

REFERENCES

1. Bearden, Ingram and Laforge (1995), Marketing Principles and Perspectives, London: Irwin pg.188 - 190.
2. Boone & Kurtz (1998), Contemporary Marketing, London: The Dryden Press pg.433 –451
3. CSC Financial Service (2001), “What is CRM”, An Executive Briefing, 14 May 2001.
4. Financial Services Bulletin (1997), “Swedish Savings Bank (Swedbank) – Case Study”, November 1997.
5. Hatton Blue (1999), “Customer Relationship Management – Hot Topic or Hot Air”.
6. Hewson Group and Microsoft (2000), “Making a Compelling Business Case for CRM”, December 2000.
7. Patrick Sue and Paul Morin (2001), “A Strategic Framework for CRM”, February 2001.
8. Peppers and Rogers Group (2001), “In the Hunt to Wring the Most Profit Possible From Customer, Data Rules”, 2001.
9. PricewaterhouseCoopers (2001), “Customer Relationship Management A Senior Management Guide to Technology for Creating a Customer-Centric Business”, Executive Summary, June 2001.
10. Robin A. Robinson (2000), “Customer Relationship Management – The Definition”, February 2000.
11. Ruediger Adolf, Stacey Grant-Thompson, Wendy Harrington and Marc Singer (1997), “What leading banks are learning about big databases and marketing”, The McKinsey Quarterly 1997 Number 3.

12. Wendy Close and Ed Thompson (2001), "The top 10 CRM trends for 2001", January 2001.
13. www.crmguru.com/content/crminsight/2001a/0329.htm
14. www.crmguru.com/content/frontline/1998/0798.htm
15. www.crmguru.com/content/frontline/1998/1098v2.htm
16. www.crmguru.com/content/frontline/1999b/07v2.htm
17. www.crmguru.com/content/frontline/2000a/0413.htm
18. www.eccs.uk.com/resources/crmtrends_report/trends_reportwhat.asp
19. www.icl.com
20. www.microsoft.com/europe/industry/crm/features/2049.htm
21. www.misweb.com