 : the turtle type + snail speed really freaking me out!
F3 : Rain under a willingness to wave after wave, no stop.
F3 : haha, then come here lor
F3 : here almost rain evy day
F3 : YoU wull support then?
F3 : Anything as the eye can see is not necessarily true, really important,
F3 : the real thing is you have to realize. Eye,
F3 : but is visible some of the surface of things
F3 : i went thr last sunday^^ this time they do it so well... thumb up for them.
F3 : Thank you and happy Chinese new year
F3 : very cute ar... i super like it ler...^^
F3 : He is a hero, ok?
F3 : A righteous man
F3 : it is a movie character, very nice one.
F3 : Emphasis on reading is a value. Read broadly is learning.
F3 : Learn not only to save himself, but to save the family, society, nation...
F3 : that time i really want to vomit bcos i have digestion problem...
F3 : Junior Milo Ice, thx, Happy chinese new year to you too
F3 : every time when I watch this movie, I will always be happy
F3 : I read to throw out
F3 : X________X
F3 : Do you have four look like? Like madness in front of friends,
F3 : like a perfect in front of the lover ; when youa re alone like a fragile look,
F3 : a quietly look in front of a strange crowd
F3 : "EMI New Year's classic" while listening to read the way
F3 : I worship a test papers net Monday.
F3 : the best medicine in the world = a nice chat with my beloved mum
F3 : Just did a pomegranate SPA regarded me to wake, so comfortable!
F3 : To a milk bath tonight, will have a happy sleep^ ^
F3 : Finally to complete their dentures poems of my youth birdie!
F3 : However, this is not the exams book T.T!!!
F3 : Ha ha... I'm okay ;-)
F3 : meet up in this coming CNY har?
F3 : miss gossiping with me???
F3 : I remembered this song is heard from others behind my house,
F3 : when I rummaged the cupboard, I discovered that I also covered up it.!
F3 : so hoooot!!! can pour down some water or not???
F3 : CS... here gt TAO bo?
F3 : erm.. don’t know lor
F3 : dragon i have lor
F3 : go to shogun la

JUNE

F4 : everything will be alright!!
F4 : We're bailing spared much... .
F4 : Fled Where other people find it?
F4 : Really want to flee, to fee away as far as possible...
F4 : which place that I can flee and others will not find me?
F4 : yes, island which no phone line coverage is d best! :)
F4 : only want to escape and find out the sense and myself
F4 : when you speak out, there is no secret !
F4 : 3 of u must try, hehe...
F4 : It still pain slightly in my heart…
F4 : ok, nw only can eat bubur. whr?
F4 : you are more scared.
F4 : try to be tough n strong to overcome all d ways...
F4 : hmm... vy vy sad 😞
F4 : yes anythg v chat in msn la
F4 : nvr expect tis, bt just can accept it with broken heart;
F4 : thn change d pathway n moving forward...
F4 : double beats make me cannot accept…
F4 : i din get thru of it, decided to gv up T^T
F4 : faster go sleep, more t3 mycin also cannot cure u later.
F4 : rushing work bcos rushing
F4: deadline of submission due to heartless ppl, send me doc last minute 😊

F4: : =PE

F4: sikit2 lo, no nd study n assg, bt hv to rush for work, gosh 😊

F4: : very angry and helpless, hmm :(

F4: : very sad, things did not get smooth~~ hmmm

F4: : just nw saw a stupid and nonsense doctor at SS2 for medical check up, since

F4: : knw tat the requirement is nd to do 3 test and ur clinic only available for 2

F4: : tests, just tel me i nd to look for other clinic, bt din tel d true, cost me rm50 to

F4: : do the 2 test, sumore scaring me tat my current health status not so good,

F4: : gosh~~ end up did

F4: On the stage of the audience a minute! A minute remember must hissing at ~ F4: At that time I do the wrong decision?
F4: God for breakfast - bubble ginseng chicken soup:)
F4: Is cough up, recently body a little virtual...
F4: body weak ma.. stil hv some balance, u wan??
F4: sleepy mode on itself @.@
F4: How to spend the Valentine's day?
F4: how to spend the Valentine's day? ever drunk, cried, laughed, crazy.
F4: have eaten and drunk to sleep and sad heard, ever played a gamble,
F4: afraid of sin, chatted, ever missed, escaped, seen, wanted to F4: laugh missed a person, live alone, ever had, weblog had been F4: browsed had played games, hired a person to live, live as wanted, live as liked F4: The western queen, Whitney Houston, had passed away when F4: she was 48 years old.
F4: she sung many classic songs. It was not clear why and where she died
F4: Rest in peace. :(
F4: this is the result, i hv to accept it, hmm...
F4: Finally, I know how to read a book.
F4: hi, hw's ur holiday? would u mine let me knw wat subj u will tk for nx sem?
F4: ok ok??
F4: want time u come find me think we can go, tropicana or sunway giza hv OT
F4: ok, wait for message
F4: thanks, advance mic? i tot u already took?
F4: i'm also thinking to think research method,
F4: advance mac & another 1 haven decide.
F4: Dr's subject is issues in economic analysis.
F4: i checked this morning, but didn’t come out yet, u managed to check ur result?
F4: I see, thanks ya. i'm not so worry about msian eco, but don't know
F4: what will happen for my advance mic, hmm...
F4: ok ok, will arrange go to face this few days after work. yes,
F4: i know the date for registration is 2molo, thanks. wah, so serious
F4: that din do for the CITES, luckily my friend told me day b4 d dateline,
F4: good luck for u! ☺️
F4: UM phone line always busy, i hit it last year b4 exam to settle my payment
F4: n tat time just knw tat system din capture my subject registration, hmm
F4: 2days for 20 episodes, mu ahaha... XD
F4 : Sabbas, I need you...
F4 : Home cook green bean soup ^.^
F4 : detox detox... next time cook for u ~
F4 : yes yes, but you should thank some my dear
F4 : u can try mix with black glutinous rice, very nice...

JANUARY

F4 : you still very slim, no need diet la...
F4 : at least u chubby only but i'm become fat, hmm...
F4 : Tonight in with the firecrackers symphonic accompaniment,
F4 : my New Year's holiday is over. tomorrow I will depart back to the city to fight
F4 : I cannot accept... >.<
F4 : really no mood ma... unpack half way thn play fb...
F4 : Fruit, steamed sponge cake, red turtle, flower turtle, vegetables,
F4 : rice dumpling, Long Xiang, candle... Tonight, 11.45 points are the good time
F4 : to worship the god, family peace, make a lot of money, god has blessed.
F4 : Bless bless ~~
F4 : lol.. my front advance as you ma, just finished taking bath and facebooking
F4 : before sleep, hehe..
F4 : Really exhausted after outing whole day... @.@
F4 : No no... don't disorder my sleeping time!!!
F4 : I wish you all: good luck for the dragon year and all the best, be in health : D
F4 : Rain, rain, you can wash away the car's wax & polish
F4 : I spent more than two hundred RM.. T ^ T
F4 : i'm waiting my boss come back, then i can remove liao!!
F4 : home sweet home~~ ♥
F4 : CNY mode on!!
F4 : You wait Pith Soh Beh reach, thn 3 of u can go bc d~~ happy CNY <3
F4 : see u~~ 😊
F4 : big sweat after room cleaning, happy~~ CNY is coming!! :D
F4 : Today I’m over excited, regretful
F4 : Thirty minutes earlier every day, more than a few days
F4 : I will be back to normal sleep time... :)
F4 : Any suggestion to utilize 1 Malaysia book voucher worth RM 200?
F4 : Haven't sleep, should be insomnia...
F4 : Before this, when finishing the test I will go with friends to crazy,
F4 : now I can only stay in his room in a daze...
F4 : that's not to arrange also, can't help me out from room now~~
F4 : want find something to make me don't think so much ma, wuwu...
F4 : nothing to watch...
F4 : i study up crazy also won’t do it!!
F4 : , later jeff band wa~~
F4 : are you sure or not?? then u must hunt good qualification for me...
F4 : when you will come back KL?
F4 : lol... then arrange to meet in PG during CNY, ok?
F4 : then you update me which day you in PG, as i will return PJ on 31/1
F4 : received email from hep and we collect at own faculty.
F4 : better check with your unit as the voucher expired on 31 mar
F4 : Sarah McFlurry we only can collect during their office hour, please F4: bring along IC n matrix card.

F4: hmm.. not really good... yes, the counter set at faculty, beside the round staircase, pls bring matrix card n IC. BTW, counter closed during lunch time.

F4: yup, we have to exercise a bit, hehe .. Klau x wrong until 31 March, same expired date with d voucher...

F4: it was crazy, hopefully can pass will do, God must bless me again~~

F4: tomorrow, i very worry about it...later 3 pm is my deadline~~

F4: i'm waiting supply from u, where is it?? i wan it now!!

F4: no more go go go, just now died in exam hall...

F4: trying hard to stop thinking.. when?

F4: I don’t want to study.

F4: don’t know what i'm study now, all seem disappear... hmm :(.

F4: centipede, i din mean want to kill you but you come into my room 1st n i almost been bitten by u, so i have to do so... amitabha

F4: should i force myself to sleep nw for 2ml 1st working day on 2012

F4: or continue fight with exam notes??

F4: hungry... studying really make me fat >.<

F4: next Monday..

F4: yes, really could not sleep, head start feel heavy already

F4: it is!!

F4: later CNY ask him come out, thank him great great!!!

F4: I mean I endure you this time.

F4: happy new year~~

F4: a bundle of fireworks at here!!! :D

F8 : not really, but toothache.....so can't eat
F8 : ha ha.... but no destist for doggie!!! kek sim!!!! 38lo!!! ha ha
F8 : i pour some warm water let the dog's food become soft lo.....
F8 : that’s the only way i think(she eat finally)
F8 : Really painful when I’m feeling sick
F8 : Be back to the children to go out and crazy enough material!
F8 : Combat power products, you wait for me
F8 : ^_^ Hope so!
F8 : you come kl?
F8 : Come Sri petaling la, eat togather
F8 : feel like want to go back
F8 : miss u???
F8 : remember!!!!!!!!u call me like that!!!!!!!!!bs!!!
F8 : Ok!hope so!!!!
F8 : ky san'ya very good!....he he
F8 : yes, u r right!!!but i cant control my gingerbaby!!!she'sick!
F8 : she herself had wanted to run!!!! don think i'm bad mama ok!!!
F8 : tonight need to "open night car"!!! charm...
F8 : I'm busy, these two fast to asleep!
F8 : Really bad!
F8 : not all dogs sleep like that meh??
F8 : yes la, zinc pie liao
F8 : uuuu lo
F8 : Ur daughter no mood to eat today.
F8 : I finish class at 4 that day.....what time u free?
F8 : coz I need to tell my housemate if need to borrow her car.
F8 : but no more!
F8 : wa shock!!!! an zua!!!
F8 : really hurt ma that day!!!!! a Bo juz cry song song r?
F8 : She enjoy it so much,every night also like that!
F8 : Haha.....everyday like that la!!!!!
F8 : Ha ha ha ...........,they have their own cute also.
F8 : I can not stop picture with you! love you so much.
F8 : Is that true? I die must buy! Stayed cool!
F8 : Xiaojiang's ears really under flog it!
F8 : Next day still cannot stand up!
F8 : Change " old ginger"!
F8 : Today she is my super model "

F8 : holiday....! semester break la, but I go back 2 days nia, F8 : not dare to bring her back Liao,scare the kids!
F8 : she will go Cameron with them later
F8 : Ok...I will drive my mini go back later....ha ha
F8 : we try this if have chance!!!!ha ha ha........get ready ya!!!
F8 : Tired.....I need help!
F8 : I Hate wake u in the midnight!
F8 : We are homesick! Countdown six days (-_- ^)
F8 : Didn’t you see  I was writing "it"! Stupid
F8 : Fake! ! !
F8 : Good idea big fat! ^_^
F8 : That title to put "the metamorphosis dirty monkey" ^_^
F8 : What do you think?
F8 : I was well-known! o (^_^) o
F8 : Whatever, you and I know that I like!
F8 : After bath...she is clean, I'm tired!
F8 : Enjoy ur trip, and take as much photo as you can! don 4 get buy cloth 4 me!!!!
F8 : I don wan souvenir!
F8 : not sure, but I know also very small.
F8 : I saw 2 years old de that day, only a bit fat
F8 : I will I will, dun worry
F8 : Sure la, my daughter ma!!!!!
F8 : My things less 1!!!!
F8 : The pink colour 1, that I tie the hair
F8 : Ok
F8 : Ya lo, pity gal, but I not so worry coz she seem very independent.
F8 : how about yours?
F8 : Wow, the same disease want even!
F8 : Same same! We so bad, but bo bian la! I also worry after F8 : I graduate I don't have so much time spend F8 : with her compared to right now!
F8 : definitely same!!! i spend all the day after class only with her.
F8 : so my assignment always put a side!!!!
F8 : always no laugh nia!!
F8 : laugh until ki xiao har
F8 : U 2 r, don’t here! Do not flirting he cried lo!
F8 : Ke ke!!! Someone and someone
F8 : Tell her, i don’t want anymore!
F8 : I miss home! Miss dishes at home! "Home sick" (T_T)
F8 : New toy for ginger!
F8 : we share it tomorrow har, bring all....!!!!
F8 : tomorrow juz count all can?
F8 : no good, Bo wait me!!!!!
F8 : I want share it in class.....I wan touch, not c and can't touch la....
F8 : Them we juz tell her "aram me"
F8 : Instructor birthday meh?
F8 : Mine 1 how much?
F8 : Tomorrow after 4 right
F8 : Depend on yours la, I'm ok, but juz feels more on cloth .....
F8 : 2 place not enough time la
F8 : Ok ok...
F8 : Ok ok, take picture le
F8 : Drag u to hell find Dante!!!! ha ha
F8 : u want go tomorrow after 4.
F8 : Can..... we drive 2 car, but go back u follow Ty ok?
F8 : so can you wait at our fac at 4..... u ask sky where should wait
F8 : Wat u mean, fatty
F8 : Where u?
F8 : Today save 25.......
F8 : very expensive, how much ur poodle grooming?
F8 : I though 25 is very expensive Liao....
F8 : 2nd only
F8 : I don know wor"...... jacky's uncle do it de.
F8 : actually 1 month 1 injection hor?
F8 : Kl.... ha ha. now I'm member so got 10% less gok.
F8: I think kl is cheaper, coz last time I bring brother in law go only 45.....
F8: he is larger compared to others.....
F8: 45 include the 2/3 type of external medicine put to it when take bath,
F8: after groom they tie 2 ribbon gok!
F8: Full grooming u mean reshape the fur, cut nails.... all that???
F8: every time I go also do all that but also 25
F8: Mine 1 also same.
F8: She don like I comb, so I just let her.... the consequence is also pakat, F8: very pakat! ha ha.... after cut I juz know how important it is.....
F8: now I think she hate me, she really hate to comb it.
F8: We are really a new mummy....!!!!
F8: Is really difficult to take care a puppy compared to a baby!!!!!
F8: Next time must share tips to take care doggie together ..... ha ha
F8: Can't stop thinking of u... OMG
F8: When go back again?
F8: By bus?
F8: I not sure gok..... coz a lot of project is waiting for me
F8: everyone please think of it!!!!! thank you!!! love you!
F8: go to die! different position!
F8: pretend to die!
F8: Because I'm cute! ha ha
F8: I dun wan u anymore, ginger is enough! blek
F8: what is hairdresser?
F8: Tired tired!!!!!!!
F8: I need a lot of
F8: R.E.S.T..... not R.U.S.H
F8: Wanted beat somebody!
F8: I Said several times door shut mildly. will not you listen to me?
F8: Early in the morning on a nuisance!
F8: when See you I want to nauseated!
F8: U will angry too if u were me'
F8: He is not close his door but "hit" the door! u just told he,
F8: even he said "O".... but is still the same!!!!!
F8: A guy that rent a room!!!!!!
F8: Yellow, 5 a day we do like that, c how they feel!
F8: Stress is following me non-stop....

