The Influence of Travel Motivations and Islamic Religiosity on Islamic Travel Preference: A comparison between Muslim Malaysian and Iranian University Students

Ali Hemati
February 2013

Submission of Research Project for the Partial Fulfilment of the Master of Business Administration
Abstract

Islamic Tourism in the Muslim Societies which has a fast growth in tourism industry attracts the attention of many researchers for academic purpose and also catches the attention of for the business purposes.

Present study attempts to examine the relationship between three motivational factors namely “Generic”, “Islamic”, “Hedonistic” to Islamic Travel Preference. This research compares the similarity and differences between Malaysians and Iranians in terms of Islamic travel preferences, travel motivations, and Islamic religiosity; and also evaluate the importance level of Islamic religiosity on the relationship between travel motivations and Islamic travel preference.

This study is a quantitative research which its sample population were conveniently selected from Muslim Malaysian and Iranian University Students. In addition, linear regression analysis and independent groups t-test techniques have been utilized for data analysis.

The findings indicate that generic motivational factors do not significantly contribute to predict any preferences in an Islamic travel. Besides, Islamic motivational factors positively contribute to predict any preferences in an Islamic travel while hedonistic motivational factors significantly have a negative contribute in predicting Islamic travel preferences. On the other hand the findings reveal that, Islamic religiosity increases the strength of relationship between Islamic and hedonistic motivational factors and Islamic travel.

Furthermore, this study shows that there is a significant difference between Malaysian Muslim university students and Iranian university students in terms of Islamic travel preferences, travel motivations and the level of religiosity, even though both group tend to have similar attitudes and preferences in this study.
Findings of this research will be useful for academician to consider Islamic religiosity as a framework to construct the motivational factors. Moreover, business owner in tourism industry could use the findings of this research to provide some unique travel packages particularly for Muslim travellers.

Keywords: Tourism, religiosity tourism, Islamic tourism, motivational factors, Islamic religiosity, Islamic travel preference, Malaysia, Iran.

Acknowledgment

First of all, this work could not have been completed without continual blessing from God who has always shown me his unlimited kindness in my life.

I would like to express my deepest gratitude to constant and professional guidance, encouragement and supports from my respectful thesis supervisor Prof Dr. Ghazali Musa all along the way. He has patiently spent time to motivate me and had enlightened me the right way of completing a successful thesis project. He has made me heartfelt proud of my learning in this final work

Meanwhile, I am very grateful to all who have contributed in making this thesis in reality. Firstly, I would like to thank the research assistance Dr. Sedigheh Moghavemi for all her guidance and valuable input; then, to my sister Fatemeh Hemati, whose advice was very helpful in this research. And to my parents who have always sacrificed them on the behalf of me.

Last but not least, my utmost appreciation to all my friends who help me and contribute to conduct this research project.
Table of Contents

Abstract ............................................................................................................................... 2

Acknowledgment ................................................................................................................. 3

Table of Contents ................................................................................................................ 4

  List of tables .................................................................................................................................. 7

  List of figures ............................................................................................................................... 8

Chapter 1: introduction ...................................................................................................... 9

  1.1 Overview ................................................................................................................................ 9

  1.2 Problem statement ............................................................................................................... 10

  1.3 Significance of the study .................................................................................................... 12

  1.4 Research questions and objective of the study ............................................................... 14

  1.5 Organizing of the study ................................................................................................. 15

Chapter 2: Literature review ............................................................................................ 17

  2.1 Introduction ....................................................................................................................... 17

  2.2 Tourism ............................................................................................................................ 17

    2.2.1 History and definition of tourism ........................................................................ 18

    2.2.2 Tourists’ behavior and preference ........................................................................ 20

  2.3 Tourism and religion ...................................................................................................... 21

    2.3.1 The motivational role of religion on social behavior ........................................ 21

    2.3.2 The influence of religion on tourism .................................................................... 24

  2.4 Islamic tourism ................................................................................................................ 27

    2.4.1 The concept of Islamic tourism ............................................................................ 27

    2.4.2 Islamic norms and value ....................................................................................... 31

    2.4.3 The distinction between tourism and Islamic tourism .................................... 32

  2.5 Islamic travel preference and the role of Islamic religiosity on motivational factors ... 33

  2.6 Summary ....................................................................................................................... 34
Chapter 3: Research methodology ................................................................. 35

3.1 Introduction .................................................................................................. 35
3.2 Research method ........................................................................................ 35
3.3 Research framework .................................................................................... 35
3.4 Development of hypothesis ........................................................................ 37
3.5 Selections of measures ................................................................................ 39
3.6 Development of questionnaire ................................................................... 43
3.7 Sampling design ......................................................................................... 44
3.8 Pilot study ................................................................................................... 45
   3.8.1 Reliability test for pilot study ............................................................. 45
3.9 Data collection procedure .......................................................................... 46
3.10 Data preparation and data analysis techniques .......................................... 46
   3.10.1 Data screening and monitoring .......................................................... 47
   3.10.2 Reliability test ................................................................................. 48
   3.10.3 Bivariate correlation ................................................................. 49
   3.10.4 Exploratory factor analysis ......................................................... 49
   3.10.5 Computing variables ................................................................. 52
   3.10.6 Independent groups t-test and mean comparison ........................... 54
   3.10.7 Linear regression assumptions ................................................. 54
   3.10.8 Linear regression ................................................................. 56
3.11 Summary .................................................................................................. 56

Chapter 4: Research results ........................................................................... 57

4.1 Introduction .................................................................................................. 57
4.2 Demographic statistics ............................................................................... 57
4.2 The role of nationality ................................................................................ 58
   4.2.1 Role of nationality on travel motivations ....................................... 58
   4.2.2 Role of nationality on generic motivational factors ...................... 59
List of tables

| Table 3-1 | items for generic motivation factors | 40 |
| Table 3-2 | items for Islamic motivation factors | 40 |
| Table 3-3 | items for hedonistic motivation factors | 41 |
| Table 3-4 | items for Islamic religiosity | 42 |
| Table 3-5 | items for Islamic travel preferences | 43 |
| Table 3-6 | reliability test for pilot study | 45 |
| Table 3-7 | questionnaire distribution statistics | 46 |
| Table 3-8 | normality test result | 48 |
| Table 3-9 | reliability test | 49 |
| Table 3-10a | exploratory factor analysis for independent variables | 50 |
| Table 3-10b | exploratory factor analysis for moderator variables | 51 |
| Table 3-10c | exploratory factor analysis for dependent variables | 52 |
| Table 3-11 | new developed variables for regression analysis | 53 |
| Table 3-12 | collinearity between variables | 55 |
| Table 4-1 | demographic statistics | 58 |
| Table 4-2a | role of nationality on variables | 61 |
| Table 4-2b | mean of nationality on variables | 61 |
| Table 4-2c | mean of nationality on Islamic believe and Islamic practice | 61 |
| Table 4-3 | correlation between variables | 63 |
| Table 4-4 | regression analysis result for H1 | 64 |
| Table 4-4a | the contribution of motivational factors to Islamic travel preference | 64 |
| Table 4-5 | regression analysis result for H2 | 66 |
| Table 4-5a | the contribution of motivational factors under the influence of Islamic religiosity | 67 |
| Table 4-6 | the perception of religiosity | 70 |
List of figures

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Figure 3-1</th>
<th>conceptual framework</th>
<th>35</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Figure 3-2</td>
<td>theoretical framework</td>
<td>36</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Figure 3-3</td>
<td>model for linear regression analysis</td>
<td>53</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Figure 3-4</td>
<td>homoscedasticity</td>
<td>55</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>