

PREFACE

Trengganu, often placed as the most backward state in the Federation of Malaya, is identified with fishing and cottage industries which are little influenced by modern technique and ideas.

In spite of the conservative methods, fishing is undoubtedly an important industry which gives direct employment to not less than 13,700 men and creates other subsidiary industries such as boat building, net making and twine spinning.

This Academic Exercise is concerned with "Income Sharing" - a least known aspect of the whole industry.

In carrying out my field-work, assistance was received from many sources. Acknowledgement is due, in the first place, to Che' Abdul Halim bin Abu Yamin, Acting Fisheries Officer, North East Malaya, and other Fisheries Assistants, namely, Che' Noordin b. Ahmad, Che' Itam b. Mahamed (Besut Area) and Che' Rahmad b. Haji Mohammad Shahid (Kemaman Area)

I wish also to express my thanks to Che' Abdul Samad b. Haji Salleh, Acting Senior Cooperative Officer, North East Malaya; and Che' Othman b. Omar, the Penghulu of Dungun.

Indeed, I am greatly indebted to Ungku A. Aziz from whom the idea of this study originated and who supervised my work and made constructive criticism.

PREPARE

Trengganu, often placed as the most backward state in the Federation of Malaya, is identified with fishing and cottage industries which are little influenced by modern technique and ideas.

In spite of the conservative methods, fishing is undoubtedly an important industry which gives direct employment to not less than 13,700 men and creates other subsidiary industries such as boat building, net making and twine spinning.

This Academic Exercise is concerned with "Income Sharing" - a least known aspect of the whole industry.

In carrying out my field-work, assistance was received from many sources. Acknowledgement is due, in the first place, to Che' Abdul Halim bin Abu Yamin, Acting Fisheries Officer, North East Malaya, and other Fisheries Assistants, namely, Che' Noordin b. Ahmad, Che' Itam b. Mahamed (Besut Area) and Che' Rahmad b. Haji Mohammad Shahid (Kemaman Area)

I wish also to express my thanks to Che' Abdul Samad b. Haji Salleh, Acting Senior Cooperative Officer, North East Malaya; and Che' Othman b. Omar, the Penghulu of Dungun.

Indeed, I am greatly indebted to Ungku A. Aziz from whom the idea of this study originated and who supervised my work and made constructive criticism.