FEBRUARY

F8: Need go to meet c.fiezah again!!!!!!!!! haizzzz....... help,
F8: think of her behaviour, want to nauseated! Have to be bullied!
F8: Ha ha... dun think another way la ky San!!! not good not good
F8: Thx wind ooi' ha ha...... she ask me capture de F8: U come my home one day la
F8: Come stay with me
F8: Ha ha ha... ginger miss u too! don hate her....
F8: Ginger can't replace you in my heart la.
F8: Wait u and ur sister first! ha ha
F8: Few month must engage faster, coz still "hot"..... ha ha...
F8: We already "old husband old wife" Liao... so doesn't matter!(^_^)
396  F8: Looked as if good to eat
397  F8: Owe to play! You dare to eat, I'll eat you up!
398  F8: The dead big fat "crazy red. Myself renowned!
399  F8: The dead big fat, ironic ah! I know my name!
400  F8: Homonyms can do! Do what you want then care about (¬_¬)

F9 : coming soon
F9 : Happy birthday
F9 : If I take the initiative to find you,
F9 : it is because you are very important in my mind;
F9 : If I do not take the initiative to find you,
F9 : it is because I do not know in your heart, I am important or not. ️
F9 : haha... cute ^^^
F9 : for sell?
F9 : haha.. i think i more prefer my angel and stitch... haha...
F9 : our's angel and stitch more cute or this? haha
F9 : Genting Highlands, we are coming ^^^
F9 : it is a crazy trip, we do a lot of crazy things... it is memorable ♥ hopefully we F9 : still have another crazy trip like this ^^
F9 : thanks for your photo, it's nice ^^
F9 : still have ^^
F9 : Soo Lin Syiang, it's time to change your profile pic... haha ><
F9 : haha.. ok.. change it now.. lol
F9 : haha... of course
F9 : Interpersonal relationships are a fate, a kind of love.
F9 : Not grudgingly, not forced.
F9 : From acquaintance to know well,
F9 : and became a good friend or lover,
F9 : all you please and I would like, together with the cut.
F9 : go to find you
F9 : finally..
F9 : watch this ^^ haha
F9 : yeah ^^ got improve lei?
F9 : a? wat ur mean?
F9 : haha, just luck only la

F9 : You are great! ! Thank you! ! ^ ^
F9 : You are great! Very grateful that you are willing to F9 : sacrifice their sleep time on face book for the community
F9 : to offer their own special friends for the love of the care home.
F9 : A person's strength is small, we can help to point is so little.
F9 : But unity is strength, division of labor,
F9 : you can pay a little more for people with disabilities,
F9 : the significance is not the same =)
F9 : The first time to the love and care of belongings
F9 : volunteers with a group of friends with recycling and F9 : classification of resources, I feel really good ^^
F9 : original recycling of resources and sell them, and also helps to love.
F9 : Caring home for people with disabilities... .
F9 : Really happy, my weekend had a very full and meaningful ♥
F9 : You are great!! Thank you very much!!!!! ^^
F9 : You are great! Very thank you for willing to sacrifice your sleeping
F9 : and your time on Facebook, for society,
F9 : for the love of the house care, for special friends offer your own power.
F9 : A person's strength is small, we can help a little.
F9 : But the unity is strength, we cooperate,
F9 : can help people with disabilities more, the meaning is not the same =)
F9 : First time to the love, Care of the house,
F9 : volunteers with a group of friends recovery
F9 : and classification of resources,
F9 : the feeling is really good oh ^^ the original recovery of resources
F9 : and sell them, can also help to love.
F9 : Care of the house of people with disabilities...
F9 : Really very happy, my weekend was rich and meaningful
F9 : really sad that you can’t join us today. next time join with us yes...
F9 : it’s one stone five birds la ^^
F9 : hehe, u want join with me next time?
F9 : ok ok ^^
F9 : sure you can, then next time i will call u ya ^^
F9 : yup ^^
F9 : ok ^^
F9 : I wonder if it was he is disabled and F9 : no one is willing to give aid would be really very sad sad, since you have F9 : someone take that first step, why limbs sound you can't be out a little bit heart,
F9 : a little force.
F9 : although the payment is like a drop of water in the sea,
F9 : but if you do not do it, even for a drop of water is not possible.
F9 : Just return to sw3-13... To me, the first sentence greetings is: Fuck U = =
F9 : Haha... U looks very happy o... Then I will always send letter to u ^^

JANUARY

F9 : u busy ma... how date u?
F9 : I have a brother as well.
F9 : happy chinese new year ^^
F9 : dear, happy chinese new year ♥
F9 : Law said teacher can't buckle my points!!!!!!
F9 : Like, you can share out :)
F9 : haha~ like ^^
F9 : haha... ok lo... that is my boy Chen Aik Lee... haha
F9 : sad liao la... ><
F9 : see got someone bully me ><
F9 : happy birthday ^^ my dear roommate
F9 : wow... so touch...haha, wish our roommate+friend ship 4ever
F9 : happy birthday Tee ^^

JUNE

F10 : very creative! Ha ha
F10 : whatever major you are learning, when looking for a job,
F10 : you must find one you like.
F10 : so you will be happy every day from morning at 8 to the evening at 6 clock.
F10 : Then find a person you like go together,
F10 : so you are also happy from morning at 8 to evening at 6 o'clock, this is life.
F10 : VIVA ESPANA!!!!!! jejeje
F10 : Ha ha ha... Really Fried ~
F10 : XD
F10 : what tomorrow? u means the gathering? they not say change to thursday 9pm?
F10 : actually i also cant..
F10 : big size poodle?? so cute .. like a bear!
F10 : still remember this ??? hahaha
F10 : so pity ! Iniesta~~ :(
F10 : Seems Legit
F10 : Muhammad Fikri
F10 : <Aman>
F10 : i cant tag @jun Chung and @tambai wa lao eh??
F10: maybe is fb problem..haha.. did you send the invitation to me? ? hahaha
F10: the second one like kung fu..haha
F10: little llama so cute!! haha
F10: super cute, hola
F10: The Telekom Tower behind exam building has an eye!
F10: your favourite dog~~having VM~hahaha
F10: hahahahaha XD
F10: so true ! hahaha
F10: u bought 808 already?? rich~~
F10: hahahah..y you tag coco??
F10: hahahah.. girls always like that!
F10: u got golden finger? haha
F10: hey, go to google taip call him, then click the first one,
F10: then write ur name and c the result..
F10: just for fun.. XD
F10: Don't dare open Russian web site.
F10: Maybe it's like those shock sit where innocent word like meat spin,
F10: lemon party, blue waffle can be dangerous as hell.
F10: don call me FAT !! XD
F10: hahaha..thanx arash XP ..lol..dick dick dick!!
F10: dick means fat in german..hahaha
F10: yala..u didn’t come..haha
F10: yes yes..finally...you too ..haha
F10: Me no leng pic, continue keep my pikachu :\\nF10: u can put ur palapes yeng yeng de photo.. XP
F10: muchas gracias.. 😊
F10: thanxx 😊
F10: then me n Yan become lesbian couple~~ lol
F10: no lah..haha
F10: no lah..haha
F10: you more rich lo. prince of dubai!
F10: where is ur gold? come share with me.hahaha
F10: hahahahahaha... lol !!
F10: Hey ~ I see pikachu! Have you seen?
F10: Shake around the head, you can see Pikachu ~ ❤
F10: Give it a try! Good magic = w =
F10: so beautiful
F10: better known by the names
F10: Nong Poy or Tree chada is F10: a Thai actress and model.
F10: Assigned male at birth, Poy underwent sex reassignment, surgery at age 17.
F10: very cute ^_^
F10: i can imagine ur face now like the pikachu that i tag u just now..haha ;D
F10: add oil heng!!still got time..i’m now just wanna start only... lol
F10: copy from the text book 1..haha
F10: cz he always buy many food for me..and i m now getting fatter .. =" F10: Have a little wisdom forget to feed the PiKaQiu... As a result he... ^ ^ F10: Wronged feeling is really very miserable..
F10: To explain to him, if he did not believe,
F10: if he had already already sentenced to death penalty
F10: to me in his heart, what’s the use even if I explain to him.

F10: if don’t explain I feel super uncomfortable in the mind again... Oh ~ ~ ~

F10: But he did not believe that he is very stubborn,

F10: he has concluded that it was my fault, that I went to explain. It's no use.

F10: Helpless..

F10: I'm pretty and sexy, and i know it ^^

MAY

F10: I don't want to talk to you...

F10: Lol ~ ~

F10: Since I kept it, I never feel boring because sweep the floor =)

F10: I can't believe that he is a man ~ ~

F10: Lol.. 😊

F10: Helpless ~ ~ but ~ ~ ~ ~

F10: Lying in and on the verge are far different~ you number two? Lol ..

F10: do you think there is no the second nobody dare to recognize the first.

F10: Ha ha ha.. Forgive and anger is also much different...

F10: I really feel silent... I’m on the verge of collapse.

F10: Can't put down, then look up to see others,

F10: it is easy for you to understand you've already gotten too much,

F10: and if you sak more, you are greedy...

F10: As long as you can pay the money then you will become a beautiful girl 0.0

F10: competent

F10: ♥ this song~~ NICE

F10: drain pipes hotel? three drain pipes have been converted into a hotel

F10: that is located in a public park in Austria! what’s more?

F10: they offer “pay as you wish” system where you may just leave an amount F10: that you can afford! would you stay at this hotel? (:

F10: lol

F10: I said one old and one young is in Which downtown ah? ? ? ! ! ! ! !

F10: like :)

F10: [Happiness is not the shortcut, only business]

F10: they 10 years have not uttered to break up,

F10: they maintain decade feelings the three unwritten principle:

F10: (1) can not lose contacted even if did not see the face, on the phone every day

F10: (2) quarrel that day but it is necessary to be good the same day

F10: (3) can not easily break up

F10: The decade she several times think they go elsewhere,

F10: but still insist on living.

F10: All feelings will encounter bottlenecks but if you care,

F10: if you may adhere to. I only wish do not easily give up a relationship .. ♥

F10: like :D

F10: SAD~~~~

F10: If I knew, I will not come back. so many homework. help!!!!!

F10: =="'

F10: Hope I can finish my thesis this semester... popi popi~~~

F10: thanks Anita Chao ~~miss you so much~~ :D

F10: i am fine here Anita Chao... how about u ??? hehe
F10: Jun Chung c ur profile pic oso noe lar... lol ...gong dai dai eh pic..
F10: next time wanna make u cry liao..hahaha..bt the tears is from right eyes..
F10: hahaha .. lucky boy Jack Tan let's make aheng cry..wahhaha F10: Which character would you be in the Avengers? Find it out at F10: taxable mashed became panda .. T.T
F10: taxable mashed means punched by somebody...
F10: yala..he punched my eyes with his elbow'..now my eyes become panda
F10: already.
F10: u can start taking photo liao..hahha..c the different..
F10: 6 months only the Xiao Guo already very obvious liao..
F10: This is surprise hahaha
F10: Make up three years ago, I missed your birthday..

APRIL

F10: Two times only Korean food
F10: how would you feel???? hehehe
F10: Life is too short to wake up in the morning with regrets.
F10: So, love the people who treat you right and forget about the ones who do not.
F10: Because of you, I will not give up! I will adhere to the end!!
F10: One person and one half is associated with;
F10: one person and one mouth is a companion.
F10: Companion: when there are delicious food, you half and I half,
F10: one mouthful food for you and one mouthful food for me;
F10: slowly we become a pair of happy fat.
F10: Never give up your dreams. Miracles happen everyday.
F10: OMG !! what happen here? lol
F10: very confused ~~~
F10: holaa.. 😊
F10: who is the kid with us ?????!!!!!!
F10: just back from zouk~~~continue doing my korean homework.. T.T
F10: no lar..haha..cz there gt a FHM event ..
F10: we just go there to support fren.hehe..i m fine now..how about u?

Thanks Aida, Enjoy ur holidays too^^

My mind left his bent figure and flyovers, good-hearted people to help him carry over the other two stacks of newspapers;

His world outside of what the ups and downs, he will repeat the same work every day. Day after day, his life might be, or there will not be much improved.

Real people lamenting society or whether we can do something for him, or whether you can let us again meditation what you need to complain in the end ~ ~

For those who feel stress now~ :P

1) Copy the following text and Google translate from English into German:
2) Turn up volume, click play.

We are just a mortal harvest will have to sacrifice
Met the wall on the climb over again tortuous should their teeth ending was even more beautiful
We are not Superman life always slip wrestle a few time Fall injuries, a pat on the back wounds when everything will be more beautiful trophy collection

Very awesome and super touching drama with the songs that full with love and hope ♥♥ Brave your heart, yo!!

F14: paise guys not able to find u all~got ppan outn of ssudden~
F14: c u guys nex time^^
F14: I thought she not coming bec?

F15: Song song! Thank you so much! How are you? Hehe F15: Omg till your birthday! Come back la song. I'm ok here.
F15: Everyday on holiday. Lol
F15: Thank you! See you soon k? Say hi to your papa mama for me.
F15: Haha no more la. You wanna party with me, is it? Can. Haha
F15: Thank you pretty lady! All the best in your life! 😊
F15: Thank you Terry! Take care of yourself there! Hope to see you around 😊
F15: Thank you! Stay sweet with your boy boy ya. Hehe.
F15: Definitely! Haha. Celebrating with my family as well. You take care ya!
F15: Thank you Rocky! Enjoy yourself during this holiday ya. Stop comparing F15: the prices of groceries ok? Hahaha
F15: Omg control control. Hahaha.
F15: Thank you darling! We should party again next time. Haha.
F15: Anyway, all the best to you!
F15: 😊
F15: Kee buddy! Thank you so much! When are you coming back? 😊
F15: Ruby babe! Thank you so much! It was great seeing you,
F15: hope to see you again!
F15: Take care gorgeous! 😊
F15: gasp The biggest Nickki fan has spoken! So honoured!
F15: Haha thank you thank you!
F15: Have a great day!
F15: Thank you Matt! All great things have come my way and you are one of it!
F15: 😊 Thank you my dear friend! May God bless you!
F15: Kennyyyy! Thank you so much! Cute change of letter there, from 'Y' to 'E'.
F15: Ya lor, special daoooo~ Cannot stand ah. Hahaha
F15: My birthday ma so I can be like that. Although I don't know "that" is how la.
F15: Hahaha siaw eh lu!
F15: Thank you Korean! Haha! Don't worry, it's the thought that counts Stay safe
F15: wherever you are.
F15: As much as I like SNSD girls, I still don't know how to read Korean. 😊
F15: It says "Oh! Good English!" Doesn't even make sense. Hahahaha
F15: Thank you! May you stay happy with your family! 😊
F15: Thank you Friend! Hope to see you soon! Hehe F15: Anson my buddy! Thank you so much! 😊
F15: Thank you! Continue being a great photographer ya!
F15: Hi! Thank you so much and you look beautiful yourself with the hijab
F15: Proud of you! 😊
F15: Haha alright will do. You too! 😊
F15: darling! Thank you so much! We should meet up again
F15: when I'm back in KL ya.
F15: When I get back to KL la woman. Hahaha
F15: Thank you Gary! Always say wanna go casting but never make it. Haha F15: Thank you gorgeous! You stay healthy and pretty too! Hehe
F15: Thank you Kerry! We should officially meet one day 😊
F15: Haha it's not a problem at all Kerry. Hope to see you soon! 😊
F15: Thank you Adeline! God has blessed me with someone I know like you😊
F15: Thank you beautiful!!
F15: And also thank you for always being a kind soul to animals
F15: Uniform for rebellious convent school for girl lo..Lol
F15: Hi Kelvin thank you! Hope to see you soon! 😊
F15: Marvin! Haha thank you! Yes now I'm on holiday dy. When's yours?
F15: Oh I see. It's ok! See you when u get back 😊
F15: Hi brother thank you so much! Don't be too naughty ya! Hehe
F15: Aww~ When you're on school holiday!
F15: Cos che che says so! Hehe 😊
F15: I'll be here till early Sept don't worry. Hehe 😊
F15: Hahaha ha nah ha nah~ Will bring you out on weekends then.
F15: Hehe I'll try my best!
F15: OMG a well wisher from the Queen! Hahaha thank you darling.
F15: Happy holiday to you too! 😊
F15: Aloha Glenn! Haha thank you! When are you coming back anyway?
F15: Woo~~ Thank you Vanness. Hahah. A lot of sound effect ya?
F15: Haha thank you then. Should sing more XD
F15: Thank you Cynthia! Stay awesome! 😊
F15: God bless you too dear 😊
F15: Hi gorgeous thank you so much! 😊
F15: God has blessed me with a friend like you so thank you very much! 😊
F15: Thank you very much "UNCLE"! Hehe
F15 : Hehe thank you Mian jie! Big big sister! Hehe
F15 : Tribal men lost in the mall!!
F15 : Haha nvm. Cardboard men got lost!!
F15 : Hahahaha where's my Tarzannnn?
F15 : It's in a mall here in Kch. A lot of tribal deco stuff going on. Hehe
F15 : Hahahaha sureeee! Let's take one. See you tmr! :PE
F15 : Uuk uuk aak aak! cries the monkey :PE
F15 : Early birthday surprise from the girls! I even have sash and crown.
F15 : Hahahaha! I'm so touched! ♥
F15 : I have member card! Don't worry 😊
F15 : If it's sushi, ALWAYS count me in. Hehehehe~
F15 : Long distance is never easy but he always knows
F15 : the right thing to do and say.
F15 : What more can I ask for? He made an order from Cupcake Chic to deliver F15 : half a dozen of my fav cupcakes to me today. Love!!
F15 : Confession : I'm CRAVING for cupcakes from Cupcake Chic and Bisou
F15 : since two weeks ago. Oh what I will kill to have just one right now. Sigh~
F15 : Haha. Why the nobody dance?
F15 : Hahahaha shietttt you. I prefer GG's dance moves now. Yaaaa damn hot!
F15 : Smack your ass for saying that about yourself. You're not ugly wake upppp
F15 : slap slap
F15 : Haha thanks! I had a great time.
F15 : Won myself a RM300 worth of PUMA watch from forming dice sentences
F15 : in the fastest time. Lol.
F15 : OMG for real?? At first I thought they were real turtles. But still.. Ugh!
F15 : @_@ Weird food fetish they have there huh?
F15 : No way. I mean, it's just not visually appetising for me. It's creepy..
F15 : Haha. I consider it as my early birthday gift from Puma.
F15 : Oh no! 😔 Your source of life philosophies is gone. Haha. When did you
F15 : decide to 'release' it?
F15 : Hey thanks guys! Haha. It was fun! Anthony Neely performed.
F15 : I love shoes!
F15 : I've seen this. Anyway, this song is still ringing
F15 : in my head after that day.
F15 : Haha what the.. "Nini". I know who always calls me that.
F15 : My family and Godwinna
F15 : Chong. Lol. Now I know the meaning.
F15 : I'm a Nini ma. you know what a Nini is, right? I don't wanna study, F15 : I just wanna party!"
F15 : Lol. Epic.
F15 : Thanks! I like simple outfit 😊

MAY

F15 : Just attended our professor's daughter's solemnization. Love is in the air~
F15 : Haha thanks! It's actually a two-piece attire F15 : The transparent top is from Farha Aleya Mokhtar la. It's not mine.
F15 : Only the skirt and other stuff are mine. 😊
F15 : Haha thank you but I can assure you no. She was definitely the highlight 😊
F15 : I already have this song ages ago 😊
F15: "Hey I just met you, and this is crazy. But here's my number, so call me, maybe."

F15: LOL. Another song to get at you. Thank you!

F15: Hahahaha you guys never give up huh?

F15: Every time I fill in any forms requiring me to state my race, I would have to tick the box for "Lain-lain". Hello, my name is Winnie and my race is lain-lain. Nice to meet you 😊

F15: That's why we're in the same family 😊

F15: Touching up while waiting for the rest to arrive. Photo courtesy by Alia Rayyan Haries Lol Haris, you REALLY gotta stop calling me that.

F15: Kate RyLing Ola girl! Long time no see indeed! How're you there?

F15: Kate RyLing Haha. Not a chance at all.

F15: Why don't you try joining singing contest?

F15: Then I might have a star friend as well!

F15: Amanda Ningkan Manda! Thanks love! But you're so pretty yourself @_@

F15: Many suitors in line. 😊

F15: Thanks to Bell for this pic.

F15: Thanks 😊

F15: Ermmmm I don't know what to say? Yes, I'm the Fresh Face girl and this packaging is recent. So I guess, yay? 😊

F15: Blessed birthday to my ONE and ONLY sister! Although you disabled your birthday on your page I'm still gonna let everyone know. Muahahaha~

F15: on your page I'm still gonna let everyone know. Muahahaha~

F15: Anyway, continue to prosper in whatever you do and God bless you.

F15: Love you! ♥

F15: Oh gosh I had the shock of my life when I misplaced my purse and couldn't find it!

F15: I tracked back my way to the cafetaria and thank God a few girls there were in possession of my purse and returned it to me when I was looking for it.

F15: I'm not so worried about the money inside but more importantly the essential documents (eg I.C. etc) I'm so grateful there ARE still honest people around here. Faith in humanity restored!

F15: I forgot about it cuz I usually put it on the chair instead of table. >:OE

F15: Lol it's the glitch! Introduce your head arr~ XD

F15: Thank you for this lovely surprise baby! A bouquet of roses and bear for my memorable night. You're always so sweet even when we're miles apart.

F15: Love you ♥

F15: Ummm.. Am I the only one who is experiencing super slow Internet speed here?

F15: Oh so sad~ Rynn give me some of your bandwidth then. Hahaha.

F15: Chung Jia Jun Depressing right?

F15: My WiFi is always on. WiFi slow, my broadband is also slow.

F15: Oh gosh~ Testing my patience. Haha

F15: Hahaha people wanna sleep dy lo still ask me to go down.

F15: It's ok, I think I can still survive with this. God bless me.

F15: Amen. XD r u downstairs?

F15: Haha. Go sleep la. Why are u still there? No need to promote the shop in the F15 : middle of the night la.. =P

APRIL

F15 : Honey! Thank you for doing the surprise for me. I was really surprised.
F15 : You're always so sweet, as always :) Likewise, this one year has been a F15 : wonderful journey with you
F15 : and I cannot believe how quickly time flies! You have always tried your best F15 : to make me happy and to be honest, I don't need much because having you is F15 : the best thing that can ever happen to me.
F15 : We'll continue this journey of ours with more anniversaries
F15 : to come. Thank you for letting me be a part of your life. I love you. xoxo F15 : Rynn, you look pretty smiling like this. Hehehe.
F15 : It's not with me Glenn. It's with Melina Minos.
F15 : Maybe you guys should meet up? I thought you're in Sg?
F15 : Hahahaha honey you're funny. Lol. And yeah Glenn, let's meet up when F15 : you're back.
F15 : Guess I didn't notice. __-E
F15 : Hehehehe Evaaa~ Yes still here. Busy as bee this week. Can't wait to get F15 : everything
F15 : done and over with. Let's catch up :PE
F15 : Look what came into the mail for me todayyyyy! zChocolate from France.
F15 : Thank u for ALWAYS making my day 😊♥
F15 : It's not a jungle -____- Rawrrrr!
F15 : But thank you for the kind gesture! Hehe.
F15 : Haha aunty, let's share! Thank you ya. 😊
F15 : Thanks Mimie! You're a wonderful makeup artist.
F15 : I love your creative makeup
F15 : Back to school!
F15 : Winnie Nelson Back to school la. Rebellious prefect cannot ah? Haha
F15 : Uniform for rebellious convent school for girl lo.. Lol.
F15 : Thanks :)E
F15 : Haha her camera caught me stuffing myself.
F15 : Thank God I quickly smiled to cover up.
F15 : So you're suggesting I look better when my cheeks are stuffed? Haha.
F15 : Ya, INTEC. How do you know them?
F15 : Oh I see. Hehe. What a small world. 😊
F15 : Because I did my foundation there too. 😊
F15 : Come join this Chess Tournament and showcase your skills! Grand prize is F15 : RM1000~
F15 : Subsidiary prizes are almost as rewarding. Tempting enough? =P
F15 : epang International Circuit.
F15 : So, who else is ready for the Future Music Festival?
F15 : Give me a holla when you're there. :)
F15 : Haha really? :PE
F15 : Wina Voon Aww it's okay. I'll take pics and show you k? Hahaha.
F15 : Too bad :PE
F15: LOL. Thought you'll be going for real. Chehhh. Sepang Circuit.
F15: Go google :PE
F15: I didn't know you want to go. Besides, I got my invite for free..
F15: Jess! You're going?
F15: Oh so you're working there. Hehe cool~ By car. Hey, let's meet up! :PE
F15: Jessbaby Lu Check inbox. :PE
F15: Ok. When do you plan to come again? :PE
F15: Wina Voon Umm. Will reconfirm ^^
F15: I love how my organic drink is helping my skin. (^._~)
F15: With my grandchildren and children. haha.. Let's plan an outing soon. (^_~)
F15: Hey babe, I'm taking Melilea's Organic Botanical powder plus Melilea's F15: Organic Soy Powder. Two scoops of soy plus one scoop of botanical.
F15: Can substitute meals
F15: Your skin isn't good meh?? If you want I can give you discounted price.
F15: Mumsy is
F15: a member.
F15: Cannot la. This year I have teaching practice..
F15: Who has Draw Something app? Come, come, play with me.
F15: I'll like to have a good laugh. Hahaha.
F15: Haha come come!
F15: right!
F15: Add this name.
F15: Come come, play. But you all might have to wait a while. I'm drawing some F15: of yours.
F15: Haha
F15: Haha Branden, I'm looking at your drawing now.
F15: Seriously dude, what is that??
F15: Hahahaa omg you people, your drawings are cracking me up!
F15: Adeline Lu Through phone.
F15: Yup!
F15: Be prepared for a good laugh. LOL
F15: Indeed! Good lord. Come play!
F15: HTC Incredible. You wanna play?
F15: Hahaha I just downloaded it yesterday too. play la. very funny one.
F15: look for me winnie.nelson
F15: Why post on FB wor??
F15: Hahahahahaha I've been laughing to myself the whole evening 😊
F15: It's been years since I last listened to this.
F15: Jin's first time. Kinda packed tonight.
F15: It's been years since I last listened to this. :PE
F15: Hahahaha omg bb so cheesy yet sweet at the same time. Hahaha! Thank you!
F15: First poem from you. Love youuuu
F15: Ha ha say what?
F15: At least it's not your wallet
F15: Hehe what challenge?
MARCH

262 F15 : Different people have different perspectives and opinions about everything.
263 F15 : Sometimes
264 F15 : this can lead to misunderstanding and argument. Learn to compromise.
265 F15 : It helps. =)
266 F15 : Ngek ngek ngek! Hehehe adorable as always.
267 F15 : Miss you too sweetness. <3 <3 <3
268 F15 : Hi darling! How are you? :)E
269 F15 : Woman! I thought I told you before? Yes I do. Aren't we on each other's 270 F15 : Skype list?
271 F15 : o.OE
272 F15 : So do you think you have what it takes to beat other players in chess?
273 F15 : Do join this tournament to prove your skills and best of all,
274 F15 : it is open for PUBLIC as well!
275 F15 : Come and show me what you're made of ;) Click for more info.
277 F15 : Yes I do. Wanna play?
278 F15 : Haha come and join
279 F15 : Greetings friends! Do join this annual event because it'll be a great 280 F15 : experience that you wouldn't want to miss! It doesn't matter if you wanna 281 F15 : join the debating team or just to watch, I promise you that the battle is worth 282 F15 : watching. Click for more info.
283 F15 : Lol. Over the top aye? Thank you dearies.
284 F15 : Miss Lame. Hehe.
285 F15 : Haha. Thanks cuzzie. Not yet. Haven't gotten the chance to show him yet.
286 F15 : Thank you. :D
287 F15 : Coolest dad I've seen. Watch it.
288 F15 : Remember to be grateful and respect the elders.
289 F15 : A harsh awakening. Time to rev up and do things differently.
290 F15 : Hahahaha aunty la.
291 F15 : Must be the photographer's angle. I'm so jealous of his skills! XD
292 F15 : Hahahaha Lynnie u know I like to troll you. Muehehehehe
293 F15 : Ya lo! Edited the lighting till even my hair looks black. ><
294 F15 : Yeahh I totally forgot about that! But oh well, I'll just try my luck.
295 F15 : If not I'll just have to take another. Haha
297 F15 : That's the waitress in yukata laaaaa ><

FEBRUARY

298 F15 : Hello Julian! Spam spam spam..she doesn't know
299 F15 : you guys
300 F15 : Thank you darling! 😊
301 F15 : Heyyyyy mana have famous? Lol. Thank u thank u. It was a good experience
302 F15 : I don't know geh~ Haha.You're more famous lo. Yao Ming eh XD
304 F15 : There were many beautiful cheongsam that night.
305 F15 : Thank u Geraldine! 😋 It was a fun experience.
306 F15 : Lol Keith, yes I did.
F15: Thank you everyone!
F15: Baby surprised me with another bouquet of roses! So sweet~
F15: I'm contestant no. 18. Got my name wrong though. Haha.
F15: Thank you everyone! Ya, I got 4th runner up. Didn't expect it. Hehe.
F15: OMG I never expected to be in Top 5 at all and I got 4th Runner Up.
F15: Hahaha what a surprise and a good experience!!
F15: Thank you everyone for the support! ♥
F15: Tonight is the finals! I'm just taking this as an experience.
F15: Not expecting to win or anything. Thank you for everyone's support. Hehe.
F15: Rehearsing at the ballroom.
F15: Yes Carmella, its the Chinese cheongsam thing. I have to speak in Mandarin.
F15: Thank u! I'll just try my best but don't hope for much ya 😊
F15: Thank you!
F15: Thanks lovelies! Please don't be disappointed if I didn't bag anything ya T_T
F15: Hey dearie, I just saw this. Miss you too! My roommate for the week.
F15: I still love your camera! Hehe
F15: OMG how come??

JANUARY

F15: Thank u old friend! Don't hope for much ya 😊
F15: Hehehe. U can tryyyyy. Hehe.. I mish u too.
F15: Aww thanks u guys. I feel flattered.
F15: Thanks dear 😊
F15: heyyyy! is it? yoga region? it's a nice place isn't it?
F15: OMG baby surprised me with such huge bouquet of 50 stalks of roses!!
F15: Really touched!
F15: Hahaha I'm the happiest and luckiest girl alive. I love you baby! ♥
F15: I told u to stay in the frame but u jumped up
F15: I don't know why u got excited or smth.
F15: Hehe no need la. The focus is on the roses, not me. shy shy F15: can imagine. (no la, i actually am thinking about your photo with F15: the flowers and a bear.
F15: still remember? hahaha )
F15: Why laugh till like that?
F15: Thank u czuzie! 😊 Happy Chinese New Year!
F15: So adorable. Miss u heapsssss!
F15: Thank you! They say Gong Xi Fatt Chai and all the best to u too! ^^
The Dragon has set in! Definitely arrived with style and bigger bang this year as my neighbourhood was turned into a momentary battlefield. Happy Chinese New Year to all and load up on all the positivity and prosperity! Have a good one!

I really don't know what to believe now. Just hope that I didn't waste my time studying.

"I have no regrets in my life. I think that everything happens to you for a reason. The hard times that you go through build character, making you a much stronger person" – Rita Mero

Curling TONG la. U forgot the tong. LOL. Nice right? Such big diameter some more.

Thanks 😊

Awatif Ghapar Hahaha it's been awhile. Lau or Lao is also acceptable laaaaa

Billy Simon Billeh billeh xobile!

ChunKeat Goh How like that? I don't want to kill you. Hahaha.

Yerrr~ Lol. Happy New Year to you too!

XD

What if ppl throw me rubbish for making so much noise?

Ah all the best for your paper tmr. What time is it? Help you. Haha

Thanks!

Why do I keep getting tiny bite marks here and there? It's irritating! =( LOL. FB kinda faded the colour here lil bit in this pic.

Anyway, thanks. Hope the colour doesn't fade away too fast.

Hahaha thanks people! I really like it cuz it looks nice. Haha. Huat ah! 😊

Hahahaha mini vampires pulak. Amanda Sura N!

Wai lik his comment? T_T LOL

Hahahaha. Even mosquitoes know how to hamsap meh?

Mini vampires FTW. I don't have calamine lotion ointment can ah?

Schaefer Weinberg Nothing! I wish I know so I can stop it. LOL.

Gilbert Chin Not as hampsap as you laaaa. Haha.

At least they reproduce then they die.

Stanley Lim Ngaiti.. Maybe hor? But not that stressed kua? XDWhut??

Couldn't be that babe. I even took out the mattress and sun dry it.

EVERYTHING.

Mini vampires. Haha you should know how long it takes for me to shower eh. Haha. Unlike guys, shower so fast.

Schaefer Weinberg Nah, hope there's no need for that. Thanks

Haha thanks babe. Nightey night!

Err.. Like all the time?

Chicken you. Went and liked his comment.

Owh. Germs make bite marks?

There's a story behind every person. There's a reason why they are the way they are.

Think about that before words are said. Cos words hurt more than anyone.
F15: can imagine.
F15: Thanks dear! That made my day. Knowing people like you who believe in me has made me more grateful than ever. Positivity for the new year. xoxo

JUNE

M1: Me. Every single night! lol the birthday kid.
M1: Abraham Lincoln; Vampire Hunter. Not Bad. THE DARK KNIGHT RISES!!!!
M1: lol the mum is so excited.
M1: HAHAHAHAHAHA WTF??? any aspiring part time model should watch
M1: this Prometheus. not bad. One of my favourite childhood movies.
M1: Interesting portrait with even more interesting interpretation bace description gambar too.

MAY

M1: LOL EPIC FAIL by Paradigm Mall PR Department.. Magic Magic!
M1: The beats and bass is awesome! The singing not so much.. wtf this guard..
M1: CHARITY T-SHIRTS!
M1: Selling T-shirts to raise funds for an amputee who has lost both his legs.
M1: Currently, Mr Name is jobless. His wife who works as a laborer is the sole breadwinner of his family and his children are still in school.
M1: The funds obtained from the sales will go to getting a pair of prosthetic legs for him so that he can walk again.
M1: Please help.
M1: Short sleeve RM15, Long sleeve RM22.
M1: Shirts can be claimed from me at UM.
M1: Poslaju to anywhere in West Malaysia add RM6. for more info: Thanks
M1: Be careful on the road .. parking, lanes. stores and wilderness
M1: Ridiculous MV but awesome song..
M1: S-XXL lol jz fb msg me.. yup
M1: HAHAHAHA epic! must watch! got one made me literally lol-ed. the one with th hoodie. haha

APRIL

M1: HAHAHAHAHAHAHA
M1: The Avengers was AWESOME!!!!!
M1: It started a little slow and draggy.. Was having doubts at first but it really rebounde with the epic final showdown against Loki's army..
M1: Lots of fantastic action scenes,
M1: cinematography and comedy thrown in here and there.
M1: Definitely worth watchin once, or twice. Storywise was meh.
M1: AWESOME
M1: lol.. A little token from this years Games.. =) lol hamisu?
M1: hahahaha stop mentionin that =/
M1: ARE YOU CONFUSED??" GAME lol Ur stuff are with me..
M1: 4 shirt, 1 jacket , 1, track
M1: cap.. thats all We used to watch the sunset..
M1: FML. Went to get a haircut today. As usual, I said "cut short, ka-tey ".

M1: The bloody lady took out the automated shaver and went all out.
M1: I am now bald.
M1: by the time i realize what was happening on my head, only a small patch
M1: was left a the middle. So I stopped her there and now I kinda have a
M1: permanent miniature mohawk..
M1: Eat again lol lol i got one more pic of u didn't upload.. dumber.

MARCH

M1: umm next week, weekdays?
M1: hahaha lol UM FESENI 2012 CHINESE TRADITIONAL DANCE BY
M1: 4TH COLLEGE
M1: japanese version with even more clips finally has a passport picture in
M1: which he doesn't look like a convict..
M1: lol Pei are u cute?
M1: lol cute auntie lol dude

FEBRUARY

M1: Tutti Frutti Later u expense. haha there is another one?? = PE
M1: actually you can jz use any video editing program
M1: (even the basic windows movib maker, imovie) and M1: set the duration of ur individual pictures (usually 0.01 -0.03s pe
M1: frame) which gives u up to 10 frames per second (fps).
M1: I use Frame By Frame (up to 30fps) which u can download free,
M1: just google it.

JANUARY

M1: Hi guys, need your input on what camera I should get.
M1: As you guys know I'm into video graphy so VideoHD and external mic
M1: jack is important.
M1: Mostly into macro photography. But would like to take decent pics of M1: people an scenery as well.
M1: How does a compact like the Nikon V1 fare against a DSLR?
M1: Budget : RM2.5K
M1: Items in mind: Canon 600D vs Nikon V1 (or any other recommendations)
M1: Thanks guys
M1: u ka? i seeee... lol
M1: for the moment I don't think I'll be getting the external mic just yet.
M1: Just pointing out an external mic jack is a must (which my current point n M1: shoot doesn't have).
M1: sam goes to upgrade lenses. do you guys know how much a Canon 600D
M1: with 18-13 mm lens would set me back in Penang.
M1: As in the best "heng tai buddy-buddy" price possible (no
M1: standard retail price) as well as the Nikon D5100.
M1: and what lens should i go for. pu the macro thingie aside…
M1: first, i need a all-rounder entry lens that is not going to be a waste of money.
M1: Currently, I find myself leaning more towards the Canon after hearing
M1: inputs from everyone. But probably will visit a shop to pick up an actual M1: unit of both model before deciding.
M1: any reason for that? anyway don't look at it as a starting lens.
M1: cuz i'll probably be using this "starting" lens for a very long time.
M1: before actually having th. means to upgrade
M1: any suggestion? haha recommended lens? and this is for Nikon right?
M1: cool..the wo
M1: says there's no all-rounder lens. but i was hoping for a lens that can pretty
M1: much cover all the basic stuff without costing an arm and a leg..
M1: when u free? tmrw kia.
M1: random but I like
M1: bokeh.. =/
M1: lol Friday i balik KL d.. but ur coming down right sure.. dimsum at pekaka?
M1: coming? u come to Pekaka no prob. u dun la. expect me to go Telor
M1: Kumbang and get u lema bring ur becky la. h
M1: aven't meet b4 pun morning. u follow ding to kl la
M1: then we go scouting 2nd round lol sunshine square… buy beras?
M1: hehe thanks =) don't panic k? i'm having exam not u. haha hugs!!!
M1: make an all-out effort. Fart a little more on it

JUNE

M2: This year, really bad people there
M2: Ready, set off to Guillain!!!
M2: Thanks, Munyou Cho thanks...
M2: Zowin Wong haha, well, it was going to ask her ~ haha ~
M2: go to paradigm mall but doing nothing ~
M2: Because of bad weather, the weather is not too good, so I decided to today's M2: trip cancelled, at home "clay pot" dance of Yao Chang

M2 : Raised his hand and sing La La La ~ ~
M2 : we wish you a happy new year ~ ~
M2 : hope everyone is in good health ~
M2 : have money rolling in to ~ auntie la~
M2 : dint give me angpau~
M2 : haha aunty~u hvnt gv me~wan me gv u d?
M2 : dont thk too much~ lol
M2 : u re aunty not leng lui~wakakak~ u too?
M2 : haha~thx jamal~enjoy our festival too~lol
M2 : Next semester I will be killed.
M2 : Don’t want to think about study. Boring...
M2 : Later, everything is over!!!
M2 : What are you doing now?
M2 : Have nothing to read rat ~ what can I do?? HA HA HA ~
M2 : Jayson Tee~hahaha  lol~hahaha~ Biz Law warriors!!!
M2 : Well fought, for MA and CB innocent sacrifice the brothers recover a fair for M2 : our victory on the playing the triumphal, SEM3 painted a beautiful ending for M2 : us, Fight For The Last!!!
M2 : thank you. fighting...
M2 : MA,CB, I and your past without any grievances, no hatred in recent days,
M2 : why do this to me???
M2 : Regardless of how the passage of time, big brother is always our big brother!
M2 : This is the real differences
M2 : Happy new year ~ brothers ~lol...
M2 : happy new year and good luck for ur stpm haha M3 : where? in my living room arh! I'm not hot... but SEXAY~~~ ;)

JUNE

M3 : under UM exchange program or what? anyway, congrat.
M3 : Yet, pls play hard behalf of me since i stay in m'sia and bring lot TAIWAN
M3 : snacks and chocolate back. thank you :)E
M3 : credit to me la. both that too humble. come on come on, give me credit
M3 : i am a handsome guy! which teacher said it, i want to find her M3 : haha. thank u. no need more
M3 : 1. don't oneself fumble, ask the way won't get lost.
M3: 2. the past doesn't equal the future; No failure, only temporarily stop success;
M3: Take more a lot of action.
M3: 3. and fawn on others, as armed themselves; And its escape from reality,
M3: as face life with smile, Listen to the wind and rain, as head of attack.
M3: 4. great aim is very important, must have a successful attempt to heart.

MAY

M3: Orh, this is kong fu u all talking about last night! alamak, that guy really M3: so high le

M4 : very steady !!!! :P
M4 : :=.:= really bad...i use hokkien to reply you lo...you want two??
M4 : hahahaha....you thought i got so good o??o
M4 : you know that lo..
M4 : yes ?? then before this is how or what???
M4 : common common only lo....I’m very humble ..
M4 : yes..I’m sure...very sure..  IS’IT?
M4 : that is words from your heart .
M4 : wa...English o?? in 2 second..
M4 : random face lo... you really like that, my lecturer
M4 : no CCTV around at machine??? if student also piracy off,
M4 : then nobody know lo... =.=
M4 : dance like a boss
M4 : never thought that in the morning no CCTV!!!!
M4 : horrible terible vegetable lo...
M4 : Lucky I didn't plan go eat carry want to meet which would make M4 : me go there take money from
M4 : fat...don’t so late eat....can diet also can influence your life...
M4 : so early lo your breakfast =.=
M4 : you have to repeat the title..
M4 : be a hammer like a boss ...
M4 : forget la ... 1st or 2nd college coat ..
M4 : after having so much fun as a director and M4 : player as well for the project at UPSI.....now i finally got chance to use FB
M4 : and say....my first time in my life and maybe the only time trying M4 : to dance chinese dance.....and get to second for this will be my best memory
M4 : in UM for my FINAL SEMESTER(hope no extand) ^^
M4 : want win lo =.=
M4 : must be lo
M4 : I even have the heart to want 8 college :P
M4 : UM got a job for me?
M4 : Not only me can do that ?.. .hehe.
M4 : Except you...
M4 : You main what win?.. .
M4 : must be lo Samantha Lee
M4 : not good feeling. I feel sad..
M4 : Not only me can do that?.. .hehe.
M4 : Except you...
M4 : play win anything?
M4 : stylish...
M4 : in front of me also not bad ^^ until i don’t know who is she... next week

JUNE

M10: Today, I receive news that someone aged 19 just died because of accident...
M10: R.I.P...there are many things reflected through my mind...
M10: what is the purpose of life??Stay in home, play games?
M10: Or work, waste ur income into gamble?
M10: Life moves pretty fast. If you don't stop and look around once in a while, you could miss it. Make sure you have big, fun plans in your lives. Because life only comes once, you better make the best out of it. Life is too short to waste any amount of time.

M10: Learn to appreciate what you have,
M10: before time makes you appreciate what you had~~~
M10: want to try this?? :p
M10: :P My dear Father in heaven, you see the secret places in my heart
M10: that are hidden to all others, you know the dreams I've never spoken about M10: and the essence of my hopes. I long to share these aspirations with a man
M10: who will not only cherish them but encourage them.
M10: A godly man that will see me through your eyes,
M10: that will inspire me to walk closer with you.
M10: My impatient romantic heart has led me to many mistakes in my past but M10: I refuse to settle any longer. I will no longer wish for the right guy...
M10: I will pray. I will no longer search for love...I will wait.
M10: I want to be hidden in You, protected by You, completed by You.
M10: I'm waiting my Lord. Amen.

M10: Simple fact...
M10: Enjoy this wonderful worship song..one of my favourites, M10: I ♥ you, Jesus ♥ you too :)
M10: 1500 can survive ?
M10: hehe..later we old d fat like them d lar..die d lar.
M10: so addictive :PE
M10: u know ?
M10: SP got lots of mosquitoes meh? my house is beside a river,
M10: that's why got bushes and many mosquitoes in it.
M10: dun scratch it lar..scratch it more mosquitoes … let it be like that..
M10: put some minyak cap cover it..if not put your saliva on it :PE
M10: u can understand chinese d..good…:PE
M10: Some people say you cute: PE ... do not praise him .. later ..
M10: fluffy nose he already fluffy butt .. kakaka: PE
M10: ur room and home too many things for the Mosquitoes to hide d ..
M10: This one is good for your future room :)
M10: Haunted by the story of Macbeth throughout the night!!!!..
M10: alone in room and feel so creepy...
M10: u remember the raining scene?? It reminds me when we are in malacca, M10: i take the umbrella to shade u whether in rainy times or sunny times,
M10: i always protected you and want to show to you how much
M10: i want to stay by ur side to love you ♥~

M10: The ring will looked nicer if it's on your finger <3E..

M10: no wonder u said maybe will have the nicer one leh..

M10: hahaha

M10: Then i take it easy in searching for room to rent can mah?? :PE

M10: ermm...hahaha... :P well~~~

M10: True story in my life :P

M10: You know what, I have been reading the Principles of language learning and

M10: teaching by Douglass Bromn for a semester and today,

M10: i really understand how useful it is!!

M10: I've been missing out a lot and discover many issues

M10: by just reading this book in a night. I've been wasted a semester for nothing!

M10: It's too late to apologize.. I can't input so any thngs in one night…

M10: SHe's just too perfect for me!! <3E <3E <3E...
M10: weewitt!!nt girlfriend just looked like a lou sai!!hahaha..
M10: like this pic so much 😊
M10: like lao ban niang lor!!! XD
M10: real de lao ban niang??can can can!! <3E..you come KL
M10: now i let u be lao ban niang :PE
M10: Me and my informal emcee partner :D.. Not chinese new year d..
M10: wish everyone ching ming d lar :P
M10: Hehehe..emcees for PAP night..But where is our Madam Aishah???:P
M10: hahahaha..happy ching ming to you oo :PE
M10: wahh!!mummy..long time no see u appear lor..suddenly u appear..
M10: i'm so happy..
M10: mummy, u didn't give me money for this month lor..ah zai poor d lar.

FEBRUARY

M10: KL is a very very dangerous place...Don't go out alone!!!
M10: DON't go to the silent road even when it's daylight time...trust me...
M10: not that worse lar..something happen lor..but still okay lar..safe..
M10: luckily i run very fast... T.T
M10: Thank you bii,for ur effort in taking care of ah fu..
M10: i wish im there v u gok lo.. 😇 I treat u pizza okay when v meet..♥
M10: Ah Fu de 8 hours operation went smoothly and doctor said that the operation
M10: is very successful..
M10: Doctor decide to operate both leg and screw both of his leg
M10: at the last minutes as they are very sure tht the other leg will also M10: be fractured if not screwed. So, now we'll wait and see his process of M10: recovery..
M10: doctor asked him to stay in hospital for 4 or 5 days because M10: Irene Eng, don't show sad face lar..bi got ur pizza jiu very happy liao gok.
M10: anyway, bi really ah fu lar..see him so pain,bi de heart lagi pain gok..
M10: he'll be fine soon and be cheerful and happy kid again..yeahyy!!!
M10: haizz..
M10: I'm so desperate gok for the pizza..i know ahh..i like to visit ah fu as well..
M10: humm..but i've waited for few weeks...:PE..also wait so long d..wait for little M10: more, nevermind lor.
M10: ~Thank you 😊
M10: Congratulation to Drama Gang!! hahaha..she's good in acting...
M10: she looks so natural in acting and yes!!gambateh..u can be good actress :)
M10: wahh!!mummy..long time no see u appear lor..suddenly u appear..
M10: i'm so happy..mummy, u didn't give me money for this month lor..ah
M10: poor d lar.
M10: I'm craving for burger, wantan mee, bak kut teh!!! :'(
M10: I will entertain myself by sleeping..always like that!!haizz..sad case..!!
M10: don't so stress and tension about all the mid term test and assignments yah..

M10: Slowly finish everything up and do your best..

M10: it'll be done no matter what..Do your best ohh.. :D

M10: When you're important to another person, he/she will always find a way

M10: to make time for you. No excuses, no lies, no broken promises. ~Quoted~

JANUARY

M10: Actually from part 1 i want to continue to sing but my sis pause d..

M10: and at the end it turns messy a bit..arghhh!!got many distraction..

M10: will be nicer if my love one is real in front of me de lor >.<

M10: this song is specially dedicated to my baby

M10: Hope you love it.just a simple recording with many background noise

M10: but i sincerely thinking of you when i song it ♥~~~

M10: Last part spoiled liao..my uncle lor..alamak~~~

M10: ~~~..secret? what secret?? dunno 

M10: hehehe... Bi Misses yo you too..everyday lor <3..

M10: but...sorry..hope these few video clips can pei you too 

M10: It is not impossible. Did not you say to buy keropok it?? ??

M10: I have to! ! ! Can we do that?? ? ? Dear Shuling ~ ~ ~ <3E

M10: I'm cute, dear. Can we do that? I want to ah.

M10: One reason or another is looking forward to buy it for my snacks

M10: never mind lar..wahaha. my chinese sucks hoh.very hard leh..

M10: learning hard~ <3E

M10: :==!!..got difference de meh..it's just a hand wor..

M10: anyway Irene, you see our heart?? is made up of you and me oo..

M10: Don't break it oo..must always hold hand together like in the pic <3E

M10: Irene Eng gal's hand should be thinner and nicer than this 1 de..

M10: this 1 macam always buat kerja kasar 1 hand..T_T...sure...u too har? <3E

M10: Hand nice but heart not nice, got use meh??

M10: even your hand is rough and big and looked ugly,

M10: i will still hold it tight and never let it go.I just love your hand like that

M10: Love you Eng <3E

M10: >.<..can see the flies shit on my thumb XD

M10: tahi laitat lar..flies are laitat..my teacher teach me to put 'ssssssss' :PE

M10: :==!yalor..forget liao..what is the meaning hah?

M10: my memory all contained our sweet memories and promises oo..

M10: honey helps bii to remember can mah?? please~~~ *innocent face..

M10: please honey~~~ <3E

M10: not excuses lar..really de mah <3E <3E <3E..

M10: my whole brain just contain you gok..then, can mah jek?? hummm~~~:PE

M10: shit lar!!!OK lar..must stop d!!.. :PE

M10: :==!!!..epic trolling on my face

M10: Never ever surrender~~~ *strong face, handsome look with tough body ☺

M10: cramp lor..my neck so itchy lor tht time.. wahahaha :PE

M10: :==!!! don't lar mention spider..so geli lar..>,<...no lar..just get itchy a lot ☺

M12 : If get 5c,then should ask mentor (dr)'s advise, KIOK IT!!!
M12 : Morning. .. Dad, Mum.. i'm back soon.
M12 : When i'm tired, i din stop, i slow my steps, but still moving forward!!!
M12 : When i'm tired zzzZZZ, i think my parents, my lover;
M12 : 1 more day i delay my successness, 1 more day they are suffering....
M12 : People who full with hope and desire, will always energetic.
M12 : THINK ABOUT PARENTS, LOVER, FUTURE.
M12 : THESE WILL KEEP MOTIVATING + GIVE MIRACLE ENERGY!!!
M12 : Life is good. world is beautiful. Let's live it.
M12 : helping is fun n meaningful. Helping make people around u full of hope, M12: Life is so wonderful!!!
M12: u believe H.O.P.E?? I DO BELIEVE. i believe freedom, i believe hope.

JUNE

M13: Half Marathon this year...will achieve my own distance record.
M13: when it will be start shipping? right after I bought it?
M13: so when is the deal end date?
M13: 21k for tis run. Join la...that's fun!
M13: yeah..so next time better be earlier.
M13: yeap...u goin?
M13: just wanna finish up 21k...thats ald a good record for me. XD
M13: 21 easy?! wah...i nvr try nvr know. but 42 quite extrem...
M13: need a long preparation before go for it.
M13: then hope can see u on that day^^
M13: Wow...now remember "human dev" & "early child edu"
M13: were in my ipta list last time.
M13: When i was small, i dreamt to become a pharmacist..
M13: but now it seems like my journey isnt go thru that direction.
M13: But its ok...perhaps i could contribute to this field in the future? Who knows?
M13: The decadent days gone well waste Oh ... it is time to pack all the mood,
M13: run run run away turning back!
M13: Following the holidays, if not decadent,
M13: where to be regarded as the holidays? ! Isn’t it?
M13: "What goes around, comes around, not reported, but the hour is yet to M13: come."
M13: so free!
M13: watch some funny clips when u get too bored...
M13: yalo...got who to ivite?
M13: kah wei..wan go PD mou?
M13: wats?!?! still got test?!??!
M13: XD
M13: Shuk Yee Chan, who shud we invite?
M13: Wilson Ong, balik rumah jor mei?
M13: O.O - Shuk Yee Chan, you will F____ by Angeline Mun soon...
M13: August in Eng~!!!
M13: ...miss you~
M13: still at UM?
M13: ok..so we go kelana jaya, same as last time. u drive? or me?
M13: last year that place lo.
M13: lol...nvm, ur car auto..i can drive ur car...lolx
M13: got parking...last time i nike run also park there
M13: last time i free..becoz i went there still early M13: the gate is open...
M13: if late jor...then need to use TNG
M13: wat time we start run?
M13: then 4am?
M13: 4am start coming to my house lo...and this anime if diablo?
M13: that game gt these character one?
M13: My 1st year in UM to be end soon...wow, time flies~
M13 : Gamer will know this...
M13 : anyone interested to go Berlin? here come a great chance to u!
M13 : join TV show contest and have fun with other foreign language learners!!
M13 : Half Marathon this year...will achieve my own distance record.
M13 : Honestly, if not fall how to understand to learn...
M13 : great talk about on9 privacy setting
M13 : Created out every song has its significance, its meaning ...
M13 : Tomorrow exam the historical linguistic, friends,
M13 : please remember Ferdinand • Germany • Saussure
M13 : divided "means" within the meaning of this theory, this theory is very M13 : important.
M13 : what is ur mark for the previous 40%
M13 : u can pm me
M13 : this time need to answer one question also GG
M13 : Hey i dw the english version c damn easy to understand more.
M13 : so work it up man
M13 : same de la...not easy
M13 : how is ur mark? let see u need how many mark to pass
M13 : just try ur best ba~
M13 : ya...i havent study part B also...now only start. still got 5 hours...
M13 : we can change the world man!!!
M13 : i also wanna cry...who like this sub?!?! but we have to study it...
M13 : we have to.
M13 : after few sentence of reading linguistic history, i fall asleep...
M13 : and this keep repeating for almost whole day.
M13 : cant even finish a single chapter..omg.
M13 : no problem...i have enough rest...but why i still cant focus??
M13 : can feel the bed thru my leg once i woke up , it’s cold…
M13 : and yet, i do not sweat...wow!! so long i didn’t get this feeling ald...
M13 : tonight is a good night for me this midnight oil burner.
M13 : wow!! he is really talented!!
M13 : pray for my exam, thanks God.
M13 : Lying on the bed under the fan + hot weather = sleepy~
M13 : well said, Einstein understand me.
M13 : do you know how important our willpower is?
M13 : its June! lets make urself RESULTS

MAY

M13 : Does the Universe have a purpose??
M13 : Come stai? grazie,right?
M13 : it was the time foe reading books, but I didn’t ... now play guitar ~ OO
M13 : typing a new resume for himself.
M13 : When u want to be successful, negative thought do come
M13 : to your mind unexpectedly. Its not easy for us to fight
M13 : with the negative thought, but can we just ignore it...
M13 : and life become much easier~ :3
M13 : baby's mind still pure...so they can laugh whatever they feel funny.
M13 : great...translation work done, now it’s time for me
M13 : to arrange & manage my study week schedule.
M13: I need to speak at the level B2 German!

M13: start practice for marathon tomorrow...hope it’s not too late~ XD

M13: [i have a serious question in my mind]

M13: i would like to know that, what is the purpose of M13: Matrikulasi in our Malaysia education system?

M13: since there are Matrikulasi, why STPM exist? (and vise versa)

M13: -anyone can answer me? especially friends who studied in Matrics

M13: Thanks~

M13: I even didn’t open my book......

M13: btw, anyone know why?

M13: Napoleon Low: this is one of the problem,

M13: but root of the problem is my question.

M13: thanks for u all opinion...in short, i think this is the priority issue.

M13: oic~ i am abit clear with that ald.

M13: if anyone got a more accurate answer, do tell me ya...

M13: i really curious abt that problem.

M13: (p.s.: the entire post and comments are only based on rasional view, M13: tis is not racial sensitive discussion.)

M13: well said!

M13: after that people starting to request to let other races

M13: to join( as to be fair to everyone), then they open for other races with quota.

M13: i think like they always say 10%..

M13: I would say that, matriculation doesn't mean that student is very clever or

M13: genius,

M13: just LUCKY. and STPM student is not the most hardworking one,

M13: just Harder for them to enter U.^^

M13: just wondering how many $ was put into the Matriculation.

M13: and yet, it seems like do not produce an expected quality man

M13: power with so much of $ invested on it. yes??

M13: i can back um anytime...^^

M13: this video always pop up as ad in youtube...but yet, it is really funny.

M13: German oral test this morning! i did my best!

M13: "Victory is only for the people who resist."

M13: one presentation just ended...one more to come later. woo~

M13: Hey future-entrepreneur!! Do you searching for motivation &

M13: entrepreneurship skills? Tonight there are a chance

M13: to meet the impressive speaker + successfull entrepreneurs!!

M13: Tongue twisters today! -Every year in July, Jana and Juliet eat currants.

M13: Where there's a will there's a......? WAY!

M13: Oje~ i habe das schon gewusst. aber Danke ja!

M13: Oh my ~ i already knew that. but thank you Yes!

M13: I think the information from the website are less. Therefore, I ask you...

M13: Have you learned this German TC, linguistically?

M13: u know...once i am serious in doin research...

M13: i searching deeply and perfection. XD

M13: Please thanks breakfast paid to mich...oder tomorrow for me Yes!

M13: i would not thank you, but breakfast.

M13: No! I'm not complicated. If I am serious,

M13: I want to achieve something of perfection.

M13: XD
M13: must finish this linguistic assignment tonight.
M13: I believe that we have the test on the Wednesday. And you?
M13: What do you think?
M13: for the test only lesson 13 plus wörterchatz.
M13: May God bless us.
M13: We got CT discussion tomorrow?
M13: When you believe....
M13: Speakers for this week: Jonathan Quek & Candice Lee.
M13: Don't slip your chance to meet and hear inspiring stories.
M13: from them on 15th May 2012, DP1 (KPS). See you there!
M13: Oh-oh- seems like my brain starts to be tired.. I haven't done my revision yet!
M13: A turning point in my life, a clearer vision and mission. The pathway is misty, M13: but it do become clearer as I keep going.
M13: I knew I looks weird...XP
M13: Entrepreneurship Workshop, right here, in UM!!

M13: Today, the weather is very beautiful... fine!
M13: That's true... and I smiled... only in M'sia
M13: Come and join us.
M13: The present has to be our goal, because it is the only thing that exists.
M13: Historical linguistic... why u so hard to understand??

APRIL

M13: Avengers is so Awesome that it's so fun all the way... humour, incredible, M13: Heroes, excited... AWESOME!!
M13: You will learn what, then you can what.
M13: You can what you are what.
M13: You're what, then you have what.
M13: Sweating in my room?! Weather... why u so HOT?!!
M13: 24 hours per day... how do you spent ur time??
M13: 7th Kolej MKC... 2 hours to go~
M13: 3 more days to go!!!!!!!!!!!!
M13: Excited???
M13: Do make sure you will not miss the opportunity to enjoy those GREAT & AWESOME M13: performances ya~~
M13: Faster jot down this event in your schedule ya.
M13: You wouldn't want to miss the fun.
M13: "Don't stop moving and did it!"
M13: Beas Not only is the body: a sad, the other also; a happy, the other one will.
M13: Days of doing nothing very decadent, very sad, it is time to move!
M13: this song keep rolling in my mind, although he ended few days already.
M13: Great sing by! very moved.

MARCH

M13: Participate in the cradle ... the word "cool"!

M13: Ticket RM8. come and enjoy the music!
M13: sure!! u want how many??? XD
M13: registed after my birthdate already. XD
M13: i shuld study minor, instead of so much linguistic and elective course.
M13: Opportunities are everywhere...be prepared to grap them.
M13: Road-map under the stars forever and let you go the way of others; creative,
M13: go its own way
M13: He thanks for it, but on the other way i dont think like tat,
M13: i hope he should keep growing...XD (evil)
M13: Each day get a little better. Each day get a little stronger.
M13: Each day get a little closer to your edge.
M13: The pursuit of a better you starts today and then again tomorrow and M13: then again the day after....
M13: great idea and start up..and now contribute to society! great guy.
M13: all the legend heros here! Digimon fans~ come n watch!
M13: UM large cradle of the Chinese Society of Hand songs express an interpretation would be and the advent slightly!
M13: Is the time about your friends come together to enjoy the music! Hurry!
M13: how much is the fee?
M13: we need ur support!
M13: well said
M13: "fishing" during Historical linguistic lecture....
M13: over flood of tasks - determination and focus needed.
M13: Hire character. Train skills - Peter Schutz
M13: do u feel like things moving quite fast?
M13: and we have no time to do a proper revision...oh god~
M13: anyone done today homework?? can i copy urs? haha!!
M13: seite 116 und 118. hast du shon fertig?
M13: can u type the answer for question 9?? i dunno how to do
M13: 21 year old, a new chapter of my journey.
M13: Thanks all my friends who send me wishes, i do appreciate that so much!

FEBRUARY

M13: German makes fun!
M13: No matter who you are, don't ever think you can't do it!
M13: why my FB page change to timeline version automatically???
M13: big mosquito appear in my room!
M13: I am also the Mr. right!
M13: You may have fundamental questions about yourself and your identity:
M13: Who am I? What should I do with my life? It is quite natural M13: to feel unsure about the best way to proceed.
M13: If you haven't yet decided on your future course, M13: I feel the best thing is just to concentrate your energies on what M13: you need to do right now, and gradually your full potential will emerge.
M13: practice + effort is indeed needed beside than believe in yourself.
M13: anyone know are there any music instrument shop that M13: provide reasonable price product? at Kepong and PJ area.?? anyone??
M13: Graduate retail training day2 ended:
M13: visited various department of Panasonic, eyes-opened.
M13: dance calorie burn workout in hostel room like a boss now!!!
M13: wanna keep fit jor...damn fat now.
M13: mandy..i folo youtube one...
M13: erm...our body after 20mins non-stop exercise only start burning calories...
M13: Graduate Retail Training day1 ended –
M13: good speech from Mr Jeff Lee (MD), Mr Cheng Chee Chung (Sales Director)
M13: and Mr Gorbachan Singh (GM-HRD).
M13: Have a fun training with Mr K.Ravinther also! having a good day at M13: Panasonic.
M13: Your environment does not matter. Everything starts with you.
M13: You must forge yourself through your own efforts.
M13: I urge each of you to create something,
M13: start something and make a success of something.
M13: That is the essence of human existence, the challenge of youth.
M13: Herein lies a wonderful way of life always aiming for the future.

JANUARY

M13: exam results...why u no come out.
M13: "How others see you is not important. How you see yourself means M13: everything."
M13: news news!!!
M13: for procrastinating popular demand, the organizers have Singing date
M13: extended to 02-2-2012 12:00 ! !
M13: friends not cross the songs, do not hesitate! Now is your chance!
M13: Just the lyrics and sent to the full song demo 1112@gmail.com on the line!
M13: We wait for you, dont be late, ok?
M13: FEB = continue my journey after a good rest
M13: the sky war began!
M13: course registration done? let's back and slept ~...>.<
M13: be a man, ok?
M13: music in my cells...feel the beat! Rockss!!!
M13: he took the photo^^
M13: New year, fast! good luck, good luck!
M13: bored at home ... nothing to do ... research started!
M13: If great powers on this earth ... Do you believe that?
M13: anyone want form 6 reference books??
M13: Pack wardrobe, received with a lot of a lot of high school to M13: participate in the Institute of clothes and competition clothing inside...
M13: do not want those old clothes wanted, but not willing to...
M13: because those are hidden in the many memories!
M13: There's just a narrow line between geezer and geek.
M13: come come ... soon! omg ~ every time I hear this song I will feel hot,
M13: the New Year weather is so hot!

M14: Sadly to Ah Ze..today my condition very good even heavy severe flu..
M14: I’m standing firm right now..
M14: keke...i not so weak la...see condition..huatttt
M14: Ying today pattern...see she take picture de posy keep fang dian...
M14: lolll
M14: My sister became angry... obviously enough la already got 6..
M14: reach 10 is difficult..
M14: ==... like this mie my friend...ytd condition bo good nia...@@
M14: my friend finally u wake up..>.< ytd u all mcd rite?
M14: ok!!no problem!! paise..
M14: wan follow u all go mcd de..bt really tak leh walk d..paise M14: i will make sure next time i sleep 9 hours and dun do any exercise on the day...arghhhh
M14: yea i will de..lol
M14: bt anyway really sorry for u two..cause u two cannot enjoy...very paise for M14: that..
M14: ok ok..sure de..paise >.<
M14: >.< u say about vomit..i lagi paise == hen gelik..
M14: very long time nvr drunk till vomit..
M14: i will make sure myself next time wont drunk and vomit d..keke
M14: lol..im guy version de..bt this way to hold zhu very gelik..lol
M14: kw: dun say d..shy... 😊😊
M14: min shen: jiu jiu yi ci..nvr mind..mz enjoy>.<
M14: chill..life is fair...chance will come..time will arrive..and person will be right..chill..keke..enjoy life...
M14: yea..i made alot..lol
M14: cannot say..pantang..
M14: lo..gals always think that the way to determine whether a guy is really wanna go for her is to let the guy chase her longer..
M14: den guy will think that forcing cannot get happiness.
M14: the girl don’t want me then y should i keep goin for her..
M14: chance of a great relationship ends before it starts..
M14: lol...can jz say a type of it la..
M14: lol...dun keep her..if want her try don’t only think about it..
M14: the most classic one..
M14: come again..i need to get reputation...keep it lowwwwww....
M14: already know there is no result~~ but still want to try ~~
M14: I want to touch heaven and the earth~~~`
M14: think less~ in the past all the sadness ~
M14: just trained me to be brave for you~
M14: The bright side sad ~ ~ all are just training me brave for you ~
M14: you want to join us......u disclose this shit out how i gonna play around....
M14: Finally i found the song that time i said to u all at papa rich found!!
M14: lol no emotion..i master this song already ..next time can perform high M14: high....
M14: damn it..the fucking spoiler..lucky its an aunty..
M14: if its a guy i will be fucking scared..it ll be damn gay..
M14: damn..wat an experience..firstly i feel like change place bt i scared
M14: so might sing songs to me..i thought the aunty want one=.=
M14: =.= damnnnnn.. she keep mumbling there...
M14: =.= the fella sure watched b4 d and come in for another time..
M14: =.= alone..nvr mind..the way she socialize makes me scared ballsss..
M14: bt she seems like enjoying telling ppl the coming scene....
M14: look... hw u want me laugh besides aunty jz after M14: she talking/mumbling to me?
M14: =.= like nt respect her dun do wat thing to me..zzz
M14: babe..i gonna gay wife u here d..
M14: i still rmb last nite hw u convinced me nt to let me drive home alone..
M14: i feel so warm nw when i recal back..owh..so warm...
M14: and also Lee...owhh...from ur words i feel the touch...
M14: when u say u gonna regret for ur whole life if im prosecuted. kekekeke
M14: They want the resources, so they'll think '
M14: Maybe I can lo..ve him in the way that makes him stay long-term..
M14: really so easy...1/3 woman made it....bt porsche win...always M14: yea lo...bt this research was carried out at europe ? ..malaysian car enter...
M14: keke..if this would be the case in malaysia
M14: then the level would be dropped to 'they'd rather have the civic guy,
M14: than the proton or perodua guy' kekeke...
M14: its always proven..it has never been guys..as i told u all b4..
M14: its been fact since the beginning..gals are realistic..
M14: and its not wat as said by some gals who think only the guy
M14: who doesn have capability and earning power voiced out such opinion.
M14: its fact..always..
M14: oh yea babe...here it is..
M14: =.=
M14: cannot confirm wifi u let it through..
M14: KL..impossible ..working how to go..

MAY

M14: Didn't want to take it slow
M14: In a daze, going crazed, I can barely think M14: You're replaying in my brain, find it hard to sleep, oh oh
M14: Waiting for my phone to blow.
M14: damn…
M14: yea la........that time cannot rmb the flow of the song....niceeeeee
M14: u see he know o not..i just sked he cannot..keke
M14: where is my naz ge..still sleeping rite....keke
M14: have or not?.....work can come out oso de... adjust adjust can d...See >.<
M14: when reaches pour me another one pour me another
M14: one i rmb hw you shout it...keke..
M14: nigel - set fire to the rain ..
M14: and after this the kongkam game session makes us all kongkam >.<
M14: 1.5 months later genting again k..this time mz huat d...bo song!
M14: =.=
M14: happy will graduate:-) all the best in everything lol =.=
M14: my shoulder almost dislocated~~keke...
M14: captain and god..
M14: when wan post thing at fb pls think carefully..
M14: this is the strongest medium nw..
M14: like very reasonable ..next time la next time la~~
M14: try to change the party there...see how u feel..
M14: put yourself in ppl's shoe man..
M14: sigh..duno till when tis fella only will wake up..
M14: someday..bt probably has to be striked by something big or serious...
M14: else he still slumber there..

APRIL

M14: our government..very mean..
M14: lol...same person......
M14: waiting for your status update , go net?
M14: nt join..i jz standing besides the crowd support ..
M14: yea we got to do something..for our future generation or even nw for the M14: sake for citizens..either moral support or physcial support will do..
M14: no movie..movie off..keke...
M14: okie
M14: then we ll b fucking gay..this is strongly nt recommended..
M14: owh damn .. pls kyle started to make me had nightmare whenever think
M14: about his disgusting pose and tone..damnnnn
M14: damn u kyle..u...can u find another victim...
M14: seriously...zz
M14: can u increase my reputation kyle? zzz..
M14: happy..i need increase my reputation..lucky din many seniors..
M14: jz one or two..
M14: if nt alwiz see i talk this kind of thing..go where put my face..
M14: and alwiz do thing like this..
M14: didn’t add*
M14: u dun und de la..tag can tag u see i got say much in other tag me..
M14: this kind too a bit......
M14: dun say like this la bro, come on.. put this issue aside..ntg big deal..
M14: =.=
M14: god is fair, i believe.. I have faith..
M14: lol..i got a lot of god cover me..
M14: keke.. got take our thing to the discipline teach one...
M14: IT IS HARD TO BE A TEACHER
M14: this kind of PAST THING. NO NEED TO MENTION IT..keke M14: exactly..
M14: So True..
M14: yuan..u.......lol dq i think so..if i fry i also like this..
M14: the best example is sell car....
M14: yea like hw office ppl do? lol print wrg keep reprint..
M14: another wild one..keke
M14: to everybody out there with good condition,
M14: nvr giv up on little mess up in ur life.down in relationship,
M14: bad social networking, poor ability in work, these are all ntg..
M14: life bounce and it will get back normal and its alwiz like this..
M14: hav a look on this little boy and u should understand the spirits of life..
M14: nice one .. keke

MARCH

M14: hav a first bite on massimo...~u make me feel like dumping gardenia d~
M14: robert knock rocks...
M14: its time to massimo..gardenia siam..
M14: u jeo me we can eat 2gather .
M14: later ppl fly back, u noe treat..u btr save money first..wuahaha..
M14: u go sleep la 2mrw outing wif wilson gor..
M14: haha okie okie e u..
M14: this girl beautiful...nvr mind i admit
M14: extraordinary~~
M14: only a joke la...wat gay....
M14: yea thats true man..haha
M14: thankz you guys for spending time guiding me home and M14: a lot other friends who accompany as well...seriously appreciate it..

M14: bt a bit actually ...
M14: lvl too bad  too long nvr touch..train duo ji ci mayb jiu ok de..
M14: giv me some time..hoho
M14: u stable ler..faint..
M14: lol..its complicated~~
M14: you don't noe u beautiful~
M14: wooo bus back from genting..sad..driver's fault again?
M14: u think malaysians are naïve...
M14: nice...nw even night time oso can eat cheap mcd..yesss...
M14: nice kyle..keke
M14: ah line..shall we try it on monday?haha..
M14: she say duno want 2 eat everyday..
M14: later she say mc fat..dun wan eat..hoooh
M14: lolol..u try ask her..
M14: accepted the birthday gifts from ur hand..thankz for M14: all of u for the present yea..hoho one more shirt to wear..keke..thankiu^^

FEBRUARY
M14: obviously project has some covered things that the public do not noe..
M14: if nt y the management ppl so sked of one individual who carry his own camera and jz to take some photo or recording as parts of his mv..
M14: lolol wat time?
M14: lol..another one..
M14: im very happy with their performance 2nite..very delight....
M14: thankz for a wonderful performance..btw thankz
M14: for scoring at the last second too..keke
M14: sweet..dedicate to my love one..
M14: famous..lol
M14: lol cannot underestimate all these ppl on net..
M14: they very dangerous they can find many video clip to match with the M14: issue..scary..
M14: thats why girl don’t go drink with strangers..lol..exactly...
M14: dangerous..
M14: buy extra for lee..he might need it frequently...keke
M14: see..they so sad..this job is not as pleasure as hw ppl perceived man..
M14: pity the girl..
M14: facebook..thats WHy use brain bEFORE YOU talk..zzzz...
M14: You handle so many position WHy ask such noob question de..
M14: i really scratch my head ALso can’t understand..zz
M14: this is improved malay..good…
M14: dun say d..i really hate myself..jz because cant place then switch it..
M14: for wat..y dun i jz dun..zz..wat is my fucking mind thinking bout..
M14: nope..wat i mean is i was originally into milan..
M14: wat for i go n switch the team if cant place..
M14: i really dun und y i will make the stupid decision..
M14: zz..sorry for my bro friend too..he alwiz steady n follow..
M14: already analyzed well..told u ytd nite..jz cos of cant place it..
M14: n i stupidly switch the team which i dun hav confidence too..i really..wtf..
M14: my brother friend already tell me many time milan and he is also into milan..
M14: im already made my mind for milan oso d..bt at the last moment cant place..
M14: then switch..y my brain so fucking stupid..zz
M14: standard 6 only..pro than alot adult who doesn noe hw 2 play football..
M14: probably..if cannot wake up…
M14: this one can makes u more high..
M14: come come… watch full highlight..
M14: lol..means valentine's day is seriously nt the day to confess and engage??
M14: lol becareful..
M14: lol ask our governor who do wrg thing to say sorry and M14: apologize already very hard le..
M14: yea the rules are correct..
M14: consecutive win thankz to jeremy..
M14: bt he is too tired d performance drop d sad...
M14: ok hope u all nt only suspend them wat i wan is fire all pls...
M14: thank yiu very much,,
M14: on tvbs d our country...
M14: i dunwan listen ler if english de..jz tell me wat it is about..
M14: ok listen all..get it..everything is clear nw..no more doubt..
M14: no vulgar words, no abuse, bt the workers cannot control..

M14: wat 2 say..nvr mind the hq in england already giv them pressure on this M14: thing..

M14: still we hav to listen from the other party..

M14: the key point here is if seriously the chinese guy got say about this racist

M14: stuff, then he is the one who trigger the incident..bt..if he nv say,

M14: i think all those melayu who side them can suck their own dick d..

M14: last time i look at this picture i used quite long time to find out the problem

M14: the truth is revealed..the workers totally wrgr..

M14: n the chinese din even verbally abuse tio the workers..

M14: the workers are the one who scold babi..

M14: when the chinese feel like cal police then the kl gangsters come out d n

M14: whack the chinese..still after that another worker ask the chinese faster leave

M14: cos the gang's kaki is coming......anything to say??@@@@@

M14: the blog u share..gonna share to more ppl..'

M14: I'm surprised that no one is telling about the whole incident

M14: about the customer being racially abusive. Mind you,

M14: everyone was waiting for chicken, he didn't have to call names.'

M14: even though i said customers hav right to in everything

M14: including scolding workers bt the truth is hw many customers

M14: nwadays would like to waste time scolding the workers..

M14: thats y when this issue arise i think it is the workers

M14: no attitude and fail to control their emotion well d.

M14: got ppl even send the video to KFC HQ in england n i guess this time

M14: this bunch of noob sure been sacked d de..bt they would love it..

M14: they got financial support …

M14: nvr mind..the point is they will nvr until ur turn say the food is sold out..

M14: yea dq..their smile n politeness make me alwiz want to order more

M14: than i can eat..zz..its good...lolol

M14: confirm ban for a long time.

M14: bt also if one day mcd..lets say worker in any outlet behave in improper

M14: manner..

M14: i will only ban that outlets..and will still go for another outlets..

M14: so many in malacaa..kekek

M14: i can jz say the way the smile at u secure a lot ppl's heart..

M14: no matter guy or girl...

M14: they treat u seriously like a customer..even in rush hour they still can do

M14: everything systematically and maintain good emotion..

M14: i seldom go pizza hut de..then next time wan go mz ask u go 2gather lololol..

M14: special treatment and fast service..keke

M14: i duno hw many years din step i into startbucks.. poor le...@@..

M14: coffee so expensive..~

M14: i guess KFC's workers in others countries will nt behave in this way..

M14: bt everytime..it starts at malaysia..zz...

M14: u guys jz destroy the reputation of KFC..

M14: agak abit la really tot u guys is ah beng mie..

M14: y every bad thing has to start at malaysia first..zzzzzz

M14: everybody bam bam bam and my dog also barks at the same time so noisy

M14: hw 2 focussssss...faster bam finish u firecrackers la u guys...duhhhh

M14: thankz for all ur tips that u typed out n mail to us..
M14: every tips every single word said by lecturer can remember.
M14: my study i cannot imagine..i keep think …
M14: yea la..till now i nvr pauseknow..the schedule is running like normal..
M14: somehow i feel i got passionate in doin everything jz other than study…
M14: the fella play 23 hours non stop when die still holding the mouse…
M14: i think he still got drink u see the cup on the desk...
M14: sometimes is because too focurs and mayb the brain cramp d.. lol ah
M14: play like this when talking to u den suddenly no sound come out d hah..
M14: keke..we nvr play till this extent la...can say many days din touch d...
M14: ..i continuous play 5 hours d headache …
M14: i will nvr die cos of such stupid reason..keke
M14: seriously i very feel to play LOL so many days din touch..
M14: bt when i look at my notes my heart veryhard..very dilemma....
M14: seriously i very willing to minum bt again when i look at my notes my M14: heart suffer again..hw...hw...who can save me...
M14: who got LOL
M14: we one round..
M14: i’m nt confident about this game..pls prove me when I’m wrg..
M14: arsenal new signed player....
M14: ☺ old d ... thanks ahhh
M14: wow thanks man ☺
M14: thanks, thanks for the wish 😊
M14: hahaha ... fb wish aso same ma 😊
M14: :PE
M14: thanks for the wish ^^
M14: thanks 😊
M14: thank you ^^
M14: no candle to blow also =.=
M14: thanks my junior ~
M14: u too ya 😊

JANUARY

M14: i still goin to put into the funds mia...no much left over money.....
M14: half ball n one ball actually not much diff..
M14: half ball win one ball no win no lose lo..
M14: no say we can manipulate..
M14: got ask me..0.75..i said i told uno need.. really very hard to predict..
M14: don’t how..dilemmaa....
M14: who can tell me the actual result..i don’t want forecast..
M14: chiong take ars a?
M14: we see how ars play first...next match home can take..
M14: lol this kind of thing dun play at fb la..
M14: fb very dangerous one ler is like the most useful media nw..nw u deserve the M14: consequences..lol 24 d still write thing like this b4 thinking..god bless u..
M14: lol..i seriously believe when see this news on first page of newspaper..
M14: things like this appear on first page lol..
M14: sum more the most funny one is this 24 yrs old guy nvr think b4 write..
M14: lol play at fb..nvr die b4 lolol..
M14: This Family needs our help……
M14: if you forward this mail to one person, they will get $3.00 Thai Bhat that will go towards the operation………
M14: I hope that you will pass along just as I did…
M14: A 14 years old boy got beaten half dead by his stepfather.
M14: His only fault was this that he tried to protect his little sister from being raped.
M14: Now he's struggling for his life, but doctors say
M14: he won't make it without a surgery. His mother doesn't have money to pay it.
M14: Facebook donates 45cents for every sharing or reposing.
M14: Please help.
M14: like, share and spread the message!
M14: Share if you care
M14: dog richer than human..sometimes be dog even better ..lol
M14: can consider half la cos already surgery isn it?.keke
M14: I tot u say cover his balls..lol
M14: @@ i jz wanna noe this is guy o girl..is this fella went thru surgery?
M14: i m so confuse..
M14: early early morning..very good ah..
M14: ok i go exercise..keke..u all enjoy the new year song yea..
M14: the voice however i feel it very disgusting ..
M14: like girl bt seems like boy acting girl voice..
M14: absolutely..summore its a production between her/him ,
M14: with his/her 'husband'…they put so much effort on it..
M14: first time i see@@enjoy the new year song noe~
M14: money giving lord~~

JUNE

1 M15: HAHAHA, kk9 accept me!!!!!
2 M15: myum>>>college
3 M15: yeap....kk8 accept me too..PE
4 M15: PROUD of Msia.
5 M15: many of fren knw their college application results, but i not yet knw.....
6 M15: Is this means I CAN STAY??!! LOL
7 M15: hopefully la haa...
8 M15: No fun to be here. Boring~~~
9 M15: interesting~

M15 : baby~u impress me!! ^^
M15 : finally.....it's finally!!!
M15 : Notice to all JPA scholars...
M15 : You may claim your Industrial Training and Thesis allowance from JPA.
M15 : Find more information from the link below.
M15 : Do spread the news to your friends as well. Thank you.
M15 : not match la!!!!Beleive it or not? Car $50,0000......
M15 : number plate $500,000!!!now I know the shit is also useful
M15 : i have no problem in blood pressure.
M15 : vy easy to test only, u go let ur roommate try, c whether she got pengsan due
M15 : to low M15 : blood pressure or not
M15 : lol! i think it works la.... make sense haha
M15 : you cheat me again. What theory on earth?
M15 : the best excuse! =P
M15 : another true story :P
M15 : next time can tell mom no need peel one by one lo~~
M15 : comment after 2 tests....
M15 : 2 of you are lazy!
M15 : im not satisfy to ur ctrl+c and ctrl+v works~~
M15 : what's the point we study so hard?!
M15 : yalo...80% pass year
M15 : i say them like that..lol
M15 : only for this 2 couples' paper lo. I knw wat to do
M15 : u really want meh? make our fame dirty!
M15 : mr. g cant translate mleh? i dunno how to say in english.
M15 : is day dreaming...
M15 : she told me in dream that PCB will out in exam.
M15 : she also told me that 1st question is compulsory.
M15 : she said the questions will be a tough one...hiak hiak hiak.
M15 : hai...headache lo
M15: If you do not understand my question, never mind~
M15: u dunno? never mind~ =p
M15: hur? when u saw us? ok! no problem~~
M15: n i always get trapped....
M15: smoke outburst? nitrogen gas???

MAY

M15: ok, all notes r ready to be studied!!! wait for study mood~~
M15: All the best in your exam...hope Zhou gong will not come n find u tonight...
M15: hmm..ee chin,for outsiders oso do the same?no nid fill in any form from kk2?
M15: the notice said one is application form from myum wor..like our kolej ma,
M15: nid to fill in another form...
M15: Dun drink too much alcoholic drinks la u.
M15: I'm busy, so busy that day only eight hours, the Duke looking for the others?
M15: I do not fit you.
M15: Sorry, very busy and do not have time to answer you
M15: What can I do to find my secretary =P
M15: My secretary is the Duke ~ ~ haha,you are my partner
M15: Empty may not pay attention you the presentation n tests continuosly
M15: for coming days ~~ ~~ not yet finsh the read la
M15: i jz drink water ~ ~ ~ no that rich as u
M15: I think I have already done. . .
M15: You say blanket?
M15: Not strike up a conversation with the other girls, including Vivian Soo.
M15: == ni han dit la~~=P
M15: may i know what is the date for today?
M15: what??! no electric current? lonely guy in a lonely dark room~~
M15: even the ceiling fan also left me. Hot la~~
M15: go check calendar.....
M15: oh may 20
M15: fake ~~
M15: 520~~^^
M15: myy block ba...only got mosquitoes...
M15: maybe the god envy my talent. nvm, challege accepted
M15: haha~~electric current is back
M15: y u so pandai geh?
M15: u go sleep la.... got generation gap la...he saw my block no current.
M15: who cannot login to myum.um.edu.my as me??!!!
M15: haha, same!!!! i edy called la...
M15: server got problem, he ask me to retry after half an hour
M15: ok, budget urself with this~
M15: Sleeping us a waste of time, but I did.
M15: aiks....all same features~~~what again need to compare? meaningless...
M15: even internet sources are depleted.
M15: this topic sounds easy but hard!!!
M15: A coffee will not taste sweet until you stir it!
M15: any question? any question?
M15: no question? Good~
M15 : wah~~Malaysia made Lambohrgini!!
M15 : singapore wor~~
M15 : ask plp take video when u play...wan c u lakseh~~~
M15 : haha...dun laugh die meXD
M15 : how??
M15 : qiu. got fren tried? got win?
M15 : c how la~~
M15 : c how la~~
M15 : c how la~~
M15 : Even if only a few seconds
M15 : Accidentally met, memories come~ ^^
M15 : this is Life.
M15 : damn chelsea!!!
M15 : watching football with dad
M15 : FA cup, now half time, vs liverpool la...1Vs0
M15 : no.7 lamix wo...my dad tell me... i dunno chelsea punya K-lefleh
M15 : ...dad oso say he score barcelon last time... i no support chelsea liao.
M15 : 2:0 , drogba score
M15 : liverpool goal!!! Carol
M15 : nothing wo...no goals. u ears got problem la...too stress is it? got illusion
M15 : carroll goal...over the line, but the goalkeeper push the ball out, refree gv no
M15 : goal!!!
M15 : what the==
M15 : still 2 vs 1
M15 : full time.......2vs1

APRIL

M15 : take ur time.
M15 : ok~sk2-04
M15 : No more lab! =)
M15 : lab over lo~~
M15 : lab over lo~~
M15 : nice!no more reports!
M15 : Tetris battle during VIVA:P
M15 : suddenly having feeling ~
M15 : fortunately~~
M15 : The people bersih I will not be able to go out? Will be caught?
M15 : When you say not care…
M15 : Sleepy~~~@@
M15 : ur thumbdrive is full of memory, only left 13MB.
M15 : The meta2 files are about 53MB. how?
M15 : pendrive no problem. So u want to copy them from mahya's drive?
M15 : then ok la~
M15 : Quite disappointed to post delivery service nowadays.
M15 : Why my letters and parcel not yet reach? p/s: postmen around facebook here,
M15 : the things inside the letter and M15 : parcel are nothing of your interest. Pls send them to me ASAP~~~
M15 : cabin in the woods~A movie that not make sense, sudden horror scenes, M15: 18+ bloody incidents, extremely violent.
M15: Comment: not very nice, because I do not like violent, I'm gentleman! XD
M15: Cinema. U r not gentleman? Go washroom pls walk to ladies thr.
M15: interested? come train together! haha
M15: , come come come!
M15: Seriously, I have no idea how to do...

M15: wear sunglasses can help to improve vision while driving
M15: when heavy rainfalls
M15: i dun wan jz now those like lalat geh
M15: Dear "miss", I know my time is not precious, but please be punctual....
M15: tfk always! Ish......
M15: Lecturer office corridor
M15: wifi is cut, want to connect again is very difficult;
M15: reconnect for a long time, in order to see you. this is the simple reason.
M15: want which 1? had disc?
M15: c how la~~
M15: Always do so~~ XD
M15: i dun think he wan u to join us! LOL
M15: hur? boyzone only. no other girls! dunno la. Im not the boss.
M15: Ask my boss Simon Soo
M15: him only. me at kl no dry oso! XD
M15: no choice la, seremban girls no that playful oso
M15: hehe.... no comment XD
M15: wah...so easy be best fren? oh....his secret a?!
M15: ya, he like the type of girl like YOU~~~
M15: all guys also like de la.... but they must face reality!
M15: dun think too much la!
M15: enjoy what I do, do what I enjoy...=)
M15: suddenly got friendss find me and ask "how r u?"
M15: why so hur?!
M15: no need plp teach.
M15: no la. got other meaning for this~~ XD
M15: hang high? edy ren shi vy long..old fren la...
M15: not he...is she n he
M15: me vy ok~~no get caught by the saman rm300 so far...LOL
M15: Vivian Soo, u no concern me mai dunno lo...
M15: ur heart oso dunno fly whr liao lu
M15: my um start to clamp car n gv u rm300 saman per clamp ma....
M15: if u rosak it, need pay rm1000 lo
M15: park or no sticker lo...amboi...i mana rich o? i drive kancil...
M15: even u oso got wira...dun luan luan say hur!
M15: no money pun...even indo kakak salary higher than me lo...
M15: u not yet buy house ma, buy liao jiu no money lo...
M15: s2 house cham, no moneyiao,...all need bank....
M15: u small kids really dunno many lo.
M15: Also dunno whr DAI  yala...go fun gao oioi la... ur english vy good ma..
M15: i can understand..XD
M15: If u r my fren, pls read thru it.
M15: I dont wan u be the the next victim
M15: serious? any scientific explaination?
M15: tis 1 nice listen....
M15: XX hiding in the volcano will rush out to celebrate the heads of state of the M15: throne?
M15: wah, kampar got earthquake~~ No need "admire" other countries~
M15: Malaysia Boleh!
M15: terrible.....
M15: i no realise..but many plp got feel dao
M15: i tot ony kampar...even PJ oso got wo...
M15: i no experienced...because Im STEADY~yeah~ XD
M15: hahaha, it's not your illusion, it's all people's illusion~~ @ @
M15: Swim in the vast sea for so long, finally ashore.
M15: i want to confirm...tomorrow is public holiday, no class is it?
M15: sing k with who?
M15: so happy to cannot sleep
M15: highway half-day tour, the original go kl to be after JB, funny ~ ~ @ @
M15: in one toy...nice?
M15: YoonSee Yeap, tell ma...no tell how i knw
M15: wah... so panai u...LOL
M15: too gan jiong 1st time fetch plp back kl.
M15: cannot, no passport! lol
M15: busy chatting and traffic smooth, no realise
M15: Let's boycott google chrome!!!
M15: Can not wait to go home, back home and can not wait to go back. . .
M15: yes wo... boring at home
M15: i wan c watermelon LOL
M15: The weather is dry, irritable mood! Haih ...
M15: when you feel calm, you will not feel hot... Xd

MARCH

M15: top UM news today. I think UM is currently facing financial problem......
M15: milo too sweet!!
M15: got free aircond tim....PE
M15: your mouth shape looks....."Rock"???!! haha
M15: Tofu, stinky Pasar ditches the water! Do not know how you chew
M15: why my phone received msg 10 minutes after the person send to me?
M15: ok....all plp gather at kedai runcit now
M15: tell me why~~~why draw something cannot load?
M15: Cannot load pun. Studying lo.:PE
M15: Im always wonder what is this.....since kid
M15: but i used to say second 1 since budak kecil
M15: OH my! who is the lucky person??!! unfair! no share with us!
M15: 4 tests and 2 reports on next weeks. Challege accepted!!!!

M15: and charm, affectionate, candid, frank; rich fertile imagination,
M15: creativity and good social skills, broad interests.
M15: patternoo too many badminton really got de leh! ha
M15: Why you everyday pun online too??! monthly test?
M15: i tot u share the smiling eye geh.... u so dare!
M15: yeah~here come SEREMBAN. haha

FEBRUARY

M15: pls trust me, because I'm Chairperson
M15: trust me, I'm ok
M15: so expensive1 still wan eat meh? by the way, quite nice la.
M15: u come find me at seremban la.
M15: don't know ask your parents~
M15: 3 packs( 2 added rice, 1 no add) got chasiew, chicken, total rm27.50 o!!!!
M15: obviously, no chinese r working in government...
M15: Stupid...
M15: Put the Glass Down
M15: When you leave office today.
M15: very nice by the way....==
M15: vegetarian! WHY u NO eat chicken?
M15: For all the people who like to understand the amazing efficiencies and intricacies of manglish
M15: With us reading together in class with exam, test results,
M15: and really can not think of the meaning XD
M15: k what...quite cheap...really got mcD meh?
M15: U go take rice from nasi campur mah...
M15: The handsome guy count quite cheap😊
M15: The morning I was a crazy night I'm an idiot, unfortunately,
M15: I have not children
M15: erm... okok la~ satisfy
M15: Uncle Manchester faster wake up and process my result!!!
M15: waiting is very torturing leh
M15: okok oni la if compare to u... i beat the horse oso cun catch up u la~~
M15: u only notice this 1? ya, Im in negeri sembilan 😊
M15: wo torture u?
M15: ur uncle uncle Manchester is today meh? not next friday?
M15: I'm saying you
M15: no 4.0... your bad words PE
M15: why result not yet out? pls be punctual la

JANUARY

M15: i cant belive this. tell me! this isnt true!!! XD
M15: no, this is true! USA price
M15: no wonder those old people cough so fake when angry la...
M15: thank you Hanisah!Happy holidays to u too!^^
M15: of coz use mouth to eat la!
M15: Pounding fiscal haha
M15: sent 4 emails to 4 different lecturers, hope at least 1 of them can reply. =)
M15: hope so la.....
M15: why wake up late boy??!!! u haven finish study leh
M15: isn't it a kursus pilihan? y left us no pilihan geh? LOL
